REPUBLICANS NAME BANNARD FOR MAYOR

Prendergast Chosen for Controller and Mitchel for President of the Aldermen.

HOPE TO WIN FUSIONISTS

Leaders Believe They Will Come Into the Fold and Indorse Their Candidates.

With fusion still in the balance, the Republican City Convention met in Carnegie Hall yesterday, made its nominations, and adopted a platform which contained this—from the point of view of the practical politician—revolutionary declaration:

"In this free country government is an institution to live under, not on."

These were the nominees:

For Mayor, OTTO T. BANNARD of Manhattan.

For Controller, WILLIAM A. PRENDERGAST of Brooklyn.

For President of the Aldermen, JOHN PURROY MITCHEL of Manhattan.

The nominees for Mayor and Controller are both Republicans. John Purroy Mitchel is an independent Democrat.

The two latter nominees had practically been settled on before the fusion conference adjourned in the early morning hours yesterday. Mr. Bannard was not selected to lead the fight until within an hour of the time when his name was placed before the convention.

The announcement that Mr. Bannard would head the Republican ticket was made after a conference committee, appointed by the convention under the temporary organization had conferred with Chairman E. H. Outerbridge and other members of the Fusion Committee on Candidates. The committee proposed Mr. Bannard and Job E. Hedges. Mr. Bannard was selected after Mr. Outerbridge had intimated that he would be more likely to receive the indorsement of the independents than would Mr. Hedges. Then the Republicans formally withdrew from the fusion conference, declaring that they would name their own ticket. The parting was amicable.

Look For Fusion Indorsement.

The Committee of One Hundred and the other anti-Tammany organizations in the fusion movement in all likelihood will give their indorsement to the candidates for Controller and President of the Aldermen. The Hundred will meet probably to-day for the purpose of determining whether they shall indorse the candidate for Mayor too.

President Parsons of the Republican County Committee told a TIMES reporter last night that he had received virtual assurances from the Taxpayers' Conference that they heartily approved of the nomination and declared further that he looked for solid fusion on the entire city ticket at least.

The Hundred will meet at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon to consider whether to support the ticket nominated by the Republican City Convention as a whole. The Hundred will then take new initiative for the purpose of enlisting the support of the Citizens' Union, the Taxpayers' Conference Committee, and the Cleveland Democracy for the Republican candidates. The Democratic Union by its action in convention last night, when Justice Gaynor was indorsed, has placed itself beyond the fusion pale.

Harmony was the keynote of the convention. It was one of the quietest gatherings of its kind in the history of the Republican organization. The cheering for the Mayoralty nominee lasted only a minute. There were no thrills, but the deepest earnestness. The custodian of Carnegie Hall was waiting to claim the hall for the evening long before the convention was ready to adjourn, so it had to do its business in a hurry, and there was no time for oratorical flights.

It was a tired lot of leaders that drifted into the hall a little before 1 o'clock for a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Republican City Committee, which was to arrange for the temporary organization of the convention. This was done by naming ex-Attorney General Julius M. Mayer Temporary Chairman.

A Quiet Gathering.

It was just 1 o'clock when Sheriff Alfred T. Hobley of Kings, Chairman of the Republican City Committee, called the convention to order. The delegates, sitting in the orchestra space, occupied less than half of that space. In the first tier of boxes were a scattering of spectators, among whom were some women. A large American flag draped at the back of the rostrum was the only decoration in the hall.

Mr. Mayer in taking the chair as Temporary Chairman sounded a fusion note.

"We have no easy task before us," he said. "The time has come when we must lay aside personal preferences and personal dislikes. What we do to-day will determine what the life of this city is to be for the next four years. We reflect the sentiment of all good Republicans when we say we are sincerely for an understanding with all good citizens who will aid the common purpose; we will join hands only with those who will equal us in that purpose."

Then the various standing committees of the convention were appointed. Just before a motion to adjourn was due, President Herbert Parsons of the Republican County Committee offered the resolution providing for the Conference Committee to call on the Hundred.

The resolution provided for the membership of this committee, State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff being placed at the head of it. The other members were Jacob W. Brenner, the Kings County leader; Charles H. Kelby, Herbert Parsons, Secretary of State Samuel S. Koenig, Julius M. Mayer, Thomas W. Whittle, John Henry Hammond, Joseph H. De Bragga, and John Timlin, Jr.

After having been in session for about an hour, the convention took a recess until 4 P. M. to permit the Conference Committee to carry out the work with which it had been intrusted. They met Mr. Outerbridge, and some of the other members of the fusion conference at the Hundred's Headquarters.

When the convention met again at 4:30 Mr. Woodruff was elected permanent Chairman, and Thomas W. Whittle permanent Secretary. Mr. Woodruff started things moving with a fling at the Independence League, which brought the first laugh in this very staid and sober party gathering.

Who Pulled His Leg?

Mr. Woodruff recently stretched a tendon of his foot, and he walked with a limp as he was escorted to the rostrum by Herbert Parsons and William Berri of Brooklyn.

"Who pulled your leg, Tim?" shouted one of the Brooklyn delegates.

Mr. Woodruff lingered on the platform steps long enough to retort. Turning around, he shouted:

"In the light of recent events, I know who didn't."

Everybody knew that Mr. Woodruff re-

MR. BANNARD WILL ACCEPT.

Wires The Times from Rochester to Say So—Hopes for All Support.

When Otto T. Bannard was nominated for Mayor by the Republican City Convention Mr. Bannard was on his way to Chicago. A telegram from THE TIMES informing him of the action of the convention and asking if he would accept reached him on the train at Albany last night and evoked this reply from the train's next stopping place:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 23.—I have no information of such action. Perhaps the convention made another choice.

OTTO BANNARD.

A second dispatch from THE TIMES, giving Mr. Bannard details of his nomination, caught him at Rochester. He responded with this:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Your prediction confirmed and I shall accept the nomination with sincere appreciation. We need all the support we can get from the New York papers and from other anti-Tammany organizations.

OTTO T. BANNARD.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Otto T. Bannard passed through Rochester at 10:36 to-night on the Twentieth Century Limited. The train stopped barely thirty seconds to enable Mr. Bannard to send some telegrams in answer to a flood he had received en route. Messenger boys routed him out of his compartment with more messages. Mr. Bannard came to the door of the car to see THE TIMES correspondent. He looked pleased.

"Will you accept the Republican nomination for Mayor of New York?" he was asked.

"I will," said Mr. Bannard, almost emphatically. "I have just wired THE TIMES that I will accept the nomination."

"Have you anything to say about the fusion movement or the kind of campaign you will make?"

"It is too early to say anything about that," said Mr. Bannard. "I do not care to make any statement now other than that I have decided to accept the nomination."

FALL INJURES DR. HARLAN.

Philadelphia Physician Lies Half Paralyzed After Being Thrown by Horse.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Dr. George C. Harlan, one of the best-known eye specialists in the city, is in the Chestnut Hill Hospital in a critical condition. He was thrown from his favorite riding horse late yesterday afternoon, in Rex Avenue, near the Valley Green oHtel, and his back was severely injured. Complete paralysis of the lower half of his body has resulted.

Dr. Harlan is 75 years old, and considering his age, it was said at the hospital late to-night, that his condition was quite favorable, although such injuries, even in younger men, are recovered from rarely.

The physician, who has been a widower several years, started on a horseback ride late in the afternoon, and turned into a park bridle path. He had gone only a short distance when his horse stumbled and fell, throwing his rider into a shallow gully. Neither the animal nor Dr. Harlan was able to rise, and the physician was momentarily in fear of being kicked to death by his frightened mount. After a time, however, the horse got up, and galloped off in the direction of the stable in which he had been kept.

Attendants there recognizing Dr. Harlan's mount and seeing the animal's bruised condition, set off with lanterns, for darkness had by this time fallen, in search of the rider. They found Dr. Harlan calling pitifully for help, and his clothing was already saturated from the drizzling rain which was falling. Suffering much pain, he was carried some distance to the only roadway which was accessible for the hospital ambulance which had been summoned.

Three hours had elapsed since the doctor had been thrown from his horse, and during that time, as he said yesterday to his attending physicians, he looked forward in intense pain to the prospect of passing the entire night practically in the depths of a forest.

Soon after the accident became known Dr. Harlan's son, A. H. Harlan, who lives in New York, was notified, and he is now here.

100 DEAD IN HURRICANE.

State Records in Baton Rouge Were Destroyed—Railroads Crippled.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—Practically all of the isolated country sections of the hurricane-swept area have now been explored. A conservative estimate to-night of the number of people who lost their lives places the total at 100.

In spite of the work of thousands of men brought in by the railroad, telegraph, and telephone companies, New Orleans and many other smaller cities in Louisiana and Mississippi are still seriously handicapped in communication with the outside world. Many miles of track, trestles, and bridges are yet to be replaced by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. The trains of this road are being sent out over the Queen & Crescent route.

The main line of the Illinois Central Railroad is still blocked, as eight miles of the track and roadbed were washed out at Manchac. It will be several days before through traffic is resumed over the main line. The trains are now being detoured over the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley road. The other railroads have succeeded in clearing their tracks, and traffic has been resumed.

After battling with the West Indian hurricane for five days the fruit steamer Orleanian limped in to-day badly crippled. Capt. Jerome Marullo was removed to a hospital with three ribs broken and a badly wounded leg. He was hurled about during the gale.

At Baton Rouge the total loss, principally in coal barges of the Monongahela Coal Company, was about $800,000. Many state records in the Capitol Building were destroyed.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 23.—Pittsburgers lost over $1,000,000 as a result of the hurricane. The Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke Company lost practically all the coal it had afloat, the value of which is estimated at over $600,000.

PEARY SHOWS DATA TO CONTROVERT COOK

Gives Records to Gen. Hubbard as He Travels Through Cheering Crowds in Maine.

WHOLE TOWNS GREET HIM

Governor, Mayor, and Others Praise His Indomitable Perseverance at Banquet in Portland.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 23.—Gen. Thomas L. Hubbard, President of the Peary Arctic Club, came in from Bar Harbor to meet Commander Peary at Bangor to-day. The two were closeted together as long as the train schedules would permit, Peary being on his way to this city, and Hubbard going back to Bar Harbor from Bangor. After the conference was over Mr. Peary announced to the special correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who is with his party, that he had turned over to Gen. Hubbard papers of extreme importance, and that the General was taking them with him to Bar Harbor.

The explorer added that the President of the Peary Arctic Club would make a careful study of the documents, and that in all probability there would be an early meeting between himself and the General, either in Portland or in Bar Harbor. When asked to approximate the time when this would be, Commander Peary said that it would probably be on Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

While Commander Peary would not disclose the nature of the documents or talk about their contents, it is known that these contain the evidence by which the explorer expects to convince not only the scientific bodies of the world, but the entire lay public, of the validity of his claim to being the first to reach the pole, and as a corollary, the only one to have reached it. Meanwhile he maintains an austere silence regarding Dr. Cook and steadily refuses to be drawn into any discussion in which the latter's claim to polar honors figures in any way.

Trip a Triumphal Procession.

Although, of course, aware that he had achieved a tremendous triumph in reaching the goal which had for so many centuries baffled the best efforts of man to attain, it is probable that Commander Peary never fully realized until to-day the degree of esteem in which that triumph is held. From Vanceboro on the north edge of the State of Maine, through to Portland, where he arrived to-night, his journey was distinctly a triumphal procession. It was marked by demonstrations progressively increasing from the little northern town, which did all it was capable of doing, to those further south, which had more populous regions to draw upon, on to the bigger towns and little cities, and finally into Portland, where the demonstration was such as this city has never seen before.

There is no use in trying to estimate the number of people who thronged the area about the station when the train rolled in, or to try to guess the number that were banked ten deep along the streets, which he was expected to traverse on his way to the new Falmouth Hotel. All of Portland and apparently almost all of the residents of its suburban districts were there.

There was a military escort consisting of four companies of the Maine National Guard, and one company of the naval militia; there were plenty of rockets and red lights; flags on all sides, and cheering without end. And to cap all was the big banquet to-night.

All Vanceboro Turns Out.

Vanceboro was the first town in the United States at which the train halted after it had crossed the Canadian frontier. No one who knew that the American explorer was on the train would have needed to be told that the town was American, after the gunpowdery and explosive welcome with which it greeted Maine's foster son.

Gathered at the little railroad station of the town was every resident of the place and every resident of the neighboring region. Massed in front was every school boy and girl, high, grammar, and primary. Each had been provided with a small American flag, and these they waved as they lustily cheered for Peary. Then they struck up the National anthem.

Peary, who stepped from the front platform of the car, immediately removed his hat, and remained uncovered while the anthem was being sung. The song ceased and there was a rush to grasp the explorer's hand. Mrs. G. L. Cummings, wife of the Collector of Customs, was the first to reach it. She told Commander Peary that her son had been the last American to shake hands with him on American soil at the time of his last departure for the pole.

Lincoln was the next stop, and here a band was waiting and a crowd as enthusiastic as was the one at Vanceboro. And so it was all down the line, at every stopping place, waving flags and cheering throngs, cheer after cheer, as Peary appeared on the platform, a jamming press to get near enough to shake his hand and enthusiastic yells of "Hurrah for Peary!" as the train pulled out.

Old Town Originates Verses.

At Old Town was the next demonstration, an exuberant and surging throng, which seemed disposed to make a hot time that day in the old town if it never had one at night. Directly the train came to a standstill it was surrounded on all sides by the cheering crowds, horns tooting, flags waving, and banners with this verse:

Welcome Peary.
You reached the pole
And put your adversary
In a hole.

Peary, as usual, stood on the rear platform and shook hands with all within reach. When the "All aboard" cry was given, those on the outer circle of the crowd were pressing so hard on those nearest the train that it looked as though some of the number would be ground under the wheels. The conductor saw the danger and waited until the small force of police and station employes made shift to push those nearest the Peary car away from danger.

Bangor was reached at 1:15. Here a reception and luncheon for Peary and his party had been planned. He had been notified by telegraph of the intentions of the city and had accepted the invitation to attend the lunch. The invitation had been extended and accepted before Peary issued his statement at Sydney that he would attend no public functions until after the controversy as to who first reached the pole had been settled.

There was a big crowd at the station to welcome him, a crowd that went trooping after the carriage that bore him to the Bangor Hotel, and patiently ranged itself in front of that hostelry to wait for his

HAYDEN SANDS BUYS FIRST BLERIOT FLIER

Young New Yorker Gets Monoplane Modeled After the One That Crossed English Channel.

SOON TO TRY IT OUT HERE

May Make a Trip Up the Hudson—Pays $1,000 Extra to Get It Now—Chooses a Curtiss Motor for It.

The news that H. Hayden Sands, a wealthy young New Yorker, has purchased a Blériot flying machine in Paris, which he expects will arrive here within the next two weeks, aroused more than usual interest yesterday in aeronautic circles.

Mr. Sands, when seen yesterday at Bretton Hall, Broadway and Eighty-sixth Street, told of the difficulty he had in obtaining the French monoplane, which will be the first flying machine turned out from the Blériot factory to be delivered to an outsider. It is, moreover, an exact duplicate of the one Blériot used in flying across the English Channel.

"I will have the fifth machine to be finished," he said. "The first four have been taken by Blériot and his men for use in different events and exhibitions throughout Europe this season. In order to get early delivery I was obliged to buy the option held by a previous applicant. I hope to receive it on Oct. 7. It was first promised for Sept. 18, and then Sept. 30. The French aviators have been spending so much time in making big flights and winning prizes that their factory work has fallen far behind, but I have just cabled saying that I do not want any further delay."

Mr. Sands occupies the unique position of being the first American who has purchased any kind of a heavier than air machine simply for the sport or pleasure to be derived from it. Mr. Sands's French machine will be equipped with a Curtiss four-cylinder motor, similar to the one Mr. Curtiss will use in his new machine in his flights around New York next week.

When the officers of the Aero Club of America heard that Mr. Sands, without any elaborate preliminary announcement, had actually bought one of the best types of aeroplanes in the world, they hastily consulted the membership list to see if he was among the large number of prospective aeronauts. There was disappointment when his name was not discovered. Mr. Sands admitted, however, that he had met President Cortlandt Field Bishop and expected to visit the rooms of the club in a few days.

"I shall give the New York aviators a chance to see the Blériot machine before I go away with it," said Mr. Sands. "I am planning to spend the Winter either in Florida or California, and the flying machine goes with me; that is, of course, if I am still in prime physical condition after making some flights here, probably on the Hempstead Plains. I should like to make some flights up the Hudson River, and perhaps Gen. Wood will let me try it out on Governors Island.

"Can I fly? Well, a little. I took some lessons near Blériot's factory at Issy, just outside of Paris. Before I got the hang of it I managed to smash two propellers and break one wing, but in my last flight I went two kilometers, a trifle over a mile, and Blériot's assistants said I made a very good landing."

Mr. Sands was asked how he came to choose a Curtiss motor in preference to the type used in the Blériot machine.

"Because I consider it the superior of any aeroplane motor now built," was his reply. "I made careful study of all the different types of motors. I believe the Curtiss engine is capable of giving the speediest results, and when fitted to the Blériot monoplane, I think the machine will be capable of making faster time than any aeroplane that has yet been tried out. It is simply a matter of taste with me, selecting the monoplane type. The Blériot is a light craft, and easy to operate, provided one possesses a little nerve, for that is as necessary to make things go as a good motor."

Mr. Sands said that he paid $3,000 for his machine. The price asked by Blériot for the small machine is $2,000. Mr. Sands paid $1,000 premium to get an early delivery, for he said had he taken his regular turn he wouldn't stand a chance of having one until next Spring. Fifty Blériot machines are now in process of construction, and every one of them was ordered immediately after the successful Channel flight.

Mr. Sands has spent the larger part of the last three or four years abroad. He has toured in an automobile nearly all over the Continent and has made a number of balloon ascensions. He was asked if he believed the leading aviators of Europe would come to America next year for the international cup races.

"It all depends upon the inducements," he said. "If the money prizes are big enough they will come. As a matter of fact they are so busy flying for prizes in Europe and so many new meets are being arranged that it will be necessary for America to make unusual inducements to get the best men here."

BUYS FARMAN'S AEROPLANE.

J. W. Curzon Gets the One That Made the Endurance Record.

J. W. Curzon of Jackson, Miss., who is now at the Hotel Albany, announced last night that he had purchased the identical aeroplane used by Henri Farman when he won the endurance prize in the recent Rheims meeting, covering officially 111.78 miles. Farman at the time was in the air 3 hours 4 minutes and 56 2-5 seconds, but he remained in the air for another lap after the time closed for taking the official time, covering in all 118 miles.

This machine, therefore, holds the world's record for endurance, both for time and distance. The machine is on the steamer Chicago, due to arrive here next Tuesday. One of Mr. Farman's engineers is coming to operate it. He sailed on the steamer Potsdam and is due in New York next Monday.

Mr. Curson said that he was bringing the machine over chiefly for scientific purposes, but admitted that it might be used for exhibitions. He has been urged by L. S. Dozier, President of the Aero Club of St. Louis, to send the flier to that city for the municipal celebration beginning on Oct. 4. Mr. Curzon said that the famous flier will be taken on its arrival to the Hempstead Plains, near Mineola, for trial flights, and after it is assembled and in good flying condition a series of public flights may be made near the city.

The machine was the only one Farman had to dispose of, as his second machine is now owned by Roger Sommer, and it was therefore shipped to America soon after the Rheims races.

TAFT OPENS TUNNEL THAT DIVERTS RIVER

Sees Gunnison's Waters Flow Into a Valley Which Is to be Made Fruitful.

SHERIFF DRAWS A PISTOL

Knocks Down Tunnel Superintendent Who Tries to Shake Taft's Hand—President to Aid Irrigation.

MONTROSE, Col., Sept. 23.—President Taft late this afternoon stood on the brink of the deepest irrigation ditch in the West, and far out in the foothills, with not a settlement in sight, made the electrical connection which started a flow of water through the Gunnison Tunnel that will reclaim 140,000 acres of arid land. It was the setting in operation of the greatest irrigation project the United States Government ever has undertaken, and the opening was made the occasion of a joyous celebration throughout the Valley of Uncompahgre.

On either side of the deep ravine leading away from the portal of the great bore several thousand people were gathered. A little stand had been erected for the President and his party, right at the edge of the cut, and looking down 150 feet to the opening of the tunnel. The tunnel has been hewn through six miles of mountain range, which, when the project is completed next Spring, will divert the waters of the Gunnison River, now flowing away in waste through a deep canyon, to the valley on this side of the mountain, where many private projects of irrigation already have told the wonders of the soil. After the President pressed a button, workmen knocked out bulkheads several miles away. Soon the water flowed out, and the throng cheered.

The vista of rolling hills and the barren mountain ranges, the mesas and tablelands, stretching along the hazy horizon, the surrounding acres of sage and greasewood, the red light of the slanting sun, the black clouds of curling smoke from a "double header" train, climbing up the winding pathway of rails to the 6,000-foot elevation at the tunnel mouth, all combined to make the scene one to be remembered by the President as unique in all his travels.

Sheriff Pulls a Big Pistol.

Only one little incident marred the President's visit. At the conclusion of the tunnel opening, one of the thirty-two Colorado Sheriffs who have accompanied the President across the State, got into an altercation with H. L. Daniels, Superintendent of the tunnel, when the latter was trying to shake hands with the President. Mr. Daniels was knocked down, and for a time trouble was threatened, as his friends were quick to resent the action of the officer, who, during the scuffle, pulled an enormous pistol from his belt. The President heard the quarreling and stopped for a moment as he was making his way to the train. He was told there was nothing serious, however, and proceeded.

During his travels to-day the President had ample opportunity to study the effect of irrigation. For a long time his train would run through stretches of country where as far as the eye could reach the only vegetation in sight consisted of a few greasewood bushes or sagebrush. Then out of a rocky cañon the train suddenly would rush upon a veritable oasis, where waving green fields of alfalfa and miles of orchards with trees laden with fruit told the miracle wrought by the touch of water.

At Grand Junction and here at Montrose the President visited the fruit exhibits of the county fairs and was told the almost unbelievable story of the season's yield. Enormous peaches, apples, pears, plums, varicolored grapes, and almost every other known fruit, as well as enormous samples of the vegetable growth of the district, were shown to him.

At the Montrose County Fair Mr. Taft saw a relay race of cowgirls. A girl of 16 was matched against two other riders, and, carrying the sympathy of the crowd with her from the start, won the two and a half mile race with three changes of horses by almost a quarter of a mile. The little girl, Miss Bertha Elsie Hull, wore knickerbockers, while the two other riders wore undivided skirts. The impediment of the latter turned the tide of the contest, and with the second change of horses little Miss Hull was galloping along so far in front that the result was never again in doubt. All three of the riders were presented to the President, who climbed into the judges' stand on the fair ground track to witness the race.

At Grand Junction in the early afternoon the President shook hands with several Ute Indians, one of them being Chipele, the widow of Ouray, one of the famous chiefs of this section.

Up in the Early Morning.

Mr. Taft was up early this morning. A shivering crowd of 500 people stood on the platform when his train arrived at Glenwood Springs shortly after 5 o'clock. After about ten minutes' wait the President appeared and was greeted by a reception committee. As he shook hands with one of the members Mr. Taft's face suddenly took on a broad smile and he said:

"Well, brother, glad to meet you."

The man was Bishop Benjamin Brewster of the Episcopal Church in Western Colorado. He wore a big knot of the Yale blue and his grip had revealed to President Taft that they were brother members of Skull and Bones, the famous Yale secret society.

After the President had breakfast he was driven to the plaza fronting the Hotel Colorado, where he addressed the crowd in impromptu fashion.

"From personal experience," he said, "I can can sympathize with you in having to get up at half past five in the morning to be here." He explained that he would have been ready to receive the committee when the train arrived, but he had lost sleep in the night.

"The people of Leadville," he said, "realizing that I would pass through there at about 2 o'clock at night, had decided to send me their greetings by telegraph, but there were some citizens who evidently did not approve this procedure, and they brought an engine with a big siren whistle alongside my car, and they blew that whistle, awakening me from my slumbers. They were gentlemen who knew me, for they called me by my first name, and shouted until I was thoroughly awake.

Declines to Bathe in Public.

"I understand I was to have the privilege of a bath in your wonderful pool. I thank you, but I must decline that privilege. The last time I took a bath in public I overheard two men saying: 'Well, if I was as fat as that man I'd do my bathing in private.' Since then bathing in public has not ben my strong suit. EARTH SHOCKS IN FRANCE.

Accompanying Storms and Floods Do Much Damage.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—Southern France, especially Provence, has been visited by heavy storms, accompanied by earth shocks. Considerable damage has been done, and railroad communication has been partially interrupted by the floods.

In Gard five women were carried off by the flood and drowned. Many persons are reported injured, and several houses were demolished.

In Herault the wine crop is ruined.

Pleads Illness When Summoned to Receive New Honors at Peking.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—A dispatch to The Post from Shanghai says that the Regent has summoned Yuan Shi-Kai to Peking to appoint him, it is supposed, a Grand Councillor, an office which he has previously held.

SUES FOR $1,778,746.

Maryland Claims Back Taxes on Earnings of Baltimore and Ohio.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 23.—Suit for $1,778,746.49 was filed late to-day by Attorney General Straus on behalf of the State of Maryland against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

The object of the suit is to recover taxes on the gross receipts of the railroad in excess of taxes paid on its gross receipts in Maryland from 1896 to Dec. 28, 1908. The rate of gross receipts taxation payable by railroads was increased in 1896 and in other years by the Legislature, and the State claims that the Baltimore & Ohio was not protected from such increase by an act of 1826.

BIGGEST OF PEACHES.

Grown in New Jersey and Sent to Taft—Four Inches in Diameter.

Special to The New York Times.

HILTON, N. J., Sept. 23.—Henry Joralemon, the most famous grower of strawberries in the most famous strawberry locality of the State, has beaten his record for strawberries in the field of raising peaches. To-day he sent to President Taft two specimens of the Iron Mountain variety of peach, which, when placed side by side, measured eight inches across. They were four inches in height.

Joralemon declares that he can raise better peaches in New Jersey than California ever saw.

Joralemon works the old Seth Boyden farm, and it was he who first made the Hilton strawberry famous.

NINE SAILORS ASTRAY.

Went Cruising in the Salem's Cutter—Agitated Ensign Sought Police.

Ensign W. F. Jacobs of the United States cruiser Salem, anchored off of Dyckman Street, reported to the police of the West 152d Street Station last night that nine enlisted men were missing from the ship. They had gone in the ship's cutter at 1:20 o'clock, said the Ensign, with permission to cruise up the Hudson. They were to return at 4:30 o'clock.

At 9 o'clock the men had not come back, although Ensign Jacobs said that none of them had any money, and all were dressed in regulation white duck suits. The police of Yonkers were asked to join in the search.

At 11:20 o'clock suspense was relieved by the return of the nine. They said they had lost their sail and had had to row back against the tide. The police search was called off.

CRUISER PENNSYLVANIA WINS.

Makes Highest Speed in Contest Among the Pacific Fleet.

HONOLULU, Sept. 23.—With an average speed of 21.85 knots an hour maintained for four hours yesterday off the coast of Maui, the cruiser Pennsylvania took first honors in the speed contest with her sister ships of the Pacific fleet, according to official figures made public to-day.

Seven of the eight ships of the squadron participated in the test, the Colorado being incapacitated by bursted boilers.

The averages of the other vessels were: South Dakota, 21.50; West Virginia, 21.35; Washington, 21.28; Tennessee, 21.25; Maryland, 20.88; California, 20.45.

NO NIGHT CARS IN OMAHA.

Street Car Company Gives Up Attempt to Run Them—Some Fighting.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 23.—In view of the turbulent scenes last night and frequent clashing between imported men and strike sympathizers to-day the street car company decided to cease attempting to run cars at night for an indefinite period. They said that the usual number of cars were in service to-day, and that regular schedules were maintained.

This afternoon on Sixteenth Street, near the Post Office, Albert Anderson, a brewery teamster, blocked the street car tracks with his load and stopped two or three cars. Police Captain Mostyn ordered him to move on. The man failed to obey the command promptly and was pulled from his wagon. The crowd became threatening, and the Captain had to draw his revolver to clear a way to the patrol box. Quiet was restored after a half dozen more arrests had been made and a number of men clubed by the police.

CHINAMAN BUILDS AEROPLANE

Makes Successful Flights of Several Miles Near Oakland, Cal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23.—Fung Joe Guey, a Chinese, working in a hidden retreat on the Piedmont Hills, three miles from Oakland, has constructed an aeroplane in which he has made two successful flights over a distance of several miles.

Guey will go to China within the next few weeks and take his invention.

While working on the aeroplane Guey erected a wireless telegraph apparatus on the hill.

FINE DAY FOR START OF FULTON SHOW

Fair and Cool Weather the Prediction—Water Parade the Opening Feature.

DAY AND NIGHT PAGEANT

500 Vessels Will Escort Half Moon and Clermont Along Line of Warships—Brilliant Fireworks at Night.

The Hudson-Fulton Celebration begins to-morrow, with, according to some estimates, 1,000,000 visitors here, besides the 4,000,000 resident New Yorkers, to see it.

Fair, cool weather and westerly winds were predicted last night by the Weather Bureau, which also said:

"The showers in the Atlantic States will end during Friday, except that they will continue along the South Coast. Cooler weather will overspread the Eastern and Southern sections."

The feature of the first day's celebration will be two great naval parades, to be held in front of three of the city's boroughs, one early on Saturday afternoon, the other at night, with brilliant illuminations, accompanied by fireworks on a scale not hitherto seen in this country. The streets along which the land parades later in the celebration are to pass, and the public buildings and great bridges over the East River will be illuminated from 6 o'clock until midnight. No other day of the fortnight's observance is likely to be quite so full of picturesque pageantry.

Manhattan will not see the naval parade until early to-morrow afternoon, though much of the morning will be taken up in the formation of the line in full sight of South Brooklyn, and the upper end of Richmond Borough. For three hours persons on the hills above St. George and Stapleton and on the Bay Ridge side of the upper bay will have an excellent view of the Clermont, Half Moon, their escort of torpedo boats, submarines, and other smaller war craft, as well as of the vast fleet of excursion steamers, ferryboats, coastwise ships, and other vessels which will enter the parade.

The Half Moon and the Clermont, with their escort, will leave Kill von Kull at 10:20 o'clock to-morrow morning, proceeding to Stapleton for an official reception. At 11 o'clock these vessels cross the Bay to a point a hundred yards or so off the Bay Ridge shore, where similar exchange of civilities will take place. From there the Half Moon, the Clermont, and escorting vessels will come up to a point off Governors Island, reaching this anchorage shortly before 1 o'clock.

All the morning while this escort squadron has been manoeuvring in the upper bay the great number of vessels of every type which are to join the parade, more than 500 in all, will be forming in the lower bay. This line will join the escort squadron about 1 o'clock, and the entire line will move up the river before Manhattan at 1:15 o'clock. From then on the parade will be in full view of every one who can see the Hudson River. The nearer the view of course the better. Thousands of persons will be on the passenger steamers in the line itself. All the vessels, except the police, press, and official boats, will be required to keep the line formation.

The parade will consist of ten squadrons. In the first will be seagoing and coastwise merchant vessels; in the second, steamboats plying inland waters, including ferryboats. The third will consist of steam yachts, the fourth of motor boats, the fifth of tugs and steam lighters, the sixth of sailing craft. Then come the police and public safety, wrecking and fireboats, followed by the escort squadron, in the middle of which will be the vessels of honor, the Half Moon and Clermont. Revenue cutters and other National and State craft will form the ninth or patrol squadron, while the tenth or scout squadron will consist of fast steamers and motor boats which will act as dispatch boats for the commanding officer.

The Half Moon and the Clermont will be near the middle of the line. The warships will not move in the parade, but will remain at their anchorages and the line of parade will circle them. The parade will move slowly upstream until the southernmost warship off West Forty-second Street is reached, the line then turning outward and going to the west of the men-of-war.

This schedule, as accurate as could be made in advance, was given out:

Start of the parade..............1:15 P. M.
Head of parade reaches Ninety-seventh Street, northbound......2:30 P. M.
Head of parade reaches stake boat at 175th Street..................3:15 P. M.
Clermont and Half Moon reaches 110th Street......................3:15 P. M.
Head of parade southbound reaches 110th Street..................... 4 P. M.

As soon as the Half Moon and Clermont reach the southernmost warship they will be saluted with twenty-one guns. This salute will be repeated by every one of the warships in line, at least 1,000 guns being fired within an hour in their honor.

The Half Moon and Clermont will be anchored on reaching West 110th Street on the return trip from around the head of the fleet at 175th Street. The official reception of the Half Moon by the Commission from the Holland Commission will take place here, with several addresses and other exercises.

The crowds at Battery Park, on Liberty Island, on the pier sheds, and ferryhouse roofs along the river from South Ferry to Forty-second Street will see the parade minus the warships and the thunder of the salutes. Those in DeWitt Clinton Park and on the river bank from Forty-second to 110th Street will see both the parade and warships, as will those above 110th along Riverside Park to the end of Manhattan Island. Those at the foot of West 110th Street will have the advantage of seeing and hearing all there is to see and hear. Naturally, however, the crowd here will be greatest.

The illuminated night parade will start from Governors Island at 7:30 o'clock over the same course, except there will be no exercises. In their place will be a most elaborate display of fireworks.

FULTON PLANS OF HOTELS.

Estimate of 1,000,000 Guests in Town—Improvising Banquet Rooms.

It has been estimated that there will be a million strangers in New York for the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, beginning to-morrow.

"There must be a very large number of strangers in town, that's sure, but I don't believe there are a million," said the manager of one of the big Fifth Avenue hotels. "The New York hotels could not house half that number in addition to their regular Fall guests. But of course there are scores of small hotels and hundreds of boarding houses.

"The country papers have been filled with advertisements of such places, which offer all the comforts of home at $3 a day, two in a room. Also many who have come to the celebration are visiting friends.

"A man came to me to-day," went on the manager, "and said he had arranged with one of the steamship companies to make use of their boats at the docks for lodging purposes, and asked me to send him my overflow. How is that for a new idea? He will charge his roomers $2 a night each for a berth in a stateroom and will not even guarantee them coffee in the morning. He's quite likely to do a good business, too."

The coming of such a great number of prominent persons at one time has taxed the big hotels to the straining point to provide suitable accommodations for the various dinners planned.

The Plaza was forehanded in this respect, and has rushed to completion three rooms which the management started to make over in the Summer. These are now ready for use. All are on the first floor. The first one is a Louis XVI. room in white and gold with bronze brown portieres, marquetry flooring, gilt chairs, and crystal chandeliers. It will seat sixty comfortably.

Further down the corridor a room, not quite half the size, in dark red, with cherry furniture, will be suitable for small dinners, while a rose room with tapestried walls, which at present is part of the suite occupied by Prince Kuni, is still another place for small dinners to be given. It is said that the white and gold room will be inaugurated with an elaborate dinner planned for one of the visiting celebrities.

Viscomte Benoist d'Azy, Lieutenant Commander in the French Navy and naval attaché of the French Embassy at Washington, is a guest at the Belleclaire, which long ago exhausted its accommodations for 325 guests. The management, however, has arranged with persons in the neighborhood to take many applicants, who may use the Belleclaire restaurant.

At the Ansonia Gen. Carlo Garcia, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from Cuba, arrived yesterday accompanied by his wife and daughter, Miss Carmela Garcia. The Ansonia has room for 2,100 people, and has nearly that number already housed.

George J. Krauss and the Lodge of Guardsmen gave a supper for forty at the Knickerbocker last night.

Preparations are being made for the reception of the Marquis of Villalobar, the Spanish delegate to the celebration, who comes to the Waldorf to-day. Other prominent guests coming to the Waldorf are A. Rustem Bey, counselor of the Embassy and Chargé d'Affaires ad interim of Turkey; Youssouf Zia Pasha, First Delegate of Turkey, ex-Minister of Public Instruction and formerly Turkish Ambassador to Paris, and Col. Aziz Bey, Second Delegate of Turkey. George T. Jarvis of the Lake Champlain Tercentenary Commission has arrived at the Waldorf.

The Military Order of Foreign Wars of the United States has engaged the East Room of the Waldorf for the three days of the parades. Commencing to-day the Naval League of the United States will have headquarters at the Waldorf. Horace Porter is President of this organization, ex-Secretary of the Navy Newberry Vice President, J. P. Morgan, Jr., treasurer, and H. H. Ward Secretary. There are 5,000 members.

The banquets announced for the Waldorf are the Pilgrim Society's dinner to visiting Englishmen on Oct. 4, the Allied British Societies' dinner to officers of the British fleet on Oct. 5, and the German-American dinner to representatives of Germany, Austria, and Switzerland on Oct. 7.

CALLS FULTON STANDS ILLEGAL.

Lawyer Protests Against Their Erection in Streets and Parkways.

A letter protesting against the use of pavements for reviewing stands during the Hudson-Fulton Celebration was received by Mayor McClellan yesterday from John Leary, a lawyer with offices in the Singer Building. The letter says:

> If you will devote a moment to telephone inquiry you will learn that many of the city employes under you, commencing with your Park Commissioner down, are permitting certain people to erect stands over the streets and parkways along the line of the parade, and from these they propose to exclude all citizens who refuse to pay for admission.
> The erection of these stands was a crime, the permitting of them to be erected was a violation of law by your officials—the Park Commissioner, the Aldermen, and the police. All are violating the law in actively or passively permitting their continuance. Any policeman or other person who attempts to stop any citizen or visitor from going on any stand because he or she has no ticket will be guilty of assault. It may lead to trouble. These stands have become parts of the public highways and public parks.
> I write you for such action as may make it unnecessary to apply to the courts or the Governor. The power is in your hands. I beg to advise you that in their last legal analysis the public streets of the city are State highways, and the police of the city are State officers; and therefore, from a political point of view, I trust that a Democratic Mayor will appreciate how undemocratic this attempted appropriation of the people's parks and streets is, and not provoke the spectacle of a democratic community applying to a Republican Governor to preserve for them democratic rights.

Park Commissioner Smith said yesterday that he had acted on advice of the acting Corporation Counsel in permitting patriotic societies and other organizations to erect stands along Central Park West. Commissioner Smith says he received the following instructions from the acting Corporation Counsel regarding a permit for one of the early stands:

> In my opinion, your department (the Park) has authority to grant the application. It should be stipulated in the permit that the right of the public to pass along the sidewalk under the stand should not be impaired. In order that there may be no delay in acting upon applications for the erection of stands in streets or avenues adjoining parks during the coming celebration, I beg to advise that this opinion covers all applications so far as they affect the relative jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Parks and the President of the borough.

Pinkerton detectives scouted around all day yesterday looking for speculators who were supposed to have tickets for the Sons of the American Revolution reviewing stands on Central Park West, but they failed to locate any one with such tickets who were not entitled to them. The detectives had been called in to run down the report that seats on these stands were to be had through speculators.

Work was progressing rapidly on the reviewing stands along Central Park West, Fifty-ninth Street, and Fifth Avenue yesterday, and by this afternoon a large number of them will be ready for the decorators, despite a scarcity of carpenters. The seats on private stands could be bought at prices ranging from $1 to $5 for each day of the land parades.

FULTON EXCURSION CRAFT.

Boats of All Kinds Under Charter at Big Prices—Scheme of Gamblers.

Surveyor Clarkson held yesterday a rehearsal for the sixty-five Custom House clerks who have been drawn from their regular duties to assist the 180 inspectors in seeing that the various craft which are to take part in the Fulton water parade to-morrow are not overcrowded.

Those who have boats chartered on speculation have their eyes anxiously on the weather signs. Rain on the marine parade days of the celebration would spell ruin for many. Many of these men have staked their savings on the issue. In the river parade there will be from 150 to 200 passenger-carrying boats. Some of these were doing service in this harbor under other names when New York was young.

The assortment of craft come from many places, some from Baltimore, others from down East. It is said that even the boat used to convey dead horses from New York will be used as a passenger carrier. Under the name of the Reynolds, offered for charter, river men say, can be recognized the outlines of the ancient ferryboat John G. Carlisle. Another craft to be in the line was running along the shore of Staten Island, it is said, when Fulton's memory was green.

It is said that towboats expect to do a great business. Though not allowed to carry passengers, they can get permits to carry guests, and it is reported that they are looking for many "guests."

Big prices are asked for the charter of steamboats for the river pageant. The Richard Peck and the Chapin were offered for $4,500 a day, not including bar or restaurant privileges. The Thomas Patten, which can carry 1,800 passengers, was offered for two days at $9,000, or $15,000 for the week. The steamer Columbia, which comes from Baltimore, was offered at $5,000 for the fourteen days.

That the gamblers are on the alert is indicated by the fact that in the last few days men have been around inquiring for the privilege of "running a game" on board of various boats.

MILES OF WARSHIPS MAGNET FOR 300,000

INFLEXIBLE COMING TO-DAY

German Squadron Will Complete the Armada—Boatmen Reap a Harvest —Honors for Admiral Seymour.

Three British cruisers, the Drake, Argyll, and Duke of Edinburgh, which, with the armored cruiser Inflexible, will represent Great Britain at the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, pushed through a gray haze into sight of New York Harbor yesterday afternoon and anchored at sunset close to Sandy Hook. The British flagship, the $8,500,000 Inflexible, with Admiral Sir Edward Hobart Seymour on board, reported by wireless that she would join her sister ships this morning.

Some hours before the British men o' war were heard booming their salute to the forts at Sandy Hook the Atlantic torpedo flotilla, eight slim, gray fighting vessels, stole through the fog and steamed carefully up the bay into the East River to the Brooklyn Navy Yard. They will take their places with the battleships at the river anchorage some time to-day.

Germans Coming To-Day.

By the time the English cruisers had arrived at the Hook there had come also definite news of the German squadron, whose coming will complete the list of foreign ships which are to take part in Saturday's naval pageant. The Kaiser's four cruisers, the Victoria Louise, the Bremen, the Bertha, and the Dresden, reported that they had sailed from Newport at noon yesterday and asked that pilots be in readiness to guide them into New York at 6:30 o'clock this morning.

The torpedo flotilla, in two squadrons of four boats each, crept up the Narrows earlier in the day with a stealth befitting their character. The flotilla included the destroyer Worden and the torpedo boats Blakely, Shubrick, Stockton, Stringham, Porter, Du Pont, and Biddle.

The men-of-war now anchored in the Hudson form a line nearly ten miles long and were the principal objects of interest to New Yorkers and Hudson-Fulton visitors yesterday. More than 300,000 persons, it was estimated, flocked to Riverside Drive during the afternoon and viewed the anchored pageant.

All the American warships hung their flags at half-mast yesterday afternoon while the funeral of Gov. Johnson was in progress in Minnesota. This token of respect was widely commented upon by the spectators on shore.

Thousands Line River Banks.

The streets bordering on the Hudson as far north as Spuyten Duyvil and the river banks were thronged all day yesterday by thousands, the majority of the spectators apparently being visitors to the city. It was a care-free but well behaved crowd out to see all that was on view. The big French battleships and the famous Atlantic Fleet flagship Connecticut were the ships that everybody seemed most anxious to see. They wanted to see the Frenchmen because they were the biggest of the foreigners now in the river and they wanted to look at Schroeder's great flagship because for sixteen months it led the Atlantic Fleet around the world. The sidewalks along Riverside Drive were jammed with pedestrians and the roadway with automobiles and carriages.

On the river every launch, rowboat, and other small craft able to be afloat was doing a rushing business between the shore and the ships. Not in years have the boatmen reaped such a harvest. Revenue cutters darted hither and thither to see that no anchors were dropped in the reservations made for non-participants in to-morrow's parade and to prevent accidents.

On board the ships the scenes were just as lively. On all of them the sailors were scrubbing decks, polishing brasses, and making the toilets of the vessels for the pageant of the opening day. To-day the sailors will wire the superstructures of all the ships, including the funnels and military masts, for the illumination on Saturday night, which promises to be the most magnificent electrical spectacle ever seen in any harbor. Every ship, from the biggest of all—the Inflexible—to the smallest torpedo craft, will be outlined in electric lights, the picture extending in an unbroken line from Fiftieth Street to Spuyten Duyvil, at which place the scout cruiser Birmingham holds the northern extreme of Schroeder's column.

New Alignment of Warships.

The alignment of the American vessels was changed yesterday. The order in which they are now anchored, beginning at Spuyten Duyvil, is the Birmingham, Salem, Chester, North Carolina, Montana, New York, Georgia, Nebraska, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Virginia, Ohio, Missouri, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Kansas, Vermont, Louisiana, Minnesota, Idaho, Mississippi, and New Hampshire. The British squadron on its arrival will take up the anchorages between 119th Street and the southernmost ship of the Americans, the Inflexible having the position next to the New Hampshire, the Drake, Argyll, and Duke of Edinburgh anchoring to the south of Sir Edward's flagship in the order named.

The coming of Sir Edward Seymour is being looked forward to with unusual pleasure by the American officers. The flagship Connecticut has been paired off with the Inflexible by order of Admiral Schroeder, and the officers of the flagship will see to it that their British brothers on the Inflexible get as good a time as possible during their stay in American waters. Admiral Schroeder, as soon as the Inflexible anchors, will call on Sir Edward and welcome him. Admiral Seymour will immediately return the visit, and will meet on the Connecticut all the officers of the flagship and the division commanders, who will be assembled there to welcome him.

"We can't do too much for Admiral Seymour," said an officer of one of the American battleships, who was on duty in the Far East when Sir Edward, then a Vice Admiral, was in command of the British Asiatic Squadron. "We love him for his attitude at Manila, while we have the greatest admiration for him as a man and a sailor. We all remember how Sir Edward acted during the Boxer troubles. At one time, when the international force was advancing on Peking and we were within twenty-five miles of the city, we were stopped by an overwhelming force of Chinese soldiers. A retreat back on Tien-tsin was our only chance of escape, and that was a mighty slim one, as an even larger Chinese force was operating there.

"In the desperate situation Sir Edward, at common request, assumed command of the combined forces, and we soon learned that he was a real sailor-soldier. So now we are delighted that he is coming, so we may show him what we think of him."

Entertainment of Foreign Ships.

Each of the vessels in Admiral Schroeder's command has been paired off with one of the foreign ships. For instance, the Georgia, flagship of Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright, is paired with the Justice, flagship of Rear Admiral Le Pord, the French commander; the New Hampshire is paired with the Vérité, the Nebraska with the Liberté, the Kansas with the Drake, the Vermont with the Argyll, the Louisiana with the Duke of Edinburgh, the Virginia with the German flagship, the Ohio, Missouri, and Wisconsin with the other German cruisers, and so on.

It was said yesterday that the Government at Washington has not been as liberal as might have been expected under such circumstances in providing money for the entertainment of the foreign sailors. The American officers, however, are making no complaints, and say they are happy to have the honor of entertaining their brother sailors from across the sea. It was said unofficially yesterday that the money set aside out of the naval contingent fund for the entertainment of the foreigners is barely $250 to each American ship. It is estimated that the amount to be expended in dinners, &c., by the Americans, all to be paid by the officers, will not be less than $10,000, and it may be considerably in excess of that figure.

Preparations are being made alongshore by the boat owners who will ply their boats between the shore and ships. They expect to do the greatest business in their history on Sunday. Extra policemen are being assigned to the river territory to preserve order.

Last night several thousand men from the Atlantic Fleet and many from the foreign ships had shore leave. At 5 p.m. yesterday the line of blue jackets waiting to buy tickets in the Subway at Dyckman Street was nearly two blocks long. The landing near that station is used by the armored cruisers, as well as one of the battleship squadrons of the Atlantic Fleet.

The sailors were to be seen everywhere about the city last night, though the majority of them sought out Broadway for sightseeing in preference to their usual haunts in the Bowery. Hundreds journeyed to Coney Island, even though the festivities at that resort are fast drawing to a close.

The special detail of reserve policemen assigned on Wednesday to the West 125th Street station were on duty early yesterday on the Riverside Viaduct, from 127th to 135th Street. They had little to do, however, for the crowds were orderly.

FULTON AIRSHIPS TUNING UP.

Mr. Wright's Nearly Ready for Flight —Air Race to Albany.

Glenn H. Curtiss left for his home, at Hammondsport, N. Y., yesterday morning. Wilbur Wright spent another busy day at Governors Island getting his flier ready for its long-distance trips over New York next week. The belated portions of his machine, including parts of his monorail track, arrived in the afternoon, and Mr. Wright expects to have everything ready late to-day.

Up at Clermont Avenue and 119th Street, in a vacant lot, Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin and George L. Tomlinson, two of the contestants in The New York World's $10,000 prize flight from New York to Albany, were busy getting ready for their journey of 140 miles next Monday, provided winds are favorable. Two circus tents cover nearly the entire lot from 119th to 120th Street. Capt. Baldwin's new dirigible and John Roeder's combination dirigible aeroplane, which is due to arrive to-day from White Plains, will occupy the larger tent. A hydrogen gas plant has been installed, and the inflation of the balloons will begin to-day.

"The aviation grounds at Governors Island suit me perfectly," said Mr. Curtiss just before leaving for home. "There is plenty of room from which to get a fine start on a flying trip over the water. I hope to try out my new machine, fitted with pontoons, over Lake Keuka before returning to the city. This machine has never been tried out, and it may take a day or two to get things in shape. I expect, however, to have everything ready for a good flight next Tuesday."

Mr. Curtiss will return to New York next Monday. The machine used by Mr. Curtiss when he won the international cup in Europe is due here to-morrow on the Savoie, and may be exhibited here for two weeks before being shipped to Hammondsport.

KUNI SEES WASHINGTON.

Japanese Prince Whirled About Capital in Auto—Will Visit Mount Vernon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Paying his first visit to the National Capital, Prince Kuni, the official representative of the Emperor of Japan to the Hudson-Fulton Celebration in New York, who arrived here this afternoon, made a whirlwind tour of the city.

The Prince arrived at 3:43 o'clock this afternoon from New York. A large automobile, rapidly driven, enabled him to visit during the afternoon the Capitol Building, the Washington Monument, the White House, the Soldiers' Home, and lastly, the Congressional Library. The distinguished visitor expressed himself as delighted with what he saw.

Prince Kuni was accompanied to Washington only by his military aid, Mr. Kurita. He was met at the new Union Station by Commander C. C. Marsh of the navy, who has been designated as the Prince's aid while here; Third Assistant Secretary of State Phillips, and by the entire staff of the Japanese Embassy, all of whom accompanied him on his visit around the city. The Prince arrived at his hotel shortly after 6 o'clock, and there to-night entertained a small dinner party of Government officials and others.

Following the custom of previous distinguished visitors, Prince Kuni will place a wreath upon the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon. He will go to Mount Vernon in the President's yacht Sylph to-morrow morning, and in the afternoon will attend a luncheon to be given by Assistant Secretary of State Wilson, leaving this city at 4 o'clock in the afternoon for New York.

CROKER'S FIRE ORDERS.

Guards at Each Fire Alarm Box—Fire Boats to Protect Docks.

Fire Chief Croker has issued a special order to guard against fires and fire panics during the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. It says in part:

> Company commanders will see that all hydrants in their districts are kept clear of obstructions to the centre of the street and to within ten feet to either side thereof.
> Commanding officers of companies whose districts border on river fronts will notify the persons in charge of piers, docks, or bulkheads to be prepared during the celebration on the river with lines of hose or such other fire appliances as they possess, and if they use colored lights to place the same in metallic or fireproof vessels.
> On Saturday, Sept. 25, the fireboat William L. Strong will locate at Ninety-seventh Street, North River, and fireboat Cornelius W. Lawrence will locate at 129th Street, North River. They will report at 11 o'clock and remain till the end of the naval parade. At both places the police will have signal and telephone stations.
> Deputy Chiefs in whose districts theatres are located will instruct company commanders to detail one additional man to all such places of amusement in order to prevent obstruction of any kind in aisles or exits or overcrowding.
> During the parades on Sept. 28, 30, and Oct. 2 there will be detailed an assistant foreman and one fireman on each fire alarm box on the line of parade. Commanding officers of companies located in the vicinity of the following streets and at the crossing of the line of march—on Central Park West at 102d, Ninety-seventh, Eighty-third, Seventy-seventh, Sixty-eighth, and Sixty-third Streets, and on Fifth Avenue at Fifty-eighth, Fifty-sixth, Forty-third, Thirty-third, Twenty-ninth, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-sixth, Eighteenth, Fourteenth, Thirteenth, Twelfth, Tenth, and Eighth Streets—are notified that the Police Department will keep these streets clear of obstructions, and as far as possible company commanders will use these streets in responding to alarms.

Chief of Batallion Thomas Larkin will be in charge of all details to all fire-alarm boxes and all official stands along the line of parade. The rest of the order consists in directions to Deputy Fire Chiefs and others regarding details.

ITALY'S COURSE ASSAILED.

Tribuna Calls Her Naval Representation Here Insignificant.

ROME, Sept. 23.—The Tribuna, again commenting on what it terms the inadequate Italian representation at the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, says that the appointment of Baron Alfonso di Brochetti does not alter the situation, and it refers to the insignificance of the Etna and Etruria as compared with the colossal ships sent by France, England, and Germany. The Tribuna adds:

"This was an occasion for Italy to show her interest in the Italian colony in the United States by sending a powerful squadron and to demonstrate to the United States, where everything Italian is despised, what Italians are worth as shipbuilders, navigators, and friends."

Programme of Trinity's Chimes.

For half an hour each day at noon of the first Hudson-Fulton week the chimes of Trinity Church will be rung. On week days such selections as "See the Conquering Hero," "Hail to the Flag," and "Old Hundred" will be played. The chimes will be played for half an hour on Sunday at the close of the morning service. The selections will include "Rock of Ages," "Sweet Hour of Prayer," "Lord Dismiss Us with Thy Blessing," and others.

POLICE "DON'TS" FOR FULTON SIGHTSEERS

Citizens Warned Against Leaving Homes Unguarded or Carrying Valuables in Crowds.

BEGIN ROUND-UP OF CROOKS

Trio of Suspects Arrested and Held in Heavy Bail—Railroad Precautions to Protect Passengers.

There are many important "don'ts" which, if observed by the public during the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, says Police Commissioner Baker, will lessen the work of the police as well as protect citizens from thieves and pickpockets during the period of the Fulton Celebration. Other "don'ts" are designed to protect sightseers from rough-handling during the land parades, when great crowds will be in the streets.

These are some of the "don'ts":

Don't wear too much jewelry during the celebration.

Don't leave jewelry or money lying around the house. Put it in a safe deposit if feasible.

Don't carry large sums of money while on the streets.

Don't carry money where a pickpocket can get at it. If paper money, pin it in an inside pocket.

Don't wear your watch where a pickpocket can get it easily.

Don't leave windows unfastened when leaving home.

Don't leave an apartment entirely alone. Let the servant or some member of the family remain at home. If it is necessary for all the family to go out during the celebration ask the family next door to keep an eye on things.

Don't look too prosperous while on the streets. A thief may follow you home.

Don't get excited in a street crowd.

Don't try to move too fast.

Don't argue with a policeman. If he tells you to move on, do so. Take his number, and report to Commissioner Baker if you think the occasion warrants.

Don't elbow your neighbor in the crowd. The police have instructions to arrest "elbowers."

Don't lose your temper. This applies to policemen as well.

Don't hesitate about confiding your suspicions to a policeman if you see any one acting in a suspicious manner. That's what the police are there for.

Don't "sass" the policeman. He is only doing his duty when he orders "Move on."

Don't throw confetti. The Hudson-Fulton Celebration is not a Mardi Gras.

The police "round-up" of crooks whose pictures are in the Rogues' Gallery, to get them out of the way during the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, has already begun. Three young men who have records as pickpockets, the police say, were jailed yesterday, and will not get out until long after the visitors have gone. The men were committed by Magistrate Herbert, in Jefferson Market Court. They were Hyman Bernstein, Max Trendler, and George Monroe.

They were arrested on the Bowery while attempting, the police say, to pick the pocket of a passenger on a Third Avenue car. Detectives Van Twistern and Allen saw Bernstein standing in front of the Bowery Bank, signaling to Trendler and Monroe, who were following an elderly man who had just left the bank. The detectives say that Bernstein pointed to his hip pocket, indicating that the man who had just left the bank had his money in that pocket.

The man who had left the bank boarded a Third Avenue car and stood on the rear platform. Trendler and Monroe boarded it with him, and took up their position alongside the man with the money. Bernstein then jumped on the car and was in the act of digging his hand into the intended victim's hip pocket when the trio were arrested.

At Headquarters it was found that Bernstein's picture in the Rogues' Gallery is No. 7,595, while Trendler's is 7,802 and Monroe's 11,646.

The Magistrate held the prisoners in $2,600 bail each.

Special arrangements have been made by all the railroads entering this city to protect passengers from sneak thieves and robbers during the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. Every train entering or leaving the city will be policed by detectives, who will keep close watch, both on trains and in stations, for suspicious-looking persons.

W. A. Humphrey, Chief of Detectives of the New York Central, has assigned 150 of his best men to special passenger train duty. There will be two special detectives on every south-bound train between Albany and New York; also on the West Shore division trains.

The railroads anticipate the greatest rush to-day and to-morrow. Thousands of visitors came yesterday.

It was announced yesterday by the New York Central that not a freight train would enter the city between 9 A. M. and 10 P. M. to-morrow, the tracks to be reserved exclusively for passenger service.

THE HOLLANDERS DINE.

They're No Dry State Advocates— "Jolly Good Fellow" Sung in Dutch.

Draped in the flag of the Netherlands and flanked by two little windmills, Queen Wilhelmina's picture looked down on a gathering of 100 men in the marble dining room of the St. Regis last night, at a dinner given by the Netherland Chamber of Commerce in America and the Netherland Club of New York in honor of the visiting official guests to the Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

The Netherland Club differs from the Netherland Society in that it boasts of actual Dutch membership rather than merely Dutch descent. And the atmosphere of the dinner was decidedly Dutch, with its Half Moon of flowers, its hangings of orange, blue, and white, and the little wooden shoes which were the souvenirs.

Dr. J. Loudon, the Netherlands Minister at Washington, presided and bade the guests let the wine flow freely, "for, while Holland is a wet country, it is not a dry State." Among those around the table were his Excellency J. T. Cremer, Special Envoy of Queen Wilhelmina; the Hon. S. P. van Eghen, President of the Amsterdam Chamber of Commerce; Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, the Hon. W. F. van Leeuwen, Mayor of Amsterdam; Herman Ridder, Stuyvesant Fish, Col. J. J. Astor, Capt. G. P. van Heckling of the Dutch warship Utrecht, and Otto Reuchlin, President of the Holland-America Line.

The speeches were full of international courtesy and references to the Dutch spirit. Dr. Loudon begged leave to break the formality with the introduction of the good Dutch custom of drinking a toast, and proposed the healths of Mr. Cremer and of Gen. Woodford, without whose efforts, he pointed out, this celebration would not have been, and the present company would never have assembled. Whereupon everybody rose and sang lustily a very creditable Dutch version of "For he's a jolly good fellow."

BURGESS CORPS NOT WORRIED.

Doesn't Need Any Sponsor for Its Ball, Says Major Woodward.

Major J. Otis Woodward, commanding the Albany Burgess Corps which is giving a ball at the Metropolitan Opera House on Oct. 1, in celebration of the Hudson-Fulton Ter-Centenary, made a tart reply yesterday to Gen. Stewart L. Woodford's statement of Wednesday that the Hudson-Fulton Commission was not sponsor for the ball.

"Gen. Woodford sees fit to state that the Hudson-Fulton Commission takes no official cognizance of the ball to be given at the Metropolitan Opera House on Oct. 1 by the Albany Burgess Corps," said Mayor Woodward's letter. "The sufficient reply is that the Albany Burgess Corps neither asks nor needs any sponsorship. Its ball will fill a gap by providing the only public social function of the entire celebration program in New York City.

"As a military organization, the corps simply points to its historic record. From the social point of view, the inclosed roster of life membership speaks for itself."

Holland's Queen Sends Thanks.

VICTORY FOR THE CONSUMER.

Law Adds Two-Tenths of a Cubic Inch to His Quart of Fruit.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 23.—Only three of the laws passed by the last Legislature go into effect on Oct. 1. All amend general laws. One relates to the standard of measures. The standard of measure for strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, currants, and other small fruits is the quart. Gooseberries, plums, cherries, and cranberries are to be measured by quart in the future. The quart under the new law must contain when even full sixty-seven and two-tenths cubic inches, and the pint thirty-three and six-tenths cubic inches, and the "multiples of the quart, which when even full shall contain like multiples of sixty-seven and two-tenths cubic inches." The present standard quart is an even sixty-seven cubic inches. It is lawful now to use a short measure, but such measure must have the word "short" on the outside in half-inch letters under penalty of from $5 to $25 for each failure.

An amendment to the labor law reduces from 18 to 16 years the age of a child who may be permitted to operate machinery. No child under 16 shall be allowed to operate either a freight or passenger elevator, and no person under the age of 18 shall be permitted to operate either freight or passenger elevator running at a speed of over 200 feet a minute. No male person under 18 years old or woman under 21 years old is to be permitted or directed to clean machinery while in motion.

In Section 99 of the agricultural law the words "equine" and "bovine" are added, and provision is made for the payment of diseased animals directed by the State's veterinarians to be slaughtered. For bovine animals the sum is not to exceed $75 each, and for equine animals not to exceed $120 each. This provision is added to the law:

"If the meat of the slaughtered bovine animal shall be passed for use as food, under official regulations, the Commissioner of Agriculture is hereby authorized to sell the same and the proceeds from the sale of the meat, hide, and other marketable parts of the said animal shall be paid into the State Treasury."

WORK FOR DOCTORS IN CHINA.

Natives' Heroic Treatment of Their Own Ills Make the Job a Hard One.

Some of the difficulties that doctors trained in America and England have to contend with in China may be understood from the following account, which appears in The New York Medical Journal:

"Bret Harte once characterized the ways of the 'heathen Chinee' as 'peculiar.' In nothing are his peculiarities more manifest than in the treatment of bodily ills. The only hospitals in the empire are those connected with the foreign mission boards, or organized through their influence, and the physicians in charge have many amazing and amusing illustrations of Chinese ideas and methods.

"For instance, a boy bitten by a mad dog was lately brought to an American board hospital by his parents, who proudly informed the doctor as proof that they knew precisely what to do, that they had caught the dog, pulled out some of its hair, and steeped it in oil. This pleasant brew was then rubbed into the wound. Shades of Pasteur!

"Another patient was a man who became angry because the boil on his arm would not heal. He snatched up a great cleaver and gave it a slash. Months later he came to the mission hospital where amputation was advised. He refused, and though his arm healed, skin grafting had to follow, and the arm is useless, the cleaver having severed tendons and nerves.

"These are common, everyday illustrations of the unlimited field of service offered to a medical man in China to-day."

SQUIRRELS AND PLAGUE.

Medical Investigators Believe They Sperad Infection in California.

Since it was discovered some months ago that probably the ground squirrel of California probably had his particular flea and was thus an agent in disseminating plague, the opinion has been expressed by high medical authority that, should the plague break out where it has hitherto been unknown, it may be necessary to curtail the supply of animal food. This is because the Californians use these ground squirrels as food, and an effort is being made to put a stop to it. Inasmuch as game birds and animals are infested with fleas, as are domestic animals and poultry, it is reasonable to suppose that they could transmit the plague germs as readily as the squirrels are supposed to carry the infection.

"Passed Assistant Surgeon W. C. Rucker of the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service," says The New York Medical Journal, "has made the matter the subject of special investigation. The animal [ground squirrel] is said to resemble the ordinary gray squirrel of this part of the country, save that its body is thinner and its tail shorter; moreover, it is a burrowing animal, and in its burrow it often has a feathered companion, the 'booby owl,' which, it is thought, may carry infected fleas from burrow to burrow for long distances.

"It appears that the flesh of the ground squirrel is turned to account as an article of food. 'For many years,' says Dr. Rucker, 'a considerable proportion of the population of this region [Contra Costa County] has eaten ground squirrels at certain seasons of the year.'

"The people have been warned of the danger, and the State Board of Health has forbidden the acceptance of ground squirrels for shipment by express companies and common carriers unless they are accompanied by a certificate to the effect that they are intended for scientific purposes and unless they are contained in seaaled metallic receptacles.

SPANIARDS DENY REPORT OF DEFEAT

Marina Has Taken Souk Beni Sicar, Headquarters of Anti-Foreign Movement.

NATIVE REPORTS DIFFER

Fresh Disorders in Spain—Priest Killed Near Barcelona—Newspapers Demand Reassembling of Parliament.

MADRID, Sept. 23.—All the news, both private and official, from Melilla goes to prove that the rumor of a Spanish reverse is without foundation.

An official dispatch from Melilla says that Gen. Marina, Commander of the Spanish forces, attaches great importance to the occupation of Souk Beni Sicar, which is the meeting point of the various sections of that tribe and the headquarters of the anti-foreign movement.

The Republicans and Liberal Parliamentary groups have decided to demand the immediate restoration of the constitutional guarantee and the reassembling of Parliament.

In case of refusal they announce their intention of commencing a "profound agitation" throughout the country.

MELILLA, Morocco, Sept. 23.—A Spanish detachment reconnoitering in the environs of Souk Beni Sicar has demolished a large number of houses. The Riffians opposed the Spanish advance. The Spanish had two killed and ten wounded in Wednesday's fighting.

The Spanish artillery shelled the Moors on the slopes of Guruga, dispersing them. A number of the Moors afterward came to the Spanish camp and made submission.

OUDJA, Morocco, Sept. 23.—Native reports say that the Spanish advance toward Selouan on Sept. 20 was stopped and turned back by a strong body of Riffians. Similar reports were current during the operations at Beni Sicar, when a number of the tribesmen, fighting for the Spanish cause, were said to have deserted to the enemy, forcing the Spanish troops to retire to Melilla.

These reports probably are the basis of the rumor of a Spanish reverse.

BARCELONA, Sept. 23.—Religious rioting at Castro resulted yesterday in the killing of two men and the wounding of fifty-six others.

A religious procession, with the local priest at its head, was about to enter the church at Castro when it was attacked by an armed mob. The priest and another man were killed instantly.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—The French Government has decided to disregard the formal protest made by Mulai Hafid, the Sultan of Morocco, against Spain's course of action in the Riff country on the ground that the question concerns only the two parties interested.

No Japanese Bid for German Ships.

In regard to a rumor circulated yesterday that the Toyo Kissen Kaisha Company of Japan had bid for the Deutschland and two other steamships of the Hamburg-American Line, Julius P. Meyer, Assistant General Manager, said last night that he had heard of no attempt on the part of the Japanese to buy that company's ships.

who would cut a good figure in your pool, but I would not."

After a drive about the place Mr. Taft resumed his journey. At Grand Junction he was driven to the fair grounds and made a brief address to 12,000 people. He then went on to Montrose.

In all of his speeches to-day, including the last one, delivered to-night in Elks Park, following an illuminated parade and a display of fireworks, the President touched briefly upon the subject of irrigation. He promised at Grand Junction promptly to look into the matter of completing the Grand Valley or high-line ditch project there, which was begun a year ago by Secretary Garfield on a partnership arrangement between the Government and the land owners.

Secretary Ballinger ordered the work stopped, and was upheld in his action by Attorney General Wickersham, who declared the contract and the "Garfield currency" certificates which had been issued for work performed to be illegal.

"You look at the country in some places, and it would seem as if it was the most God-forsaken spot there was on earth," he said at Grand Junction. "Then you progress a mile or two and you see the influence of water, and it seems a paradise. It is almost like rubbing Aladdin's lamp.

"Now, what has been done here has been done largely or entirely by private enterprise, but there are a good many enterprises that involve the outlay of capital so large or require so much risk that it is probably better to have the Government help. I propose to examine the situation with as much care as possible, and if the circumstances justify it ask Congress to give us authority to take steps which will enable the settlers ultimately to reap the harvest that they have been making so long and so hard a preparation for.

"The Government of the United States must move slowly. It is a great body. It has to move with deliberation, and it has to move—or its agents have to move—within the lines of law, but ordinarily the Government ultimately does justice, if you can live until justice comes. I agre sometimes that it is a little difficult, but we shall struggle to do the best we can in Washington."

Speaking in Montrose he said:

"I have felt thrilled to-day by the description of your resources in this valley, and the truth is I understand why you go dry in these townships. It is because this air has all the effect of champagne without the bad day that follows. It is seen in the smiles of your people, in their active steps, in their enterprise.

"I have been laboring under the impression for the last four or five days that I was generally known to the people of the United States so that they could not mistake me, but it remained for a gentleman of your committee to-day, when he and I were presented, to question my identity, and I had to get—well, I won't say a certificate, but I had to protest that I was what I seemed to be.

"Now that is a good thing. A man goes along in life and thinks he has achieved a certain position, and then every once in a while he gets a jolt. He may get it from his wife—the truth is in my family that is one of the most useful functions that she performs. It is to keep your head down so as to retain your common sense and have you act without the thought that you are absorbing the whole horizon.

"But I have digressed into domestic affairs. I want to come back again to the great Gunnison tunnel. If I understand it, the figures of the investment will be about $6,000,000, and the result in land values will be about $15,000,000, a very fair profit, I think, from the work. I congratulate you on the prospect that lies before the people of this valley. There has been no exaggeration of the possibilities that are here; I like the prophecy of optimism.

"I am an optimist myself, and if you don't believe you are going to succeed, you never will. There is something about this air that makes you all optimistic. That means that you hope to do better next year, and the next year to increase that batterment, and the third year to go on doing better, and if you don't hope it you won't do it, but if you do hope it, you will."

Secretary Ballinger, who is accompanying the President, also spoke here to-night. He referred to the subject of reclamation, however only in a general way, and his talk was brief owing to a bad throat.

MRS. KOCH IN A RUNAWAY.

Saved from Injury by a Policeman After Her Driver Was Thrown Out.

Frightened by a passing automobile, a spirited black horse drawing a victoria in which Mrs. Henry C. F. Koch of 224 Lenox Avenue was riding south on Riverside Drive last night, bolted and whirled into Seventy-ninth Street, throwing out the coachman, John Goodman, when the vehicle struck an electric light pole.

The horse was on its way for the North River at a mad gallop when Mounted Policeman Henry Storjohann stopped it in a manner that drew him a round of cheers from a crowd of officers from the warships in the river.

Storjohann caught the horse's bridle, but was unable to stop it until the runaway had turned around and ran back to the Drive. Then the policeman managed to get his horse in front and stop the runaway.

Mrs. Koch was by this time badly frightened. She declined to be driven home, and, deserting the carriage, was taken home by friends in an automobile. The driver was not hurt.

A crowd of French and Italian officers from the warships in the river crowded around the policeman and shook his hand in recognition of his quick work.

FINDS WIFE A SUICIDE.

Mrs. Wachsteber Had Locked Herself in and Turned on the Gas.

Pintus Wachsteber, a book seller with a business at 128 East Twenty-third Street, returned to his home at 24 East Ninety-ninth Street at 9 o'clock last night and received no response when he rang the bell of his apartment. After trying unsuccessfully for some time to get in he asked a neighbor to let him through his apartment to the fire escape, and descending this to his own room went in through a window.

In the dining room he found his wife, Bessie, dead on a lounge. The gas was escaping from an open jet, and the closed door and tightly shut windows showed that the young woman had taken her life.

Wachsteber told the police that his wife had been nervous for some time, and that he had spent a fortune on her health.

HAIL DR. COOK AS POLE'S DISCOVERER

PROMISES PROOFS SOON

Pole Seeker Includes the Eskimos in Giving Credit for His Exploit—Dinner Delayed for His Evening Clothes.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook heard himself lauded as the discoverer of the north pole at a dinner given in his honor at the Waldorf-Astoria last night by the Arctic Club of America. There was no hesitancy in the attitude of the 1,185 men and women who sat at the tables in the Waldorf ballroom. They all seemed to believe that Dr. Cook had gone to the north pole, and did not hesitate to tell him so.

In the gathering were many old neighbors of Dr. Cook from the Bushwick section of Brooklyn. All the members of the Arctic Club now in the city also attended the dinner, and brought along as many of their friends as they could reach.

Dr. Cook, hailed as the pole's discoverer in spirited speeches, took the plaudits of his admirers modestly. He gazed down at the table before him when the throng cheered him, and almost looked as though he wished he were back looking for the pole.

In a speech, Dr. Cook caught the fancy of the gathering by referring to himself as "we," giving a suggestion of credit to the two Eskimos who went with him on his jaunt north. He did not pitch into Commander Peary, as some of his Arctic Club supporters had hoped, but he did make what was taken as a veiled allusion to Mr. Peary when he said that he was "not bound to any body of men for a license to look for the pole." He considered, he said, that he could make his proofs known when he saw fit, but gave the audience to understand that it would soon.

Tailor Delayed the Dinner.

The dinner had been set for 7:30 o'clock, and it would have started at that time had it not been for the delay of a tailor who had worked at top speed through the day to make an evening suit for the explorer, but who failed to deliver the much-needed garments in time. Dr. Cook did not take evening dress with him to the arctic regions, and he did not have a suit at Copenhagen. The tailor got the suit to the Waldorf at 7 o'clock last night, and an hour later Dr. Cook was ready for the dinner.

In the meantime the 1,185 impatient guests were waiting in the Astor Gallery adjoining the ballroom, where the dinner was held, expecting that any minute Dr. Cook would enter and hold a reception. In the centre of the room a plaster bust of the explorer, in arctic attire, had been arranged. The throng pressed around this and spread itself out to every corner of the gallery, quite uncomfortable in a temperature that was anything but arctic. Suddenly an elevator door opened to the corridor outside the gallery and Dr. Cook appeared, his arm linked in that of Admiral Winfield S. Schley, Honorary President of the Arctic Club. Dr. Cook shrank from going into the gallery and tugged at Admiral Schley, leading the way straight to the ballroom. The guests cheered, hastily formed themselves into pairs, and followed Dr. Cook to the dining room.

Guests at the Speakers' Table.

Dr. Cook was escorted to the place of honor at the main table on the dais. At his left sat Admiral Schley, and at his right Count Carl Moltke, Danish Minister to this country. Others at this table were Patrick F. McGowan, President of the Aldermen, acting in the place of Mayor McClellan, who failed to explain why he did not attend nor send his regrets; Bird S. Coler, Borough President of Brooklyn; Collector of the Port William Loeb, Dr. R. O. Stebbins, Chairman of the Dinner Committee; Charles Wake, explorer; Capt. V. Lassen of the Scandinavian-American Line; John R. Bradley, who stood behind Cook as his financial backer in the trip north; Congressman William S. Bennet, Prof. William H. Brewer of Yale, and Job E. Hedges.

The dining hall was decorated with festoons of American flags, while just over the spot where Dr. Cook sat was the polar flag adopted by the Arctic Club of America. In the boxes were many women, and most of the tables were occupied by both men and women. Dr. Cook had scarcely reached the table on the dais when there was a rush to shake his hand. The doctor, who has an aversion to shaking hands, turned to Admiral Schley as the crowd became insistent, and the Admiral came to his relief with the announcement that there would be no reception until after the dinner. So the guests went to their seats and dinner was served.

Guests Applaud Mrs. Cook.

Mrs. Cook, the explorer's wife, did not enter the hall until the coffee was brought in. She was seen going to a box in the upper tier, with Mrs. Schley and Mrs. Sullivan, a friend from Portland, Me., just as the orchestra struck up "Dixie." A round of applause went through the hall as Mrs. Cook took her seat. Mrs. Cook wore a dress of white silk, with roses at her corsage.

Just before the speechmaking began, William Gray, a theatrical manager, told the reporters that Dr. Cook had signed a contract to give lectures every night next week at Carnegie Hall. He did not say how much Dr. Cook would receive, but the contract was said to call for at least $5,000 a lecture.

Admiral Schley introduced Dr. Cook as "a man who is pre-eminently a successful explorer."

"Like all men who have achieved similar success in other fields of activity," said the Admiral, "he is challenged by those who doubt his word. That often happens after disappointment on the part of those who have failed in an undertaking. All fair-minded people believe Dr. Cook, and refuse to see any issue brought up to dim the glory of his achievement. It is envy that produces a challenge of this sort, in most instances.

"The splendid behavior of our guest under these trying circumstances has attracted the commendation of his countrymen and added immensely to his laurels. As President of the Arctic Club I believe in the statements of both Dr. Cook and Commander Peary. I believe both of them reached the north pole. They reached the spot so long cherished and so long sought. I hail the chivalrous courage of men who would go through the hardships entailed in such an undertaking.

"I do not believe that men who have the calibre necessary to take them successfully through such an undertaking are the kind of men who would give false word to the world."

Dr. Cook's Address.

This is Dr. Cook's address:

"This is one of the highest honors I ever hope to receive. You represent most of the frigid explorers of Europe and nearly all of the arctic explorers in America. Your welcome is the explorer's guarantee to the world—coming as it does from fellow-workers, from men who know and have gone through the same experience—it is an appreciation and a victory, the highest which could fall to the lot of any returning traveler.

"The key to frigid endeavor is subsistence. There is nothing in the entire realm of the arctic which is impossible to man. If the animal fires are supplied with adequate fuel there is no cold too severe and no obstacle too great to surmount. No important expedition has ever returned because of unscalable barriers or impossible weather. The exhausted food supply resulting from a limited means of transportation has turned every aspirant from his goal. This problem is a large one—too large and too complex to examine at this time. In the ages of the polar quest much has been tried and much has been learned. The most important lesson is that civilized man, if he will succeed, must bend to the savage simplicity necessary. The problem belongs to modern man, but for its execution we must begin with the food and the means of transportation of the wild man. Even this must be reduced and simplified to fit the new environment. With due respect to the complimentary eloquence of the Chairman and others, candor compels me to say that the effort of getting to the pole is not one of physical endurance, nor is it fair to call it bravery, but a proper understanding of the needs of the stomach and a knowledge of the limits of the brute force of the motive power, be that man or beast.

"Our conquest was only possible with the accumulated lessons of early ages of experience. The failures of our less successful predecessors were stepping stones to ultimate success. The real pathfinders of the pole were the early Danish, the Dutch, the English, and the Norse, Italian, and American explorers. With these worthy forerunners we must therefore share the good fruits which your Chairman has put into my basket.

Obligations to the Eskimos.

"A similar obligation is due to the wild man. The twin families of wild folk, the Eskimo and the Indian, were important factors to us. The use of pemmican and the snowshoe, which makes the penetration of the arctic mystery barely possible, have been borrowed from the American Indian. The method of travel, the motor force, and the native ingenuity, without which the polar quest would be a hopeless task, have been taken from the Eskimo. To savage man, therefore, who has no flag, we are bound to give a part of this fruit.

"To John R. Bradley, the man who paid the bills, belongs at least one-half of this fruit.

"The Canadian Government sent its expedition under Capt. Bernier 1,000 miles out of its course to help us to it. I gladly pass the basket. In returning, shriveled skin and withered muscles were filled out at the expense of Danish hospitality. And last but not least—the reception with open arms by fellow-explorers—to you and to all belongs this basket of good things which the Chairman has placed on my shoulder.

"Nothing would suit me better than to tell you to-night the complete story of our quest, but the very first telegram gives more specific data than I could hope to tell you in an after-dinner address. Therefore I shall devote the allotted time to an elucidation of certain phases of our adventure. In a few days I hope to tell the complete story to you with pictures.

No Permit Needed to Find Pole.

"One of the most remarkable charges brought out is that I did not seek a geographic license to start for the pole. Now, gentlemen, to the large public that may be a mystery, but you who know, will appreciate that no explorer can start and say that he will reach the pole. Many good men have tried before; all have failed. All who understand the problem know that success is but barely possible when every conceivable circumstance is favorable. It is only necessary to make announcement that an expedition embarks for the pole to start an undesirable bombast and flourish of trumpets. This I chose to escape. Mr. John R. Bradley furnished the funds. I shaped the destiny of the expedition. For the time being the business concerned us only. I believed then and believe now that if we succeeded there would be time enough to fly the banner of victory. You are here to-night—Mr. Bradley is here, and I am here. We have come together to celebrate that victory.

"Now, gentlemen, I appeal to you as explorers and men. Am I bound to appeal to anybody, to any man, to any body of men, for a license to look for the pole?

"Another criticism is the charge of our insufficient equipment. We have met this. You know that we had every possible aid to success in sledge traveling. A big ship is no advantage. An army of white men, who at best are novices, is a distinct hindrance, while a cumbersome luxury of equipment is fatal to progress. We chose to live a life as simple as that of Adam, and we forced the strands of human endurance to scientific limits. If you will reach the pole there is no other way. For our simple needs Mr. Bradley furnished sufficient funds. We were not overburdened with the usual aids to pleasure and comfort, but I did not start for that purpose.

"Now, as to the excitement of the press to force things of their own picking from important records into print, in reply to this I have taken the stand that I have already given a tangible account of our journey. It is as complete as the preliminary reports of any previous explorer. The data, the observations, the record, are of exactly the same character. Heretofore such evidence has been taken with faith, and the complete record was not expected to appear for years, whereas we agree to deliver all within a few months.

Clear Weather Nearly Every Day.

"Now, gentlemen, about the pole. We arrived April 21, 1908. We discovered new land along the 102d meridian, between the 84th and the 85th parallel. Beyond this there was absolutely no life and no land. The ice was in large, heavy fields, with few pressure lines. The drift was south of east, the wind was south of west. Clear weather gave good regular observations nearly every day. These observations, combined with those at the pole on April 21 and 22, are sufficient to guarantee our claim. When taken in connection with the general record you do not require this. I can see that, but this and all the other records will come to you in the due course of events.

"I cannot sit down without acknowledging to you, and to the living arctic explorers, my debt of gratitude for their valuable assistance. The report of this polar success has come with a sudden force, but in the present enthusiasm we must not forget the fathers of the art of polar travel. There is glory enough for all. There is enough to go to the graves of the dead and to the heads of the living.

"Many are here to-night. The names are too numerous to mention. Special mention for honors must be made to Greely, Schley, Melville, Peary, Fiala, Nansen, Abruzzi, Cagni, Sverdrup, Amundsen, Nordenskjold, and a number of English and other explorers."

At frequent intervals in his speech Dr. Cook was interrupted with applause. When he asked the club members if they, as explorers, felt that he was bound to anybody for a license to look for the pole, there was a loud chorus of "No!" Dr. Cook smiled.

His reference to John R. Bradley as the man who had paid the way brought out another burst of cheers. There were some calls for Mr. Bradley, but he had stepped down from the dais. He was found at a table in the rear of the hall. He was made to stand up on a chair, while the throng gave him three rousing cheers. Through all this Dr. Cook smiled happily.

Mr. McGowan referred to the freedom of the city which was voted to Dr. Cook by the Aldermen on Tuesday, and assured Dr. Cook that "nothing was too good for him in this imperial city." He called Dr. Cook an intrepid explorer, and paid him various other glowing compliments, but not once in his speech did Mr. McGowan say that Dr. Cook had been to the pole.

There was much guessing among the guests as to what Mr. McGowan meant when he remarked that he had been "advised what to say."

"I am like a man who wants to say something and can't say it," he went on, adding to the perplexity of the gathering. Dr. Cook looked up as though he wondered what it was that Mr. McGowan had in his mind.

Mr. McGowan told the guests that owing to the Hudson-Fulton Celebration some ceremonies that the city wished to give in Dr. Cook's honor would be postponed. He promised that the explorer would be made to feel that "the millions of people in this great city took a pride in good Dr. Cook."

Coler Raps the Mayor.

Bird S. Coler paid his respects to Mayor McClellan by remarking in his speech that he was "proud to see an Acting Mayor act more like a real Mayor than the real Mayor acts." This made the throng applaud vigorously. Mr. Coler declared that in Dr. Cook's lexicon there is no such word as fail.

"He has invaded the dominions of the North," said Mr. Coler, "and dragged its king from his icy throne."

Count Moltke spoke with a show of pride of the greeting given Dr. Cook by his countrymen, and called him "an illustrious son of America."

Prof. Brewer declared that Dr. Cook had popularized the "Cook julip," and various other things, which have been named after him since he sent his announcement that he had found the north pole. From the standpoint of science, he said, the discovery of the pole meant much, and he awaited with interest the observations that Dr. Cook had promised to produce.

"After 300 years of endeavor on the part of many men to reach the pole, Dr. Cook has emerged triumphant," said Prof. Brewer. "Dr. Cook, we're proud of you."

Job E. Hedges informed the diners that he was not anxious to try for the pole, but he was glad that "some one had gone up and found out what was there." He said further: "I'd rather go and do something, if I had to go at all, than to spend my time preparing for it, while some one else was making the discovery."

Charles Wake, who has tried to get to the pole himself, remarked that if he had known, two years ago, that Cook was going to find it he would have gone with him.

"I didn't know then what a great man he was," said Mr. Wake.

After the speechmaking there were three more cheers for Dr. Cook, and then a round for Mr. Bradley. Dr. Cook held a reception in the Astor Gallery after that, and had to shake more than 1,000 hands.

HOW JENSEN WAS CONVINCED.

Cook's Account and Reports of Eskimos to Rasmussen Satisfied Him.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 23.—Daugaard Jensen, the Danish Inspector of North Greenland, who came here on the same ship with Dr. Cook, says he first met Dr. Cook at Upernavik in the middle of June. During two months of close examination Dr. Cook gave details of his north pole trip, which Jensen says fully satisfied him. Jensen declares that he has become well acquainted with arctic explorations during his ten years' stay in Greenland.

The middle of August Jensen met at Egedesminde Knud Rasmussen, who had returned direct from Cape York, where, Rasmussen told Jensen, he did not meet Cook's two Eskimos, but met several others of the same tribe. These told Rasmussen about Cook's trip, their story being in close agreement with Cook's explanations to Jensen.

Jensen says he knows that Eskimos time after time tell a story in the same manner, one repeating the expressions used by the other. Therefore he felt himself fully convinced that the statement of Cook's two Eskimos had been correctly repeated and understood by Rasmussen. Thereupon Jensen made his report to the Danish Government that Dr. Cook had reached the pole.

MANY CALL ON DR. COOK.

Publishers and Lecture Agents Anxious to Book Explorer.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook spent most of yesterday, up to the time of the dinner in the evening, in his rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria. He received more than thirty callers, a dozen of whom were book publishers, who wanted to get out the volume the explorer is preparing on his trip in quest of the pole, or agents of lecturing tours or vaudeville circuits, who desired to book the doctor for engagements in cities all over the country. The explorer informed most of the lecture and vaudeville representatives that he would not be in a position until next week to decide what time he would have to appear on the platform. It is understood that Dr. Cook made a contract, when in Copenhagen, with a publishing house in this city, through its foreign representative, but which one it was Dr. Cook has not divulged.

Dr. Cook closed yesterday a contract to appear on the lecture platform next month in St. Louis, during a carnival. He will deliver two lectures, and it is said that he will receive $10,000 for them.

The explorer refused yesterday to see newspaper reporters, but sent word by his secretary, Walter Lounsdale, that he had nothing to add to the talk he gave on Wednesday afternoon at the Waldorf.

"Dr. Cook cannot see that there is anything more for him to say," said the secretary. "He answered all the questions put to him excepting when he was asked to produce the proofs of his discovery of the pole. These he expects to send to the University of Copenhagen, so the result of their inspection may be announced not later than the end of November, and perhaps sooner than that."

"Is Dr. Cook willing to meet Mr. Peary in debate?" was asked of the secretary.

"I don't know that he wants any debate," was the reply, "but I believe he has said that he is willing to meet Mr. Peary. I am not privileged, however, to speak for Dr. Cook."

Dr. Cook and his wife went for an automobile ride yesterday afternoon. The explorer was recognized as he passed through the corridor of the Waldorf and was surrounded by a throng eager to shake his hand. Dr. Cook gracefully avoided this impromptu reception and hurried to the automobile. He returned to the hotel after a drive of an hour and a half and prepared for the dinner.

SAYS RECORDS WILL TELL.

Cambridge Professor Needs Only Cook's Observations and Instruments.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Public interest in the Peary-Cook controversy is greatly diminished. The newspapers are printing installments of Dr. Cook's narrative, but are not giving it great prominence.

Sir Robert Ball, Lowndean Professor of Astronomy and Geometry at Cambridge University, in an interview today, expressed the opinion that it would be impossible to concoct evidence of a journey to the pole which would stand the test of scientific examination. He was quite prepared to belive that Dr. Cook had been at the pole, and he added, if he could have Dr. Cook's instruments and observations for a month to work at he could tell with certainty whether Dr. Cook had been there or not.

MRS. KOCH IN A RUNAWAY.

Saved from Injury by a Policeman After Her Driver Was Thrown Out.

Frightened by a passing automobile, a spirited black horse drawing a victoria in which Mrs. Henry C. F. Koch of 224 Lenox Avenue was riding south on Riverside Drive last night, bolted and whirled into Seventy-ninth Street, throwing out the coachman, John Goodman, when the vehicle struck an electric light pole.

The horse was on its way for the North River at a mad gallop when Mounted Policeman Henry Storjohann stopped it in a manner that drew him a round of cheers from a crowd of officers from the warships in the river.

Storjohann caught the horse's bridle, but was unable to stop it until the runaway had turned around and ran back to the Drive. Then the policeman managed to get his horse in front and stop the runaway.

Mrs. Koch was by this time badly frightened. She declined to be driven home, and, deserting the carriage, was taken home by friends in an automobile. The driver was not hurt.

A crowd of French and Italian officers from the warships in the river crowded around the policeman and shook his hand in recognition of his quick work.

Three Injured in a Runaway.

NEWTON, N. J., Sept. 23.—One person was seriously injured and two others were severely shaken up and bruised in a runaway accident here this evening. The injured man is David Gaugher of Ogdensburg. Both of his shoulders were dislocated and one of his arms broken.

Thought Peary Looked Hungry.

A little girl in the waiting crowd who had missed seeing him asked of a small companion who had been more lucky how the explorer looked. The small companion thought a while, and said, "He looked hungry."

Peary was met at the Maine Central Railroad Station by a special City Council committee, consisting of Mayor Woodman, Aldermen Webster and Savage, President Hall of the Common Council, and Councilmen Fahey, Hinckley, and Morrison. He was escorted to the Bangor House, where the informal luncheon was served. Mrs. Peary, with her daughter Marie and her son, Robert E., Jr., were driven to Mayor Woodman's residence, on Pine Street, where Mrs. Woodman acted as hostess.

After the luncheon the party gathered on the portico in front of the Bangor House, and Mayor Woodman, on behalf of the city, presented Commander Peary with a handsome silver loving cup. Following the presentation Peary held a reception in the parlors of the Bangor House. The loving cup is a splendid piece of workmanship. It is engraved as follows:

To Commander Robert Edwin Peary, U. S. N., in recognition of his remarkable achievement in placing the flag of the United States at the north pole April 6, 1909. Presented Sept. 23, 1909, by the City of Bangor, Me.

President Hyde of Bowdoin College, Peary's Alma Mater, had been invited to participate with the city in the welcome. He wrote the following letter to Mayor Woodman, expressing his regrets:

Hon. John Woodman, Bangor, Me.:

Dear Sir: Please accept my hearty thanks for the honor of your invitation to meet Commander Peary on Thursday. Nothing would give me greater pleasure than to unite with you and the citizens of Bangor in honoring one of our most illustrious sons, but Thursday is the day college opens, and the duties connected with opening of the college will compel me to remain in Brunswick. Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM DE W. HYDE.

Big Crowd at Waterville.

The demonstration at Waterville, the next stop after Bangor, was by far the greatest that the explorer had received since the big welcome given to him at Sydney, when he reached the Cape Breton city. A grand stand had been erected, the band of Company H of the National Guard was on hand, and as the train drew up to the station it struck up with, "Hail the Conquering Hero Comes."

Massed about the stand and station were fully 5,000 people, the throng including 1,000 school children and several hundred co-eds of Culver University. The police had opened up a lane from the The police had opened a lane from the car to the stand, and through this Peary made his way. Reaching the stand he was introduced by Mayor Reddington as "the man who discovered the north pole."

Peary made a brief address, in which he said that it was impossible to tell how deeply he was moved by this demonstration, and others given to him by the towns of his foster State.

"We have gone to the top of the world," he continued. "We have won that prize which some of the best on earth have been striving to attain for 300 years. As I told the citizens of Bangor, Maine's rock-bound coast and sturdy forests have contributed some of the strength which was needed in this undertaking."

It was curious to note the attitude of these wayside crowds in Maine. It was quite clear that they all believe in Peary and are proud to know that he has spent so much of his time in the Granite State, but invariably a big percentage of the throngs that gathered to welcome him went peering into the car windows for a glimpse of Mrs. Peary and her children, eagerly asking of them from the passengers and often mistaking some of the women on the train for the wife of the explorer.

Mrs. Peary has shown herself very little, remaining in the compartment that had been reserved for the Peary party, but Miss Marie, the sixteen-year-old "snow maiden," has taken an intense interest in the proceedings.

Shakes Hands with Thousands.

Commander Peary reached Portland to-night at 7:40, and a great assemblage, headed by Mayor Leighton of this city and Mayor Hamilton of South Portland, accorded the explorer an enthusiastic welcome.

Escorted by four companies of the Maine National Guard, a band and a procession of citizens burning redfire, the commander was taken in a carriage to the Auditorium, a large building, where a public reception took place. Thousands passed in line to grasp the explorer by the hand and congratulate him on the outcome of his last arctic voyage. On the way to the Auditorium the crowds joined enthusiastically in the cheering.

In the centre of the auditorium a raised platform had been erected. At the further end was Mayor Leighton and beside him stood Commander Peary, then Gov. Fernald, Mayor Hamilton, and President Hyde of Bowdoin College.

The members of the Governor's staff, clad in their bright uniforms and gold lace, were drawn up in a line behind the five men who did the hand shaking. A seemingly endless line of people passed up the narrow aisle to the receiving platform as fast as possible. They were able only to catch a hurried glance and quickly shake the hand of the explorer. He looked every one who shook his hand squarely in the eye and appeared to be a happy but weary man.

"How do you do?" "Thank you," "Yes," and "It's great" were his exclamations as the line steadily passed, while out on the large floor before him swayed backward and forward an ocean of humanity eager to clasp his hand.

Bending low to a little girl in her red coat and blue hair ribbons, smiling and grasping firmly the small hand of a lad with disheveled hair, and bowing respectfully to an old gray-haired woman who had braved the crush that she might shake his hand, the explorer stood before the throng for more than two hours.

"It's great," he kept repeating, first to Mayor Leighton on one side and then to Gov. Fernald on the other. "It's great; it's great."

Finally, after the crowd had been sent outside the building, Peary was escorted to the Falmouth Hotel for the banquet.

Gov. Fernald Praises Peary.

It was midnight before the dinner was over and the speechmaking began. Gov. Fernald, Chief Executive of the State, said in part:

"I am happy to add my few words to those already said in behalf of this proud and happy people, eager to do honor to this gallant man. There is not a town or city in Maine that does envy Portland this privilege. Had but the permission been given, this welcome would have been State wide, and have been of such significance that all the world would have been compelled to sit up and take notice.

"There is a saying that the prophet is never without honor save in his own country. We would have reversed that dictum and would have spelled 'Honor to Peary' in letters so big that they could have been seen above the top of old Mount Katahdin and have been imprinted on the next aurora borealis arching the skies above the north pole that Peary has certainly brought home.

"The whole of Maine cannot get into this dining hall this evening, and you made this, in a large measure, a home-greeting—the welcome of the neighbors, the townsmen, the school and college men, and the most intimately acquainted.

"It is for me to say that outside your doors clamor 700,000 of the best people on earth, eager to get in here, and join with you in a fitting tribute to one of the greatest of human achievements, and to testify to the nobility of the man who has given his life over and over again in a cause that ranks with those of Livingston and Humboldt, and who stands in the forefront of that glorious band of intrepid explorers who have opened up continents or have advanced the frontiers of civilization or knowledge. Great deeds are imperishable. A great life or a good example never dies.

Peary's Long Preparation.

"Peary's triumph was not a casual adventure. His was not merely a dash for the pole, but a campaign of long-continued preparation and hardship. For twenty years, and I do not know but for more than twenty years, he has been the type and the example of the American explorer in the Farthest North—the greatest of all that list of heroes of whom so many, alas! have been claimed to the last drop of blood by the merciless frozen north.

"Faithful and fearless, he has seen the end from the beginning, confident of ultimate success with each expedition in which he approached the goal. Science has benefited by him. He has been an example and an inspiration to the world, he has stood for American initiative and incentive. He has stood for honor and probity so that no man should doubt his slightest word.

"Here to-night, my friends, in these words, I forget and ignore all controversial issues. We discuss, or, rather, I discuss, no moot points. We are here to-night to say 'Welcome home,' to say that we are proud of the citizenship of this man in Maine, to say that by his life and effort he has endowed this State with a new jewel to set in the crown that encircles her brow, to insist that his achievement belongs, in a measure, to us as it belongs to the ages, as a product of our home life and of our educational forces in school and college, and to declare that his success in conquering the last barrier of the North Polar land and thereby doing what, to his knowledge and belief, had never been done before, ennobles us as it ennobles him."

Judge Reynolds's Tribute.

The toastmaster at the banquet was Judge Edward C. Reynolds of South Portland, a life-long friend of the Commander. In opening the speech-making he said in part:

The significance of this meeting is the accomplishment of a deed which marks an important epoch in the history of the world. But we have gathered more particularly for the purpose of extending our congratulations to a fellow-citizen and friend who, having endured great hardships, escaped great dangers, accomplished great results, has come back to the home of his youth.

Our guest of to-night has roamed from the greatest city of the New World to the greatest mystery of both worlds. And in the midst of that greatest mystery, on that spot which has been for centuries the unattained goal of the brave and daring of many nations, his feet have trod and his hands have placed the Stars and Stripes.

He has done this, fulfilling his own prophecy. He comes back to us with those strange dreams of his transformed into material realities; his fondest hopes no longer uncertain of fulfillment; his greatest ambition an accomplished fact. The victory is his alone. But the honor of it he must share with the people of these sister cities, with the citizens of this State, yes, with all of those who dwell beneath our flag, even in the distant islands of the sea.

President of Bowdoin Speaks.

William De Witt Hyde, President of Bowdoin College, Peary's alma mater, said in part:

We are all incredulous about new things unless we know the man. Those of us who knew the man, when the message came "I have made good at last. I have nailed the Stars and Stripes to the pole," said to ourselves, "That's Peary, all right." For Commander Peary showed in college the same enterprise and initiative which the world admires in him to-day.

We congratulate Commander Peary on the triumphant achievement which has crowned twenty-three years of undaunted courage, undying energy, undying enthusiasm. He has united the science of engineering, a unique personal experience, the support of chosen comrades, the co-operation of primitive races, the endurance of splendid animals; welded them all together by his indomitable will, and conquered the mightiest obstacles nature has piled across the pathway of the progress of mankind.

It is a triumph of mind over matter; of will over force. It adds a few cubits to the stature of every one of us, for it makes man at last the master of the earth he stands on, from the equator to the pole.

Speech of Portland's Mayor.

Mayor Adam P. Leighton of Portland spoke in part as follows:

The sister cities of Casco Bay are highly honored to-night by the privilege of banquetting and entertaining their former son, who has crowned a career of world-famed endeavor by planting the Stars and Stripes at the very top of the earth, which for three centuries has baffled the hopes, energies, skill, and endurance of civilized men who sought to reach it.

It is fitting that here should be his first real reception in his native land since his return from the pole, for here he passed the formative period of his boyhood and early gave evidence of that natural love of adventure which has been the basis of his persistent arctic undertakings. With local pride we have watched his career, kept in touch with his achievements, and cherished the belief that he would some day reach the great goal of his endeavor.

So when the news was flashed by wireless this month that Peary had reached the pole and nailed the American flag there we were not overwhelmed with surprise. In these days of pretension and uncertainty it is a satisfaction to us dwellers in the home of his boyhood to note that throughout the civilized world there came no expression of doubt, no question of his veracity.

We Portlanders, too, have greatly admired the devotion and loyalty of Mrs. Peary to the great object of her husband's ambition. As in the days of battle no small share of the sacrifice and hardship fell to the woman at the home; so has her life during these long years of polar quest contained its full share of sacrifice. To her as well as to the famed discoverer we should extend our hearty congratulations.

Mayor Hamilton's Speech.

Mayor Fred G. Hamilton of South Portland said in his speech:

This reception in honor of one of South Portland's sons has proved a popular as well as a municipal demonstration. It does not matter whether he was the first to reach the goal of his ambition and set his foot on the apex of the globe, or the second to perform this miraculous feat. It is Robert E. Peary whom we honor. It is the dedicating of his life, of his manhood's efforts to this aspiration and endeavor, that command applause.

We know he has discovered the pole, because he has said so. We in South Portland and Portland ask for no further proof than this. He has planted the Stars and Stripes on the very top of the earth, and because he is of good New England stock he is physically able to go through the hardships necessary to accomplish this wonderful feat. We want to show him by this reception that we certainly believe in him, and will look with interest for his full report of his conquest of the hitherto undiscovered north.

His home city of South Portland welcomes him back from the frozen north in his own city and State because he has achieved fame and, I hope, fortune, by being the recognized discoverer of the north pole.

There were so many speakers at the banquet that it was nearly 1 o'clock before Commander Peary was introduced to a somewhat tired assemblage. When he was finally introduced there was a storm of cheers that lasted for a full ten minutes. He said:

Peary Deeply Touched.

"You know as do I that to-day has been a white-letter day for me. This splendid demonstration in this city, every foot of which I knew in my boyhood days, this splendid gathering here, that striking loyalty from the Governor straight from the shoulder, the fine tribute from Mayor Leighton to Mrs. Peary, who has endured as much as I in this effort, have touched my heart as they will touch hers. The words of Mayor Hamilton were a source of pleasure. From President Hyde you have listened to a clear enunciation of the meaning of some of the things in regard to the attainment of the pole.

"It is too big a thing for any egotism, and, irrespective of any individualism, it is the union of the Stars and Stripes, and all it stands for, with the top of the earth, that has been accomplished.

"I have been asked what is the scientific value of the discovery of the north pole. There are some things about it that are a great deal greater than the gathering of a few additional data about the earth. As long as there was a part of the earth undiscovered it was a reproach to humanity and a challenge to civilization. Another thing, it has accredited to the United States another milestone in history. The way the pole has been enveloped in mystery for 300 years, it surely will be recognized as another milestone in history.

"Another fact is the satisfaction that at last a man, in spite of every obstacle, has made good. [Cheers.] Again, gentlemen, I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the courtesies of to-night."

Toastmaster Reynolds then presented Mr. Peary with a loving cup in behalf of the citizens of the sister cities "in recognition of his achievement in nailing the Stars and Stripes to the north pole."

"Gentlemen," responded the Commander, "permit me with the assistance of this loving cup, in spirit to drink the health of the State of Maine and yourselves. Again, gentlemen, I thank you, most deeply, in words I cannot express."

HUBBARD HAS EVIDENCE.

May Be Made Public After Conference with Peary.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Sept. 23.—Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, President of the Peary Arctic Club, held a conference today at Bangor with Commander Robert E. Peary and returned here to-night, bringing with him some of the preliminary data and records which are to be used to maintain the position of the explorer in the Cook controversy.

These records will be carefully considered within the next few days, and Gen. Hubbard and Commander Peary will confer here early next week. This conference may result in an announcement making public any information in the possession of Commander Peary concerning Dr. Cook.

Peary has placed his case in Gen. Hubbard's hands, and a meeting of the officers of the Peary Arctic Club will be called at the earliest possible moment by Gen. Hubbard. The meeting will be held in New York.

This action will be taken because Gen. Hubbard believes that Commander Peary's interests will benefit by an early submission of his records and observations of the trip to the pole.

"Concerning Dr. Cook," said Gen. Hubbard to-night, "I would say let him submit his records and data to some competent authority and let that authority draw its own conclusions from the notes and records taken in the field. Dr. Cook is reported as having said that he wants sixty days to go over his records, in order to work out his conclusions to show that he has been to the pole.

"It is for the scientific tribunal—whether the Royal Geographical Society of Denmark or some other society—to say what conclusions have been reached by consideration of the records. All that is wanted is the data and records made in the arctic. Competent authority will determine from them where Dr. Cook has been.

"I may say that Commander Peary will also be expected to turn over his data and observations for the same purpose. What proof Commander Peary has that Dr. Cook was not at the pole may be submitted later."

While Peary and Gen. Hubbard will discuss what societies the Commander's data shall be laid before, the Coast and Geodetic Survey at Washington will examine the records in an official capacity, inasmuch as Commander Peary is an officer of the navy attached to that bureau at present.

HENSON GETS A DUCKING.

Peary's Colored Companion Falls Overboard as the Roosevelt Sails.

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 23.—The arctic steamer Roosevelt, in which Commander Peary journeyed to the Far North, left North Sydney at midnight last night on her journey to New York. Hundreds of steam craft whistled their farewell as the Roosevelt slowly made her way down the harbor.

As a further act of courtesy Capt. Dickson of the Canadian Government steamer Tyrian took the pilot's position on the bridge of the Roosevelt and guided her for several miles out of the harbor. He was taken off in a steam launch of the Tyrian, on board of which was Capt. Hensen of the United States auxiliary steamer Grampus.

Shortly before the Roosevelt pulled out, Matthew Henson, Commander Peary's colored bodyguard, leaned over the side of the Roosevelt to shake hands in farewell with Chief Engineer Swicker of the Tyrian, who was standing on the deck of a launch.

Swicker has a grip like a vise, and he held fast to Henson's hand as the Roosevelt swung away. Henson could not release his hold and he was drawn over the side of the Roosevelt and fell into the sea.

He was fished out, however, by Swicker, and half an hour later the Roosevelt was out of sight on her way south.

LEAVES STUFFED SEAL BEHIND.

Camera Also Found in Car Peary Occupied During the Night.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept. 23.—Commander Peary unknowingly left a reminder of his visit here, which, however, will be returned to him. After the Peary party had gone there were found in the sleeping compartment of the train on which he arrived here this morning a small stuffed white seal and a camera, which had been overlooked apparently in changing cars.

It was thought that they must be of more than ordinary value and interest to the explorer, else he would not have had them with him, and a telegram was sent to him notifying him of the find.

An answer was received requesting that they be sent to him at Eagle Island, Me.

WILL CUTS OFF CONTESTANTS.

Penalty Provided in Instrument Which Divides J. N. A. Griswold's $25,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 23.—The will of the late John N. A. Griswold, who died here last week, was offered for probate to-day. The reported value of the estate is $25,000,000.

The will, which stipulates that any one of the legatees who contests it shall be cut off with $10, appoints the testator's nephews, George G. Frelinghuysen and Frederick Frelinghuysen of New York, executors; gives to his daughters, Mrs. John M. Forbes of New York and Mrs. H. R. O. Cross, wife of Major Cross of the British Army, $125,000 each; sets aside a trust fund of $50,000 for Mrs. Richard C. Derby of Newport and her descendants, and leaves the sum of $25,000 to Edward Henshaw, who had been Mr. Griswold's business representative for many years.

The will then provides that the residue of the estate be divided into two equal parts and conveyed to the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company of the City of New York as Trustee, the income from one part to go to Mrs. Forbes, and the income of the other part to go to Mrs. Cross.

To a niece, Anna McConnell, daughter of the testator's uncle, Edward H. Cunningham, $25,000 is given, and in case of contest the portion of the contestant which reverts to the estate is to be divided among the others named in the will. There were no public bequests.

ROEBUCK'S WIDOW CUT OFF.

Under the Will She Is to Receive Only $10 a Week in Allowance.

Surrogate Ketcham of Brooklyn admitted to probate yesterday the last of three wills made by the late Samuel Roebuck, a manufacturer of window screens, whose eccentric actions in the latter years of his life caused his name to figure frequently in the public prints.

The will admitted by the Surrogate is dated July 17, 1908. Two other wills were made by Mr. Roebuck, in 1898 and 1906, respectively. The Surrogate decided that at the time the last will was drawn Mr. Roebuck was of sound mind. By this will Roebuck's widow, who was his second wife, is to receive an allowance of only $10 a week. The residue of the estate is to go to the children of his eldest daughter, Elizabeth Bird of Northampton, England. It is believed that the widow and the children of the testator who are not named in the last will, will appeal from the decision of the Surrogate.

Widow Gets J. B. Erhardt's Estate.

The will of Joel B. Erhardt, ex-Police Commissioner and Collector of the Port, was filed for probate yesterday. His wife, Belle J. Erhardt, of 120 West Fifty-seventh Street, receives his property at Ketchawan, Westerchester County, known as The Farm, $2,500 in cash, and the balance of the estate during her lifetime. It is then to go to his daughters, Antoinette E. Irving and Isabelle Erhardt, and his stepson, Jewett Hallowell.

No Japanese Bid for German Ships.

In regard to a rumor circulated yesterday that the Toyo Kissen Kaisha Company of Japan had bid for the Deutschland and two other steamships of the Hamburg-American Line, Julius P. Meyer, Assistant General Manager, said last night that he had heard of no attempt on the part of the Japanese to buy that company's ships.

GAYNOR FORCING TAMMANY'S SLATE

Leaders Inclined to Resent His Zeal in Choosing His Running Mates.

SECOND PLACE IN DOUBT

Murphy Aims to Make Certain of Giving the Controllership to "His Man."

Despite the repeated declarations of the Tammany leaders that the question of the nomination of Justice Gaynor for Mayor is still being held in abeyance and the frequent expression of the opinion from organization men that "it MAY be Gaynor," information was obtained by THE TIMES yesterday which shows positively that at present at least the matter is regarded as settled.

Things may happen between now and the Democratic City Convention next week, but one thing is sure, and that is that to-day the Justice himself is confident that he is as good as nominated. So strong is his conviction on this point that he is taking an active interest in the selection of the men to run on the ticket with him.

The Justice is in daily communication with various Tammany leaders and influential men in the organization with regard to the slate and is freely expressing his likes and dislikes for suggested names. In fact, it was strongly intimated yesterday by one of the most important of the Tammany leaders that Justice Gaynor's activity along these lines is getting to be a little too zealous for the sympathies of the organization.

A serious situation has consequently arisen which may materially damage Justice Gaynor's chances for the nomination and cause Leader Murphy to pick another man. It is frankly admitted by Tammany men that the organization could have a much more desirable man than Justice Gaynor in the City Hall for its selfish interests.

One of the principal reasons for Leader Murphy's leaning toward the Brooklyn jurist is that with him at the head of the ticket the Controllership, which in the eyes of the organization is almost if not quite as important as the Mayoralty, would naturally fall to Manhattan and the personal dictation of Mr. Murphy. Now it develops that the Justice has rather emphatically submitted to Mr. Murphy the name of the man that he wishes to run with him in the second place on the ticket. This man is Michael J. Drummond, Chairman of the Board of Trustes of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank. Mr. Drummond is, moreover, a powerful figure to contend with.

Thomas M. Mulry, President of the Emigrant Bank, is one of the most substantial men identified with Tammany Hall. Actively connected with a score of charities and large public interests, he has an acquaintance and host of friends which extend all over the country, and into all political beliefs. His intimate friends and admirers include Theodore Roosevelt, Gov. Hughes, William Jennings Bryan, and, in fact, nearly every distinguished man in private and public life in this country to-day.

Mr. Murphy respects and seeks his opinion as he probably does that of no other man in the city. Not only did he urgently request Mr. Mulry to accept the Tammany nomination for Mayor, but representatives of the late fusion movement also approached him to learn if he would allow his name to be considered by them.

Mr. Drummond naturally has the confidence and support of Mr. Mulry. Therefore, outside of his personal qualifications and standing he presents an added importance in the situation. But, on the other hand, Mr. Murphy wants the Controller to be "his man." He is desirous of naming for the place some one who will be with him from the day he goes into office until he retires. Hence, there is a serious hitch.

It is understood that Mr. Murphy has a leaning toward the selection of either George J. Gillespie, President of the United States Title Guaranty and Indemnity Company, or John G. O'Keefe, a retired banker and Trustee of Bellevue Hospital and other charities. The friends of Frank W. Smith, Chief Accountant and Bookkeeper of the Department of Finance, and a stanch Sullivan man, have not given up hope, however, and are growing more active every day. They are dinning their cause into Mr. Murphy's ears at every opportunity.

Controller Metz will naturally not be renominated with Justice Gaynor at the head of the ticket. If, however, Justice Dowling should be selected, his name would crop up. He will be presented to the convention in any event by Senator McCarren, and has intimated that if he is not renominatel he will run independently. Senator McCarren made his first public comment last night at the Hoffman House on Justice Gaynor's candidacy.

"He is very strong in Brooklyn," said Mr. McCarren, "and I believe he is so throughout the city."

"Do you think he would be elected if he is nominated?" he was asked.

"I do."

Many names for the nomination for District Attorney are being considered by Mr. Murphy. At the present time Martin W. Littleton seems to head the list. He is now a resident of Manhattan and would be eligible for the nomination. Other suggestions are William B. Ellison, James Osborne, George Gordon Battle, P. J. Britt, and Bartow S. Weeks. Mr. Ellison appears to stand next in line behind Mr. Littleton. He was at one time Corporation Counsel and personal adviser of Mayor McClellan and has the support of the Sullivans.

Mr. Jerome's name has been eliminated. There was a strong intimation yesterday that he may not run at all, but will withdraw.

President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen will undoubtedly be renominated. He has a large following throughout the city.

Justice Truax will probably be renominated. Many names are being considered for the other two vacancies this year. Among them are Eugene Philbin, formerly District Attorney; George F. Roesch, City Court Judge Delahanty, former Corporation Counsel Delany, and Herman Joseph.

The question of Borough President is still open.

POLICEMAN ARRESTED.

O'Brien Drew a Revolver on a Fellow-Member of the Force.

In the Bedford Avenue Police Court, Williamsburg, yesterday Detective Christopher O'Brien of Manhattan Headquarters was arraigned on a charge of intoxication. On last Wednesday night at the Brooklyn plaza of the Williamsburg Bridge O'Brien had had some trouble with the conductor of a Fourteenth Street car crossing the bridge to Williamsburg, and he was accused of trying to assault the man.

Policeman Bedell of the Bedford Avenue Station noticed the disturbance and advised O'Brien to go about his business. O'Brien, whose identity was not then known, attacked Bedell, and the two had a fight. A crowd that gathered quickly fled when O'Brien drew a revolver.

Bedell used his club and succeeded in disarming and arresting the detective. Charles Terry, the police surgeon, later examined O'Brien, and said he was suffering from the effects of "an intoxicating drug."

Magistrate O'Reilly paroled O'Brien in the custody of Capt. [illegible]

ferred to the disappointed and disgruntled Independence League representatives who, after failing to grab half the Republican ticket in Kings, left the Fusion conferrees' quarters in the small hours of yesterday morning.

Mr. Woodruff, in taking the chair, said he felt justified in predicting that there would be a fusion of all the anti-Tammany organizations except the Independence League in favor of the city ticket nominated by the Republicans. He then went on to make it clear to the convention why the Independence League bolted the Fusion conference.

Mr. Woodruff paid his respects to Tammany Hall, and then emphasized the necessity of selecting not only strong candidates for city offices, but for Borough President as well, to safeguard the Board of Estimate.

"It is upon the control of that Board Tammany has its eyes always fastened, and toward which it always stretches out the enveloping paw of the Tammany tiger," said Mr. Woodruff. "Tammany stands to-day, and will stand this Fall, for what it has always stood. It makes no difference who it nominates for Mayor.

"Edward M. Shepard, an able, high-minded, independent Brooklyn citizen—not even a judge—succumbed to its malign influences eight years ago, and had the ticket he headed been elected, would have been responsible for a continuance of Tammany's control of the Board of Estimate and Borough Presidencies by which the Van Wyck administration was able to rob the people of New York right and left during the first four years of Tammany's control of the Greater City."

OTTO T. BANNARD,
Republican Nominee for Mayor.

The first spontaneous burst of applause came when Mr. Woodruff referred to Borough President Cromwell of Richmond as teh only Borough President of those as the four years ago who neither has been investigated nor holds his office by virtue of Aldermanic replevin.

An Appeal to Democrats.

In conclusion Mr. Woodruff said:

"How can those Democrats who recently assembled at Saratoga to rehabilitate their party, fail to seize this opportunity to rid the Democratic Party of the baneful influences of Tammany? We appeal to all public-spirited Democrats to join in this mighty movement to which the Committee of One Hundred, the Citizens Union, and other associations of independent citizens have so splendidly contributed for the redemption of the city."

Senator Josiah T. Newcomb presented the platform, as Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions. It was said that Mr. Hedges, while he still was in the field for the Mayoralty, lent a hand in building the platform. Interest in it centred in the transit plank, which was copied from the declaration of principles adopted by the Fusion Conference. The platform was adopted unanimously, and the Convention then proceeded to make nominations.

The name of Mr. Bannard was presented to the convention by John Henry Hammond, formerly leader of the Twenty-Ninth Assembly District, where the Mayoralty nominee lives. The delegates rose in their seats and cheered at the first mention of Mr. Bannard's name. In nominating him Mr. Hammond said:

"New York is the Empire city of the Empire State of the greatest country the world has ever seen; yet, in spite of its greatness, the administration of the affairs of this city is a disgrace. The municipal government is the sore spot of politics. It is the duty of every citizen to vote for a man who can give the city an administration of which to be proud

"Mr. Bannard is the man to do this. He is a man of mature judgment, experienced, clean, liberal-minded; he can unite in his support all those who wish for good government, and his name is a guarantee that he will carry out the onerous conditions imposed by the office.

"Under the wise leadership of Mr. Woodruff and Mr. Parsons the party has determined to sink the advantage of having a political machine and make a sacritice for the good of all. The present crisis demands a man who is willing to sacrifice his private interests for the public good.

"Mr. Bannard came here thirty years ago as a lawyer, and he has grown to a high position in the community. He is thoroughly acquainted with conditions of finance, is a keen judge of men and has wit, humor and a smile as broad as President Taft's. He is democratic, approachable, and unassuming. His name spells victory, and under his leadership every faction will unite."

Unanimous Vote for Bannard.

Charles F. Murphy of Brooklyn seconded Mr. Bannard's nomination in a short speech setting forth the candidate's virtues. Borough President Cromwell also made a speech in which he praised Mr. Bannard highly. Mr. Cromwell said he had known the Republican nominee intimately for over thirty years, and he was sure he would lead the Republican Party in the city to victory. Senator Brough moved that the convention cast one ballot, making Mr. Bannard's nomination unanimous and it was carried with a whoop.

Thomas P. Peters, editor of The Brooklyn Times, presented the name of Mr. Prendergast for Controller. Secretary of State Samuel Koenig seconded the nomination, and on a resolution presented by Thomas McCall the convention made it unanimous.

Assemblyman William M. Bennett made the nominating speech for John Purroy Mitchel for President of the Aldermen. "Mr. Mitchel is not only a member of the present administration, but one who stands up out of the mire and filth of that administration which we propose to attack," said Mr. Bennett. He outlined Mr. Mitchel's work as Commissioner of Accounts, and added: "The Democratic Party in this city has been indicted, tried, and found guilty by one of its own members, John Purroy Mitchel."

Florence J. Sullivan, who took pains to inform the gathering that he was no relation of the Democratic Sullivans, seconded the nomination. "Instead of Tammany saying to Mr. Mitchel, 'Well done, good and faithful servant,'" said Mr. Sullivan, "it says, 'Good and faithful servant, beat it!'" B. W. B. Brown moved to make the nomination unanimous, and this was done.

That finished the nominations, and a resolution offered by Collin H. Woodward naming a committee to fill vacancies was passed. On the committee are Timothy L. Woodruff, Herbert Parsons, Collin H. Woodward, William Halpin, Jacob Brenner, Theodore P. Wilsnack, and John Timlin, Jr.

On the Notification Committee are Herbert Parsons, J. H. Hammond, Abraham Gruber, Edward H. Healey, Frank K. Bowers, Joseph Levenson, Michael J. Healy, John Q. McEwen, Joseph Nejedly, Theron H. Burden, Reuben L. Gledhill, Rubin L. Hascall, William Schnitzpan, and George Cromwell.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Favors City-Owned Subways, Universal Transfers and 3-Platoon System.

The platform adopted by the Republican Convention resembled, especially in its transit plank, the one put forward at the fusion conference on Wednesday night, which declared for the city ownership of all future subways. The amendment, which the Independence League substituted, however, declaring that "all future subways should be built, owned, and either effectively controlled or operated by the city," was expunged. The plank declaring for proper and sufficient school facilities and the three-platoon police system were also enthusiastically received.

The first half of the platform is taken up almost entirely with a denunciation of Tammany Hall. "The record of Tammany Hall during the past six years is its own condemnation," the platform declares. "Its two Borough Presidents have been removed from office. The department pay rolls bear the names of the living and the dead, each frequently as useless as the other. The city's expenditures, whether under the form of executory contracts, or the purchase of supplies, have borne the added tribute which Tammany Hall extorts from the public funds. Public improvements for private advantage have been its practice. Useless offices have been created and filled by useless men. Legal rights have been granted as personal favors, and wrongs condoned as the price of allegiance. In this free country government is an institution to live under, not on."

The transit plank says:

> Immediate steps should be taken to give the whole city proper transit facilities. Not only must the present disgraceful conditions of transportation be relieved, but a comprehensive and adequate system of transit development which will meet the needs of every section of the city must be adopted and built without further delay.
> All future subways must be owned by the city. They should be built with the city's funds, construction by private capital not being permitted except when it is positively demonstrated that the city is financially unable to keep up with the demands for transit extension, and then only on terms that will preserve strict and effective municipal control.
> The beneficial system of street railway transfers has been practically nullified. We favor such action as will secure as speedily as possible the re-establishment of a universal transfer system. The transportation facilities in the city must be utilized by the people and not for stock jobbing or speculation.
> A subway built by private capital to be owned by the city is a city work. Existing laws prescribe eight hours of labor and the prevailing rate of wages for labor in all city works. No distinction should be made between the city works carried out with the assistance of private capital and those done with city funds. No such distinction is made in other city contracts. None should be made in contracts for the construction of the city's subways.
> The safety of the city depends on an intelligent and moral electorate, and this can best be assured by proper education. Places should be provided in public schools for every child of school age. Half time insures half scholar, and half scholar half citizen.

Regarding what it terms "the profligate and unnecessary expense incident to proceedings under the present administration of acquiring property for public use," the platform advocates a change of procedure "which will enable the city to so acquire property as to insure the awarding of accurate compensation and avoid the unnecessary expense of present methods consequent upon adjournments and the reward of political favors."

The platform calls on all voters of all political faiths to insure an honest election by hunting down and punishing election frauds.

"Selections for judicial positions," it goes on, "should be made for fitness alone, as the administration of justice in the courts of minor jurisdiction affects vitally the social welfare of a large portion of the community."

The two last planks indorse an eight-hour day for all employes of the city and the three-platoon system for the police force.

WHO THE NOMINEES ARE.

Mr. Bannard Is a Banker Identified with Many Large Interests.

Otto T. Bannard, the Republican nominee for Mayor, is one of the best-known trust company men in New York. Besides being President of the New York Trust Company, he is a Director in about a dozen other financial concerns, including the Provident Loan Society of New York, of which he is President and Trustee. This is known as the "Philanthropic pawnshop."

He was born in Brooklyn on April 28, 1854. Although he lives at 30 East Fifty-eighth Street, the fact that he was born in Brooklyn gained him the support of Timothy L. Woodruff. Mr. Bannard is an organization Republican, and is Treasurer of the Republican County Committee. In 1876 he obtained his degree from Yale, and two years later was graduated in law from Columbia. After practicing law for several years he became President of the Dolphin Jute Mills of Paterson, with offices in this city. In 1893 he was made President of the Continental Trust Company, and several years later accepted his present place with the New York Trust Company.

Among his close personal friends Mr. Bannard counts Herbert Parsons, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, and President Taft. He is a member of the University, Union, Century, Yale, Republican, and Midday Clubs. He is also a member of the Republican Club of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District, in which district he votes.

The only public office Mr. Bannard ever held was that of Commissioner of the Board of Education under Mayor Strong. It had been feared that his multifarious duties as a financier would stand in the way of his accepting any public office again. His standing in the financial world secured for him the appointment as one of the three receivers of the Knickerbocker Trust Company when that institution got into financial difficulties during the panic of October, 1907. He refused to serve on the plea that the work entailed by the Presidency of the New York Trust Company engaged all his time.

It is said that it was the skillful handling of this particular piece of work that commended itself to Justice Clarke when he appointed him to a similar position with the Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Mr. Bannard besides being President of the New York Trust Company and the Provident Loan Society, is Secretary and Treasurer of the American Passimetre Company; Director of the Polphin Jute Mills, Director of the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company, Director of the Mahoning & Chenango Railway and Light Company, Director of the Metropolitan Water Company of Kansas City, Director of the New Hampshire Electric Railways, Director of the Niagara Fire Insurance Company, Director of the Securities Company, and the Yale Building Company. Besides these, Mr. Bannard holds the Vice Presidency of the Charity Organization Society, and is a Trustee of the United Charities Building.

In the early part of 1906 he was appointed receiver for the Merchants' Trust Company, which was liquidated without loss to depositors after the suspension that appeared at first to involve heavy losses.

Mr. Bannard is a bachelor.

Mr. Prendergast's Career.

William H. Prendergast is 41 years old. He was born in Manhattan and has lived since childhood in Brooklyn. He now lives at 500 Fifth Street there. He was educated in the public schools of Brooklyn and early in life took part in Brooklyn politics. Thirteen years ago he was an unsuccessful candidate for Congressman from the Sixth District, Brooklyn. Two years later he was again nominated for Congress, and again defeated. He was formerly Secretary and President of the Credit Men's Association of the United States, and for many years has been a prominent member of the Knights of Columbus. For two years he has been County Register. When he was elected to this office he ran far ahead of his ticket, and has always been considered by Brooklyn politicians a good vote getter. He has always been more or less independent of party dictation and has been an outspoken adherent of Gov. Hughes.

Mr. Mitchel Young in Politics.

John Purroy Mitchel, nominee for President of the Aldermen, is one of the youngest men to receive such an honor at the hands of a great party in the history of politics in the city. He is barely 30 years old. He is an independent Democrat, and comes of a family prominent in Tammany politics.

It was about three years ago that he first broke into public life, being appointed Commissioner of Accounts by Mayor McClellan, which place he still holds. Up to that time he was practically unknown.

Corporation Counsel William B. Ellison selected him as special assistant to prosecute the charges against Borough President Ahearn.

Since then two other Borough Presidents have fallen under his official scrutiny. In the case of Louis F. Haffen, Borough President of the Bronx, a similar fate befell him to that of Mr. Ahearn. Mr. Mitchel is now engaged in investigating Bird S. Coler, Brooklyn's Borough President. He has been called the "inquisitor of the McClellan administration."

Mr. Mitchel is a graduate of Columbia University, and a lawyer. On April 3 of this year he married Miss Alice Child, daughter of Franklin D. Child of 7 West Ninety-second Street. He is a nephew of Henry D. Purroy.

HARVIER NOMINATES GAYNOR.

Which, Says He, Does Not Mean an Alliance with Tammany.

Ernest Harvier's Democratic Union, which filed its certificate as a distinct municipal party with the Bureau of Elections a couple of weeks ago, choosing for its party emblem a picture of the Brooklyn Bridge, took the bull by the horns in Lyric Hall last night and nominated Justice William J. Gaynor for Mayor; John J. Hopper, the Harlem Independence Leaguer for Controller, and William C. Redfield, ex-Commissioner of Public Works in Brooklyn and now a Committee of One Hundred man, for President of the Board of Aldermen.

Asked why his party did not choose its candidates for city offices out of its own ranks Mr. Harvier said that his party wanted to put out a ticket which would have "wide, popular appeal." While expressing disgust over the Fusion deadlock, he hoped that his party would be able to arrange some sort of an understanding with the Independence League.

"Since Tammany Hall, through trickery, has pocketed the Independence League organization, we hope that the individual Independence Leaguers will flock over to our party and vote under our regularly registered emblem," one of Mr. Harvier's subordinates added.

A committee of seven was appointed to confer with similar committees of the Independence League, the Republicans, and "other political organizations," to choose a borough and county ticket.

Mr. Harvier himself put Gaynor in nomination. In his speech he denied strenuously that the naming of the Brooklyn Supreme Court Justice meant any alliance between his organization and Tammany Hall.

"Gaynor is the one mayoralty candidate who stands conspicuously against everything that Tammany is for," said he.

Neither Mr. Harvier nor any other of the speakers intimated that Justice Gaynor or the other candidates had been consulted as to their willingness to run on the Democratic Union ticket.

Mt. Vernon Republicans Name Clark.

The Mount Vernon Republican City Convention met last evening and nominated Frederick W. Clark for Mayor, Jesse Holdredge for Controller, Charles Straub for Receiver, and W. C. Andrews for City Treasurer.

Nominate Yard for Assembly.

OSSINING, N. Y., Sept. 23.—The Democrats of this, the Third Assembly District of Westchester, to-day nominated Wilson R. Yard of Pleasantville for Assemblyman.

SYMPATHIZE WITH MR. LOEB.

Two Letters to the Collector Paying Tribute to Customs Politeness.

Collector Loeb has receiver two letters complimenting him on the politeness and efficiency of the Customs Inspectors on the piers, and declaring that the writers saw no offensive searching of passengers at the gate.

Mr. Loeb's first letter is from Albert Bushnell Hart, Professor of History in Harvard University. He writes:

19 Craigie Street,
Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 16, 1909.

Dear Mr. Loeb: As an arriving passenger on the steamer Berlin, Sept. 14, I wish to protest against the treatment accorded us not by the Inspectors, but by the New York papers, which had filled the ship with accounts of the heartless and insulting way in which passengers were received in dock. This is the fourth time I have landed in New York, and I have never been treated with so much courtesy and good temper. We were a visible prey for the Inspectors, being a family of four persons with eleven trunks and eighteen small pieces, but the Inspectors, though they did their duty opening every piece and taking all precaution against the secretion of dutiable articles, seemed to think that we were truthful people, who had taken pains to declare what we thought to be dutiable. The man was busied several hours with us, and if he is a sample of your force the criticisms of the press are most unjustified. Of all the cabin passengers near us I heard complaint from only one. As a student of administrative methods I was much interested in the system, the ease of getting information, and the quickness and skill with which the large ship's company was cleared.

You and your officers have been subjected to so much abuse on this score that it seemed only fair to give this bit of personal testimony. Cordially yours,

ALBERT BUSHNELL HART.

The second letter from Congressman Ebenezer J. Hill, representing the Fourth District, Connecticut, says:

Norwalk, Conn., Sept. 22, 1909.

The Hon. William Loeb, Jr., Collector of Customs, New York City:

My Dear Mr. Loeb: I went down to New York last night and got to the pier of the Oceanic this morning at 7:55. The passengers were just coming ashore. I spent two hours on the pier, and at that time the work was practically finished. I introduced myself to the officer in charge, whose name I do not recall, and asked him as to the number of Inspectors. He told me that there were seventy of them. That there were 600 first and second class cabin passengers on the ship. As the work was practically finished in two hours, or 120 minutes, it meant the disposal of five passengers a minute. I complimented him upon the expedition of the work and upon the manifest courtesy and politeness of all of the Inspectors there present.

I did not see a single case where any passenger could have any reason to complain. The only criticism that could possibly be made was the crowded condition of the pier, by reason of the fact that when the Oceanic was being discharged another ship was on the other side of the pier, and of course each ship was entitled to half the space, which made it rather crowded for the incoming one; but just as quick as the other ship went out the ropes were removed and the crowded condition was promptly relieved. Again and again I noticed that the Inspectors examining trunks and taking out trays, were polite and considerate, and after the examination was made, helped replace the trays in good order.

I want to compliment you on the result of your work, so far as bringing about a very manifest improvement over what I have seen in years gone by in the repeated and frequent arrivals which I have made in this port. I was extremely gratified with the result of my visit, and shall take pains to repeat it next month, when my daughter comes home on the Hamburg-American Line. I particularly paid attention to the passing through the gate at the head of the pier as the passengers were going away, and could see nothing whatever with which any person could take offense or consider themselves in any way embarrassed. With kind regards, I am very truly yours,

E. J. HILL.

Well Treated at the Customs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In justice to the Custom House Inspectors and apropos of the many letters I see in your columns adversely criticising them, I would like to report my own experience, which is entirely favorable.

The utmost politeness was shown me, and certainly no overzealousness in examination. I was obliged to wait some time for my trunk, and had the opportunity of noting procedures all about me, and the same care and consideration were given every one.

DIANA BELAIS.

Grape-Nuts
FOR THOSE WHO LIVE BY

HEARST LEAGUERS HAD A LITTLE PLOT

Allowed Tammany to Swallow Them to Escape from an Old Gaynor Pledge.

WON'T HAVE A FULL TICKET

Slate Will Probably Include Only Candidates for County and Borough Offices.

After having its Manhattan organization summarily swallowed by Tammany Hall at the primaries on Tuesday and then declared out of the fusion movement by its leaders, the Independence League is in a peculiar and anomalous situation. Although its leaders talked freely enough yesterday they would make no public announcement of what part they will play in the campaign and where they expect to stand.

Beyond the continuance of the preparation of affidavits to be used in the legal fight on the happenings of Tuesday, little action was taken at the league headquarters. It developed, however, that there is more behind its quiet acquiescence to the purloining of its organization by Tammany than appeared on the surface. The opinion was expressed yesterday by those interested and concerned in the matter that "it is really the best way out of the difficulty after all."

Justice Gaynor not long ago strongly intimated in an interview that Mr. Hearst had given him a solemn pledge of his personal support and that of his organization in the campaign this year. This being the case it can be easily seen that Mr. Hearst and the league were placed in a delicate situation when the fusion conferrees with whom they had joined forces definitely turned down Justice Gaynor.

In this is found a reasonable explanation of the peculiar things that have been happening to the league in the last few days. Furthermore, tne actual strength of the Hearst men was a very doubtful thing, and it was generally conceded that both the leader personally and the organization as a whole would be in a much safer position if they did not stand up and let the public count noses with it this year.

While the actual decision has not yet been made, it appeared from conversation with the league leaders yesterday that it will not nominate a complete ticket. It will undoubtedly confine itself to placing in the field only a slate for county and borough offices, headed by Clarence J. Shearn for District Attorney.

Tammany will contral the Manhattan conventions of the League and may possibly be able to wrest the City convention out of the grasp of the League leaders. Consequently, whatever real Hearst nominations are made must go on the ticket by petition. All this costs money, and the wider the activities of the organization are extended, and the more offices included by it just so much more sinews of war must be produced. The League funds come from but one source. The willingness of this source to finance an extended campaign this year is very doubtful.

In this connection a rumor was current yesterday to the effect that an earnest attempt will be made by a certain element in the League to induce Mr. Hearst to head a city ticket himself. He has emphatically declared, however, that he will not enter the field.

It had not been decided yesterday just what form the legal contest of the primary happenings of Tuesday will take, but the leaders were active in compiling their data. Many affidavits were procured. The following citation gives a good idea of just what Tammany did to the league and how it was accomplished:

> Isaiah Bannell of 16 Commerce Street, being duly sworn, says: I was a watcher at the primary election held in premises, 287 Bleecker Street, in the Fifth Assembly District.
> At about 3:30 P. M. a man came in, and without announcing his name or address was given a ballot, which was thrown into the box. The same man returned in about two minutes; received another ballot, without giving a name, which he again voted. Within five minutes he repeated the same performance twice more.
> I then drew the attention of the policeman and the Board of Inspectors to what had just happened. The policeman, No. 8,104, then acting on the orders of the board, put me out of the room. In the street the Democratic Captain of the election district came to me and said that I shouldn't make any trouble, and he would take care of me.

Other affidavits of similar import have been obtained.

Manhattan Club for Democratic League

The Board of Managers of the Manhattan Club decided last night, in a set of resolutions, that the club sympathized with the purposes of the Democratic League organized at Saratoga on Sept. 9 and 10. The club at an early date will give a subscription dinner to the Executive Committee of the league.

THEY ARE ALL HERE.

Fact That the Country Is Seeing the Town Brought Home to a New Yorker.

The widespread interest in the Hudson-Fulton fête was brought home to one New Yorker yesterday morning by this question in a "down East" drawl which he hadn't heard since his youthful visits to the interior of New England.

"I beg your pardon neighbor, but kin yo utell me how to get into the Subway? I've been down in two cellars and I just started down a third when the shopkeeper stopped me.'

The New Yorker was standing directly in front of the Subway entrance and he volunteered to guide the countryman downtown.

That trip was one of the most interesting he had taken in years.

He had often wondered in idle moments what the impressions of an intelligent man of a century ago would be if he could be suddenly brought face to face with the wonders of to-day. His countryman's attitude toward the marvels of modern city life seemed to him a perfect answer to those speculations.

M'CLUNG OF YALE FEDERAL TREASURER

Taft Appoints Famous Half Back to Succeed Charles H. Treat in Washington.

IS A SOUTHERN REPUBLICAN

Born in Tennessee, He Is Now Treasurer of Yale and Has Been a Railway Traffic Manager.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Lee McClung, the treasurer of Yale University, has been selected as Treasurer of the United States to succeed Charles H. Treat.

The following announcement in connection with the appointment was made today:

"Charles H. Treat, on account of business matters, has tendered his resignation as Treasurer, to take effect the middle of October. The Secretary of the Treasury has asked him to remain until the 1st of November, at which time his resignation will be accepted.

"The President has selected Mr. Lee McClung, the treasurer of Yale University, to fill the vacancy. Mr. McClung's home is in Knoxville, Tenn., his present residence, New Haven, being temporarily incident to the useful work he has been doing for Yale University. He was previous to this time connected with the Southern Railway, and expected, but for this appointment, to return to Tennessee, to go into his family's business in Knoxville. The Treasury Department is delighted to be able to secure Mr. McClung's services, as he has been particularly successful in modernizing treasury and accounting methods at Yale University.

"Mr. McClung is a Republican."

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 23.—When told of the appointment of Mr. McClung, President Hadley of Yale University said:

"In common with all members of the corporation, I greatly regret his resignation, but do not feel that any obstacles should be placed in the way of his accepting a position which offers him large opportunities for increasing the efficiency of the public service."

Besides his position as Treasurer of Yale, Mr. McClung is a Director of the New Haven National Bank and of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company of Hartford.

Lee McClung is 39 years old. He was born in Knoxville, Tenn., on March 26, 1870, and is a son of Frank H. McClung, a retired merchant of Knoxville, and a kinsman of Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston of the Confederate Army, as well as of Chief Justice Marshall.

After his graduation from Yale in 1892, Mr. Clung traveled in Europe and later in California. Then he started in to work. He was made paymaster of the St. Paul & Duluth Railway Company. Then for several years he was Assistant Traffic Manager of the Southern Railway, and was in general charge of all its traffic west of the Alleghany Mountains. ains.

During his college career Mr. McClung was a class leader and received the largest vote as the most popular member of his class in the senior year. He was Chairman of the Junior Promenade Committee of his class. He was a famous half back also, and was Captain of the Yale football team in 1892.

There was a song well known to every Yale man then. It was written of McClung and was sung to the tune of "Hold the Fort." Here's the way it went:

Hold the fort, McClung is coming;
Barbour signals still.
Heffelfinger's in the centre,
Win we must and will.

McClung was one of the best half backs Yale ever had, they say. They still talk of his work on the gridiron there. With McClung on the New Haven team were such players as the two Bliss boys, Vance McCormick, the well-known quarter and goal kicker, and the mighty Heffelfinger.

Mr. McClung was appointed Treasurer of Yale in 1904.

ESCAPES DOWN WIRES.

Suspected Thief Slides from the Roof of a Five-Story Building.

Locked in a five-story loft building by a fellow employe early yesterday morning, Otto Hollander, an operator, employed by Cowen & Co., neckwear manufacturers, at 51 West Thirteenth Street, ran to the roof of that structure, and seizing five telephone wires, slid on them to the courtyard, the friction peeling the skin from his hands. Then he crawled into a basement window of a nearby department store, and was hiding behind the engines when he was pounced upon by the engineer.

As detectives Brennan and Rafsky, who answered a telephone call to Police Headquarters, were having Hollander show them how he crawled into the engine room from the courtyard of the Cowen building, a policeman and Solomon Browdsky, the man who had locked Hollander in the building, came along.

Browdsky had under his arm a bundle containing twenty-four dozen silk neckties, worth $102, which, he says, Hollander was carrying from the building when he encountered him, accused him of the theft, and locked him in when he tried to escape.

Hollander admitted trying to make off with the bundle of ties, giving as his excuse that he needed the money.

The detectives say that as he has not been in this country three years, they will apply to have him deported as an alien criminal.

In the Jefferson Market Court Magistrate Herbert held Hollander in $2,500 bail for trial.

COTTON CROP SMALL IN GERMAN COLONIES

Business Interests Do Not Share Dernburg's Hopes of Prospective African Output.

NO MENACE TO AMERICA

Will Not Seriously Affect Quantity or Value of Our Product in a Generation, Says Leading German Firm.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—German cotton factors and textile manufacturers do not share the rosy hopes of Colonial Secretary Dernburg, who sailed for New York to-day to investigate American cotton raising methods in view of the development of cotton-growing in the Kaiser's African deserts. The following statement was supplied to THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent by a leading German cotton firm:

"To become independent of the United States and at the same time to utilize its more or less valueless African colonies, the German Government, particularly since the advent of Herr Dernburg, has been making strenuous efforts to encourage cotton culture. Some little cotton is exported annually from Togoland and German East and Southwest Africa. This finds its way into German mills, but such imports, being odd lots, cannot compete in point of price with the American product, which can always be duplicated in quality and quantity.

"A few rich German mill owners have bought large tracts of land in the African colonies for almost nothing, hoping in future years to draw such supplies therefrom as will allow them to view Yankee cotton speculation with equanimity. Whether such an ambition is ever realized is a matter of the distant future. At the moment the outlook is not encouraging either as regards climate, transport, or monetary or labor conditions.

"One thing is certain: Nobody of the present generation will live to see the value or size of the American cotton crop seriously affected by cotton from the German colonies."

CUXHAVEN, Sept. 23.—Bernhard Dernburg, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, who left here to-day on the steamer Cleveland for the United States, where he will study cotton-growing conditions in the South, will be absent from Berlin only seven weeks. He is accompanied by Herr Busse, head of the Bureau of Agriculture of the Colonial Office.

Herr Dernburg was in Hamburg yesterday evening and met a number of well-known merchants and local officials. He delivered a brief speech on the prospects of the development of Germany's colonies in Africa, referring particularly to the prospects of successful cotton cultivation.

The Secretary's hearers promised to support his colonial projects.

DIES AFTER REACHING LAND.

American Missionary, Shipwrecked, Drifts Three Weeks in Open Boat.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 23.—After losing his ship and spending three weeks in an open boat in the Pacific Ocean, almost without food, the Rev. T. Walkup, an American missionary, died of exposure after landing on Edon Island. This news has been brought here by the steamer Aorangi from Australia, where Walkup's companions were taken when rescued.

The missionary ship, a motor schooner named the Hiram Bingham, hailed from Boston. She was bound from Butaitari with the Rev. Dr. Walkup, eight Carolina Islanders, and a native child on board. Seventy miles north of the Gilbert Islands a tropical squall came up suddenly and heeled the vessel over on her beam. The ship's company clung to the rigging while several natives succeeded in releasing a rowboat from the wreckage. A couple of oars were recovered, and all clambered into the boat, abandoning the schooner.

For twenty-one days the castaways drifted at the mercy of the wind and waves. Before leaving the wreck they picked up fifteen cocoanuts. This was all the food they had for three weeks. Rain squalls prevailed, and the missionary caught rain in his oilskins and served rations in the cocoanut shells.

The castaways fell ill, and some went mad. Sharks in large numbers followed the boat. On May 28 land was sighted, and islanders assisted the castaways to land on Edon Island. Mr. Walkup died soon after landing, and was buried on the beach. The survivors were rescued by the steamer Germania and landed at Sydney on Aug. 26.

Dr. Walkup's wife and family returned to America just before the fatal voyage began.

NO MASSACRE AT KIEV.

Report Apparently Originated in Small Disorders in a Suburb.

KIEV, Sept. 23.—There has been no massacre of Jews in Kiev. There have, however, been some slight disorders which apparently have been the foundation for the sensational reports sent abroad. These encounters were so unimportant—similar clashes occur almost daily—that they were not even mentioned in the local newspapers.

An investigation shows that on Sept. 7 a Reactionary assaulted and beat a Jew in Slobodka, a suburb of Kiev. A number of Jews then attacked a tea house, where a Reactionary leader was holding a meeting. They broke the windows of the house with stones and demanded that the leader be delivered into their hands.

Instead of complying, the Reactionaries sallied forth and attacked the Jews, and in the struggle a few persons were injured. The affair was in no way serious. The Jews in Kiev knew nothing of what had happened, in spite of the fact that Slobodka is just across the river from this city.

Again on Sept. 21 there was another encounter of no importance, a small fracas, which was promptly put down by three policemen.

KILLED ON THE ELEVATED.

Claxton Sprang in Front of Train at 50th Street Station, Motorman Says.

After vainly seeking employment here for a month, Henry G. Claxton, 27 years of age, a drug clerk of Los Angeles, Cal., who lived at 111 West Ninety-fifth Street, was ground to death beneath a northbound Sixth Avenue elevated train at the Fiftieth Street station at 10:40 o'clock last night.

With a roommate, Robert E. Stack, young Claxton had been visiting his sister, who has a private school for girls at Fifty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, and the two were returning home. Suddenly Stack turned to find his companion gone. According to Isaac Osborn, motorman of the elevated train, Claxton spread out his arms and leaped in front of the train when it was only fifteen feet away. He was killed instantly, being crushed beneath the forward trucks and dragged twenty feet. The motorman was taken to the East Fifty-first Street Station on a technical charge of homicide.

The Sixth Avenue elevated service was tied up half an hour while a wrecking crew lifted the car from the body.

According to Stack, Claxton had been despondent for some time over his failure to get a position. He belonged, it was said, to an old family in Liverpool, England.

TWO CARS CRUSH AN AUTO.

Machine Is Caught Between Them, but Its Occupants Are Unhurt.

Jammed between two cars of the Fulton Street surface line at Essex Street, East New York, yesterday, a large automobile was crushed like an eggshell, the two men who were riding in the machine escaping injury by being hurled out of harm's way.

The cars were filled and panic seized the passengers, as, amid cries of frightened persons in the street, the automobile was ground to pieces.

John Scapelli of 45 Maple Street, Richmond Hill, and Louis Catorino of the same address were the occupants of the car. It was the property of Stapelli. Quick work by the motormen, John Reilly and Louis Hoyer, saved the cars from being derailed.

GUY ESTATE IN DISPUTE.

Court to Decide Whether Husband Who Killed Wife Can Inherit It.

The courts are to determine whether Dr. Samuel E. Guy, the Far Rockaway dentist who shot and killed his wife on April 7, 1907, can inherit her estate. The matter was brought up yesterday in Special Term before Supreme Court Justice C. J. Garetson in Flushing. William S. Pettit of Far Rockaway, representing Harold S. Guy, the only child of the marriage, asked Justice Garretson to determine the question.

Former District Attorney George A. Gregg, who defended Dr. Guy at his trial and who still looks after his interests, said he preferred to have the case go before a referee.

Justice Garretson said he would consider the matter and decide later how it is to be disposed of.

Mr. Pettit contended that an old law holds that a person who has murdered another cannot inherit from his victim. But Dr. Guy was convicted not of murder, but of manslaughter in the first degree, for which crime he is now serving a term of fourteen years and nine months.

Mrs. Guy's estate is worth nearly $200,000.

Dr. Ross Says Other Agencies Are Taking Their Places in Hospitals.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Striking illustrations of the rapid decline in the use of drugs in the various hospitals of the country furnished a feature of today's session of the eleventh annual conference of the American Hospital Association here in connection with the report of the committee on hospital efficiency, hospital finance, and economics of administration, which was presented by Dr. R. R. Ross, Superintendent of the Buffalo (N. Y.) General Hospital.

Dr. Ross declared that fifteen years ago the annual cost of medicines for each patient in the Massachusetts General Hospital was about $2, while last year it was only 91 cents. He showed that the cost of drugs in the Buffalo General Hospital also had shown a marked decrease for the past year.

"It is difficult to predict what the future of medicine in hospitals is going to be," said Dr. Ross. "Undoubtedly drugs will continue to be used, but other agencies or some agency still unknown to us will have a place. There will perhaps be doctors to preach and pray, doctors to prescribe the correct methods for the use of the mind, specialists on fresh air and exercise, and doctors to prescribe drugs and operate. These statements may seem to be in lighter vein, yet hospitals are beginning to adapt themselves to the changed conditions."

The committee urged full publicity of hospital affairs, declaring it entirely ethical for hospitals to present their advantages before the public in an attractive manner and in such a way as to encourage confidence in the public and a knowledge among patients that their interests are being carefully guarded.

The standards for the education of nurses being enforced in many hospitals are unnecessarily high, according to Dr. R. M. Phelps, assistant superintendent of the Rochester State Hospital of Rochester, Minn. Dr. Phelps contended that two, instead of three, years should be sufficient to educate a nurse so as to warrant the giving of a diploma.

A CHANCE FOR INVENTORS.

The Government Wants a Press to Print 4,000,000 Postal Cards a Day.

The Postmaster General has just distributed among the leading manufacturers of printing presses throughout the country the specifications for a machine for the manufacture of postal cards. It calls for a daily output of not less than 4,000,000 cards, printed on both sides, and done up neatly in bundles of 25.

The specifications, according to an expert in the printing press manufacturing business, have set a task of exceptional complexity before the inventors. They have to face the difficulty of handling cards as thick as those required by the Post Office, and of dividing them into twenty-fives as they come cascading out of the press, arranging them in bundles, and fixing bands round them.

However, so much has already been accomplished by printing presses that it is regarded as probable that some one or other will hit on the requisite devices. The latest printing presses not only print in four colors the body of a magazine, but allow the ornamental covers which have been run off previously to be fitted to the outside of each copy, while any insert required can be put in its place in the middle.

The whole magazine is then fastened together with metal clips and delivered folded in whatever sized bundles are asked for. In this way a ninety-six-page colored magazine can be printed and put together at an incredible speed.

A ROYAL PHYSICIAN.

The Work of Carl Theodor, Duke in Bavaria, at Seventy.

"The house of Wittelsbach, a branch of which holds the royal throne of Bavaria, has for centuries been of great importance in Germany," says The New York Medical Journal. "We find members of it renowned in politics and warfare, in science and art, in poetry and religion, and as protectors and patrons of the muses.

"Lately two or three of its sons have become followers of Aesculapius. The oldest of these is Carl Theodor, Duke in Bavaria, who celebrated his seventieth birthday on the ninth of August. In 1880 he received his diploma as doctor and his license to practice in Germany.

"Although prolific as a medical writer, he is best known as an ophthalmologist. Assisted by the Duchess in Tegernsee as well as in Munich, he has been celebrated for his operations performed on poor and rich alike."

WANTS LUPKE GIRL HELD.

District Attorney Thinks Her Evidence Important in Nelson Murder.

District Attorney George H. Furnan has made a special request that Margaret Lupke, the laundress employed in the Central Islip State Hospital for the Insane, be kept in that institution for the present, as he needs her as a witness in the Nelson murder case.

The Lupke girl was the last person who saw Nelson alive before he was murdered, and he was probably shot soon after leaving her at 2 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, Sept. 16. The police believe they can name the murderer now, and seek only complete proof before charging him with the crime.

HEIRESS REFUSES TO GO TO MOTHER

Petitions to Chicago Court to Appoint Father's Housekeeper Her Guardian.

PARENTS WERE DIVORCED

Dr. Wassall, Girl's Father, Drowned—Her Mother, Now Mrs. T. L. Chadbourne, Jr., of New York, Wants Her.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Ellen Wassall, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Dr. Joseph Wassall, the dentist, who was washed overboard from the yacht Mistral and drowned in Lake Michigan Sept. 18, filed a petition in the Superior Court to-day asking that Agnes L. Hellmuth, who has been her father's housekeeper for three years, be appointed guardian of her person. This means that her mother, Mrs. Grace Chadbourne, the divorced wife of the dentist, may not have the custody of the girl, for, under the Illinois law, any minor over fourteen years old may choose his or her guardian under certain restrictions.

Under the dentist's will the girl receives all but $1,000 of her father's estate of about $50,000. The petition was filed by Dr. Sydney J. Knowles, who occupied offices with Dr. Wassall, and is acting for her.

The son, Joseph Wassall, Jr., receives $1,000. Dr. Wassall explains in his will that the small amount is not because of any dislike, but for the reason that his daughter is more in need of support. There is nothing in the will relative to the appointment of a guardian.

In the petition the girl sets forth that she has seen little of her mother in the last three years, while she has been constantly in the company of Agnes L. Hellmuth.

Mrs. Chadbourne, the girl's mother, is the wife of Thomas L. Chadbourne, Jr., of 145 West Fifty-eighth Street, New York. She recently stated that she would take her daughter home with her if the provisions of Dr. Wassall's will did not interfere. The girl's mother was divorced from Dr. Wassall in Nevada June 8, 1906, on charges of desertion. On July 18, 1906, Judge Carpenter, in the Circuit Court, signed a decree awarding the custody of the daughter to Dr. Wassall and of the boy to Mrs. Wassall, now Mrs. Chadbourne.

Mrs. Chadbourne was reached this afternoon on the long-distance telephone at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. S. Crosby, in Glencoe.

"Yes," she said, in answer to questions, "I have heard all that transpired, and all I have to say is this: I hope everything will soon be cleared up and that my daughter will come with me, where she belongs. I am praying for it. I am sure she will come with me. I would be very unhappy if she did not."

"Then you expect to fight the case and be appointed yourself as your daughter's guardian, in spite of her own petition asking that Agnes Hellmuth be appointed?" Mrs. Chadbourne was asked.

"That is only a temporary halt," said Miss Wassall's mother; "it will all be settled soon. She will come with me. I know I will get her. Where else should she be but with her mother?"

Mrs. Thomas L. Chadbourne, Jr., is well known in Port Chester and this city. She was married to T. L. Chadbourne, Jr., the lawyer of 30 Pine Street, three years ago, soon after having obtained a divorce from Dr. Wassall.

Telegrams were received both at the Chadbournes' Summer home at Port Chester and at Mr. Chadbourne's law office last Monday to the effect that Dr. Wassall had been drowned in Lake Michigan on Saturday.

He had gone out for a trip on the two-masted yacht Mistral, belonging to James O. Heyworth, a Chicago contractor. The party encountered rough weather, and at 10:30 Saturday night while Dr. Wassall was crossing the careening deck to go below a huge wave swept over the vessel and carried him overboard. His body has not yet been recovered.

As soon as she received the news of her former husband's death, Mrs. Wassall-Chadbourne, accompanied by her husband, took her small son, Joseph Wassall, Jr., and went to Chicago in order to be able to take care of her daughter, Ellen, who had been left all alone except for the servants in Dr. Wassall's big new Lake Forest house. Mrs. Chadbourne, until her former husband's affairs are settled, will stay with her mother, Mrs. W. S. Crosby of Glencoe, Ill. But she visits her little daughter at the Lake Forest residence every day.

Mrs. Wassall-Chadbourne was originally Grace Runion Crosby. She married Dr. Joseph W. Wassall, a wealthy Chicago dentist, with a handsome residence in Lake Forest, about ten years ago. They were conspicuous in Lake Forest and Chicago society. Mrs. Wassall gave frequent musicales.

Within less than a year after her divorce Mrs. Wassall married T. L. Chadbourne of this city, who had himself not long before obtained a divorce from Emily Crane Chadbourne, the daughter of R. T. Crane, the wealthy manufacturer of Chicago. Mr. Chadbourne had sought the divorce on the ground of desertion, alleging that his law business forced him to live in New York, while his wife, in spite of this fact, refused to leave Chicago and come to live with him here.

Mr. Chadbourne's former wife is a great friend of Mrs. "Jack" Gardner of Boston. The United States Government sued Emily Crane Chadbourne for $82,000 a year ago, charging her with having tried to smuggle $150,000 of art objects and merchandise into this country from Europe. Mrs. Chadbourne paid up.

Since their marriage three years ago the Chadbournes have had an apartment at 145 West Fifty-eighth Street.

TARIFF HURTS WOOL MEN.

Ring Writes to Payne of Some Very Specific Objections to His Bill.

In a letter to Sereno E. Payne, Mark D. Ring, one of the Directors of the Carded Woolen Manufacturers' Association, says:

"You are reported in the daily papers as having made the following statement in Boston in regard to the new Tariff bill which bears your name: 'You hear lots of objections to the schedules, but they are all of a wholesale character. None of them are specific. Or if they are, they reveal a curious ignorance of the bill's provisions.'

"The objections to your Tariff bill by the carded woolen manufacturers are specific in every sense of the word. They have been stated in detail over and over again to the Committee of Ways and Means, of which you are Chairman; to the House of Representatives, to the Committee on Finance, to the Senate, and to the President. Before your bill was passed these departments of the Government were strenuously urged to revise Schedule K, which is crushing the carded woolen industry, and forcing the American people to clothe themselves in cotton or inferior shoddy.

"You charge the critics of the Payne bill with making general and not specific statements—the very thing of which you yourself and the supporters of your bill have been and are guilty.

"I believe, however, that this disingenuous policy will fail to deceive the American people; that they will condemn a tariff bill that imposes a duty as high as 500 per cent. on wool required for the clothing of people of moderate means, and admits at duties as low as [illegible] per cent the wool required for the high-priced clothing worn by the rich."

$50,000 GAME SEIZURE.

State Department Raids Harrison Street Cold Storage Company.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Commissioner Whipple of the State Forest, Fish and Game Department announced to-day that the State had made seizures of game held out of season in the plant of the Harrison Street Cold Storage Company, New York, for which the company is liable to fines aggregating $50,000.

This is probably the largest seizure of its kind ever made by the State. The game includes partridges, ducks, pheasants, plover, and other wild birds. Preliminary proceedings upon which a prosecution will be made are in course of preparation. The game had been put in the storage as poultry and meat of various kinds.

Alexander Moir, manager of the Harrison Street Storage Company said yesterday that the company was not responsible for game found in its vaults, since it acted solely as warehouse agents for different individuals who consigned the game to it.

"On examination," said Mr. Moir, "the barrels and boxes were shown to hold quail, partridge, pheasant, black cock, plover, snipe, and grouse. The owners have the right to have this game in their possession, provided that it is held in bond. This consignment was not in bond."

ROOT SPEAKS TO FRESHMEN.

Senator Tells Students at Hamilton They Live in a Wonderful Age.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 23.—United States Senator Elihu Root addressed the students at the reopening of Hamilton College at Clinton this morning. Senator Root was graduated from Hamilton in the class of '64, and for twenty-six years has been a member of the Board of Trustees, of which he is now the Chairman.

"You are living in the most delightful age," said Mr. Root to the sixty-nine freshmen, "while you are making up for the parts you are to play on life's stage. I congratulate you on the wonderful prospect before you. Invention and science have contributed to the joy of living. They have made life more wonderful than it ever has been before. There are millions of men to-day who are wishing that they could live to see the things that you will see. You are just beginning to enter into life. It rests with you to see what part you will play in the movements of the world which are destined to be the most glorious ever seen. Don't sink into insignificance and become mere ciphers. Good luck to you on your journey through college and through life."

WAITING FOR WORLD'S END.

Special to The New York Times.

DUXBURY, Mass., Sept. 23.—Three hundred men and women of the Free Christian Society, at their camp five miles from here, began at 10 o'clock to-day their final preparation for the end of the world, which they are convinced will come to-morrow night. The service, which consisted of prayer, penitence, and baptism, was observed with fanatical enthusiasm. It is to be kept up until to-morrow night.

Practically all of the 300 adherents of the queer sect have disposed of all their worldly goods in anticipation of the ending of all things. The cause of all this was the revelation that came to Eva Brown of Pawtucket, who declares that the destruction of the world was foretold to her in a dream a year ago.

Believing, as they do, that the top crust of the earth will peel off and that the damned souls will be hurled into a cauldron of boiling fire, the intensity of their closing services may be imagined.

KNOX'S SON AUTO SPEEDER.

Was Hurrying to Taft Dinner in Boston—Pleads Guilty, Fined $15.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 23.—Philander C. Knox, Jr., son of Secretary of State Knox, was fined $15 and costs in the District Court here to-day for speeding an automobile. He was on his way to Boston on Sept. 14 to attend the dinner to President Taft, when he was arrested on Waterman Street.

He pleaded guilty to-day and paid the fine.

CASSIDY MASCOT KILLED.

Dinah, Hit by an Auto, Used to Help Club's Barkeeper.

Dinah, a black French poodle, lost her life on the Long Island City plaza of the new Queensboro Bridge yesterday. As a result there is mourning in Joe Cassidy's Democratic Clubhouse, in Court House Square. Yesterday, with Eugene Dunning, Clerk in the Long Island City Municipal Court, and John Elkins, secretary to Cassidy, Dniah went for a walk. An automobile speeding from the bridge hit the dog, and she died a few minutes later.

When the news was brought to the clubhouse there was great grief. Dinah joined the club several years ago. She acted at times as a sort of assistant barkeeper, and when Joe Cassidy and his friends spent the night in the private rooms upstairs playing cards, Dinah, every time they wanted a drink, would carry an order written on a slip of paper to the bar.

SAYS HE SET FACTORY AFIRE.

Night Watchman Declares $150,000 Blaze Was His Doing.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 23.—Otto Truhon, night watchman of the McDougal Kitchen Furniture factory, which, with several houses in the neighborhood, was burned last night, confessed this afternoon that he had set the factory on fire, so the police say.

The loss was $150,000. It is supposed that Truhon is insane.

Edison Employe Gets a Mortal Shock in the Bronx Plant.

While walking near the bus-bar, controlling all the lighting switches in the plant of the Edison Company at 140th Street and Elder Avenue, the Bronx, Lawrence Goetz of 207 East Fifty-fifth Street was drawn up against it early yesterday, and for three minutes more than 2,000 volts passed through his body. The power was turned off and the young man taken to Lebanon Hospital, where he died a little later.

Goetz was a student in chemistry and during the Summer vacation had worked in the plant. When drawn against the contact bar he cried for help, and Night Supt. Kingsley Martin started for him. Kingsley quickly touched a button which shut off all the lights in the borough and stopped the power going through the bus-bar. As the power was stopped the boy's body fell backward. His clothing was in flames, and Kingsley, after rolling him about the concrete floor for a few seconds, grabbed an emergency blanket, which is filled with sand, and wrapped it about him. This extinguished the flames, but not until he was badly burned.

STANDARD OIL TAX HEARING.

Assessor Examined on Increase of $5,000,000 in Valuations.

The hearing before Supreme Court Commissioner E. A. S. Mann, in the Bayonne increase on the Standard Oil assessment, was concluded in Jersey City yesterday. Assessor Henry Hiscock, who made the assessment on the Standard Oil property and increased the valuations for 1909 and 1910 over $5,000,000, was on the witness stand for five hours.

He was asked concerning his method of making the assessment, and was very guarded in his answers. He said he arrived at some figures by valuing products and personal property at a figure lower than the same commodities could have been valued.

When he left the stand, Col. Charles W. Fuller, legal representative of the Standard Oil Company, announced that next Wednesday morning he would apply to Supreme Court Justice Swayze for a writ of certiorari to review the assessment made by Hiscock.

CHARGES FRAUD IN YONKERS VALUATIONS

James B. Ludlow Says He Will Try to Bring Criminal Actions Against City Officials.

FAVORITISM, HE DECLARES

Wealthy Land Owner Declares Valuations for Property of Friends of Administration Were Little Increased.

Designating the system of assessing the land valuations in Yonkers as "rotten and crooked," James B. Ludlow, a lawyer, with offices in New York, but one of the wealthiest land owners in Yonkers, declared that he had retained Arthur C. Train, formerly an Assistant District Attorney under Mr. Jerome, to report to him whether there was any chance of bringing the matter before the District Attorney of this county for criminal prosecution.

The men against whom Mr. Ludlow seemed to be particularly embittered were the members of the Board of Assessors for the year 1906, and John H. Coyne, who was Mayor at that time. Mr. Ludlow alleges that gross favoritism was shown to the friends of the administration at that time, and said he was prepared to prove that the intimation was conveyed to him that for $500 he could "get a reduction without any trouble." He produced figures which he alleged showed that, whereas some of the favorites of the administration had valuations increased from 18 to 20 per cent., the property he owned was increased from 100 per cent. to 250 per cent. over the 1905 figures. He also declared that the property of the then Mayor, John H. Coyne, was assessed as acreage, with eight brick houses on it, at an average of about $35 a city lot.

The charges came out in a hearing before Referee Frank L. Young yesterday, who was appointed by Supreme Court Justice Mills to hear the testimony and report to the court in the certiorari proceedings instituted by Mr. Ludlow to obtain a reduction of his assessed valuations. Besides his own personal property and the property of the Ludlow estate, Mr. Ludlow represents interests having an aggregate valuation of over $2,500,000, and included in which is property of the Lawrence estate, Schieffelin estate, Valley Farms Company, and James Gordon Bennett.

In his petition Mr. Ludlow alleges that the proceedings of the Board of Assessors were "entirely dominated" by Mayor Coyne. That he "made suggestions," and "on several occasions he gave them positive directions with respect to making alterations or reductions in certain valuations."

The field maps on which the assessments for the City of Yonkers were made were produced for the inspection of the referee. They were worn out, many of the pages being almost in ribbons. It was said that they were made in 1886. Many of the figures and names on the maps were illegible, and Mr. Ludlow showed that considerable of the water-front property was not shown on the maps at all. He said that after these proceedings had been begun in 1906 water-front property to the value of over $250,000 had been added as a result of the testimony he had produced, and that even to this date some had not yet been put on the assessment roll.

Referring to the property of the American Real Estate Company, in the fashionable Park Hill district, Mr. Ludlow said that in 1906 they had about eighty acres, which was assessed at $378,300. Mr. Ludlow asserts that this property is worth $30,000 an acre. The 1906 valuation was increased about 20 per cent. over the 1905 valuation, while about 271 lots which had been sold to other parties in the same district were increased 36 per cent. the same year.

DRAWS REVOLVER IN WALDORF

Stranger Frightens Telephone Girls and Empties the Barber Shop.

A florid, middle-aged man with a somewhat restless manner walked into the telephone alcove of the Waldorf-Astoria just after noon yesterday.

"I'm going to show you something pretty," he remarked blandly to the seven telephone girls then drew from his hip pocket a long heavy revolver which, to the startled women, seemed as big as a cannon.

While the girls were still too much frightened to scream, the man put the weapon in his pocket, and walked through the corridor, down to the basement barber's shop, and had Barber Ald shave him. He then left. But a few minutes later he came running back in a great rage.

"Where is my pin? My diamond shamrock pin?" he shouted to Ald, excitedly. "It was in the lapel of my coat when I sat down. When I went out, it was gone. Some one here must have taken it. There'll be trouble if you don't give it back."

Almost before he got any answer the man drew out his revolver again and waved it to and fro. The shop was crowded, and there was a rush for the doors. Ald, however, seized the weapon, while a fellow-barber named Herman threw his arms around the man's elbows. Then warned by one of the fleeing barbers, Hotel Detective Lawler and Assistant Manager Marshall hurried in and turned the man over to the police.

At Police Headquarters he said he was "Robert Bruce Gordon, a Government detective, also in the hardware business." He said he had been stopping at the hotel, but the management said they had never seen him before.

STATEN ISLAND GOLF TITLE.

Play Begins for Championship at Richmond County Country Club.

One of the smallest fields that ever started in the annual golf championship of Staten Island competed yesterday over the links of the Richmond County Country Club at Dongan Hills. In the matter of interest, however, the event was as popular as any in the past, the scores turned in showing a high calibre of golf. While the event was for the premier title of Richmond Borough, it was in reality a dual event between the members of the Fox Hills Golf Club and the Richmond County Country Club, the only contestants being from these organizations.

B. S. Bottome of Fox Hills carried off the honors in the qualifying round, making a score of 76 for the eighteen holes. He went out in 36 and came in in 40, both scores being the best turned in for the day's play. While Bottome was strong in the morning round, he fell a victim in the afternoon to the clever playing of C. West Tainter, who held the amateur record for the old course. The latter was the master most of the time, winning by 3 up and 2 to play. Tainter had his opponent 1 up and 4 to go at the finish of the fourteenth hole. On the fifteenth, after a good drive, he pulled his second shot into the rough, which at this point was a bed of golden rod reaching to his waist, and it seemed that Bottome would even matters. Tainter played out with his mashie, and the stroke, which was probably the best executed of the day, left him a foot from the hole. Bottome missed an easy put for a four and Tainter holed out. It was this hole which practically settled the match, for Bottome could make no recovery on the succeeding hole.

The score by Bottome for the morning round was:

Out ....4 4 3 4 5 6 3 4 3—36
In ....5 5 4 4 5 6 4 4 3—40—76

WARD MAKES LOW SCORE.

Westbrook Golfer Leads in Qualifying Round of Morris C. G. C. Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Sept. 23.—In spite of the rain the annual individual invitation golf tournament of the Morris County Golf Club began on the links here this morning with seventy-five entries. The qualifying round of eighteen holes was the only competition for to-day, and John M. Ward of Westbrook led the field with a score of 77. The first sixteen, in which all with scores below 85 qualified, will to-morrow begin the first round for the Thomas cup; the second sixteen will play the first round for the Frelinghuysen cup, and the third sixteen will compete for the Foote cup. Charles Scribner has presented a trophy for the lowest score in the qualifying round. The course was in excellent condition, but the muggy weather was probably the reason for only six scoring below 80. The leading scores were:

John M. Ward, 77; W. F. Morgan, Jr., 78; D. H. McAlpin, 2d, 79; W. R. Fraser, 78; H. J. Gee, 78; M. K. Smith, 80; L. M. Richmond, 85; J. G. Gillespie, 84; J. T. Pulling, Jr., 85; C. F. MORRISTOWN BENCH SHOW.

Record Entry List for First Exhibition of Whippany River Club.

The first annual dog show of the Whippany River Club will be held to-morrow on the club grounds at Morristown, N. J. Judging will start promptly at 10 o'clock, and the rings will be erected under the trees in front of the clubhouse. In case of rain the judging will take place in the riding school. Owing to the big entry list eight rings will be erected for the purpose of judging the dogs. Luncheon will be served in the clubhouse, and every convenience offered to exhibitors and visitors.

More than 700 dogs will be shown. The show will be the largest in the East, with the exception of the Madison Square Garden, Philadelphia, and Boston exhibitions. This result is due to the efforts of John G. Bates, Chairman of the Bench Show Committee, who had charge of the Cedarhurst exhibition for several years.

One of the features of the show will be the judging of the packs of foxhounds and beagles with the huntsmen in uniform.

Mrs. Tyler Morse of Boston, Mrs. A. Ronalds Conkling, Thomas Cadwalader of Philadelphia, John G. Bates, C. Wycliffe Throckmorton, J. B. Cooper, G. A. Wertheim, Grant B. Schley, Harry T. Peters, Windholme Kennels, George B. Post, Jr.; Dr. Henry A. Henriques, Theodore Offerman, George Lauder, Jr.; A. G. Wooley, George Bleistein, A. C. Wilmerding, A. Page, H. K. Brill Clothes

Brill Clothes are best clothes values anywhere. These values are possible because of Brill trade advantages such as close mill connections, Brill directed tailoring organizations and four stores operated under a single executive expense.

This season, while the prices of clothes the country over are 10 per cent. to 33 1-3 per cent. higher than a year ago, Brill Clothes, because of foresighted merchandising, are not advanced in price one cent.

Brill Suits, Fallcoats and Cravenette Raincoats are $15 to $45.

Confession or Tribute?

A contemporary of ours who is accepted as an authority said this:

"The last three years has seen Hackett-Carhart garments raised to a standard of style and tailoring which is within a step of perfection. No other brand has gone so high."

Whether that was a confession or a tribute, we do not know.

This we do know, and know it beyond contention:—head-and-hand can do little or nothing more in the tailoring and style of a suit or coat than they have done for those which we present for fall and winter service.

Suits and Coats for Men $15.00 to $40.00

Heretofore we have confined boys' clothing to the up-town shop. Hereafter it will be offered in both—up town and down town. To make it an event:

The New Shop for Boys

$6.75 Suits for Boys $5.00

REJECTS THIRD AVE. REORGANIZING PLAN

Public Service Commission Finds That It Would Be Unfair to Stockholders.

TOO MUCH WATER INVOLVED

In the Face of Vast Overcapitalization the Shares Could Never Earn Returns.

Sweeping aside the claim of those behind the reorganization plan of the Third Avenue Railroad that the public was not interested and had no voice in the amount of securities to be put out in such a reorganization, the Public Service Commission gave out a unanimous opinion yesterday dismissing the plan prepared by the Third Avenue bondholders' committee in conjunction with Receiver Whitridge. The opinion is by Chairman William R. Willcox and Commissioner Milo R. Maltbie, and it finds to be well founded nearly all of the objections that were urged against the Third Avenue reorganization plan when the matter was up before the commission for hearings.

The question of reorganizing the Third Avenue is now thrown back upon the bondholders' committee, and while no statement was made yesterday by the committee it was gathered in quarters that are usually well informed on traction matters that the next plan that comes out at least will not endeavor to increase the existing capitalization by $15,000,000.

It has been understood that the late plan was put out to see what the commission would permit, and accordingly it contemplated leaving outstanding all of the securities of the old road and issuing some $15,000,000 additional for refunding purposes and to provide new money. Now that this theory of reorganization has been shelved the only thing to do will be to scale down the capital.

The commission's decision, which is an exhaustive document, is based primarily on the question of overcapitalization and inability of the earnings to come anywhere near meeting the charges to be imposed under the proposed plan. The commission also is mindful of the situation of the Third Avenue stockholders, who were to be called on to subscribe $4,000,000 for new securities that were upward of $1,000,000 away from any income return at all, and it calls attention to the fact that if it should approve a recapitalization with a huge amount of water in it the holders of the new securities might properly point to the action of the commission, if it should have occasion to consider the question of service or rates, and argue that since the commission approved the issuance of the new capital it must allow some return to be earned upon it. Summarized, the decision of the commission, after asserting its power to pass upon the amount of securities to be issued in the reorganization, comes down to these points:

1. Capitalization of franchise will not be allowed directly or indirectly, except so far as permitted by statute.
2. The applicants do not have a vested right to capitalize franchises or to reorganize irrespective of the provisions of the Public Service Commissions law.
3. The applicants have failed to prove that there are assets or property of sufficient value to justify a capitalization of $73,000,000. In the absence of proof the Commission will not approve, for no reorganization can be sound or permanent unless capitalization has some relation to value.
4. There are strong indications that the present company is overcapitalized and that the outstanding stock and bonds—$58,560,000—are not represented by actual property.
5. The net earnings will probably be less than the estimate given by the receiver, certain items having been omitted.
6. But even accepting his estimate, there is no evidence whatever to show that the new company would earn a sufficient net income to pay interest upon the adjustment bonds, par value $32,000,000, after paying operating expenses, taxes and interest on prior liens.
7. Upon the applicants' theory, there is no evidence to indicate that any dividend would be paid upon the common stock, par value, $20,000,000.
8. The issuance of securities with so great a probability that adequate interest and dividends will not be earned thereon is without justification, is dangerous financiering and injurious to the public. The issuance of securities does not make value.
9. Such extreme overcapitalization would lead, as it has in the past, to inferior service and unwarranted exactions. The people of New York have too vivid evidence upon this point to forget its importance.
10. The control of the corporation would pass from the stockholders to bondholders with little probability of its return in many years, if ever. This is true, notwithstanding the fact that the stockholders are to be called upon for $4,000,000.
11. The value of the property to be acquired as indicated by the market value of the securities is very much less than the amount of securities proposed to be issued. Market value cannot be used, therefore, to justify the proposed scheme.
12. The reorganization plan involves the capitalization of taxes, unpaid interest, repairs, renewals, and other improper capital charges, which is unjustifiable and inexpedient.

The opinion comments pointedly upon the failure of the evidence to show any sufficiency of assets to meet the $16,516,000 refunding mortgage bonds, $32,000,000 adjustment mortgage cumulative bonds, and the $20,000,000 stock which it is proposed to issue in the reorganization. The evidence, it is noted, fails to show that the assets are anything like the present capitalization of $56,000,000, and it is equally wanting on the sufficiency of the earnings to meet the charges.

ROUGH RUSH AT COLUMBIA.

One Sophomore Knocked Unconscious in Class Struggle.

While no serious injuries resulted from the inter-class contest on South Field, in which some 500 Columbia students took part yesterday, the encounter was marked for its roughness.

A sophomore, Wagner, after leading his class in five attacks on the freshmen, was knocked unconscious, but was later revived, and last night was said to be entirely recovered. Yesterday's rush was held for the purpose of determining the number of freshmen whose presence would be required at to-night's "soph" smoker. A football was thrown up in the centre of the field, and at a signal both classes ran from opposite directions toward the ball.

As a result twenty freshmen will to-night dance the "Salome" at the sophomore feast.

FASTS OVER FIFTY DAYS.

Cleveland Man, with Stomach Trouble, Says Starving Cured Him.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 23.—William H. Maire, a Cleveland man who is now in Battle Creek, Mich., has just completed a fast of fifty and one-half days, according to information received by his relatives here yesterday.

In performing the feat Maire lost forty pounds in flesh. Throughout the fast he drank filtered water. He says the first eight days of the fast were trying, but after this period he experienced little inconvenience from going without food. Upon breaking his fast Maire drank a teaspoonful of milk. His second and third meals consisted of two and three teaspoonfuls of milk, respectively.

Stomach trouble which physicians were unable to diagnose caused Maire to try fasting as a cure. He says he is now in perfect health.

YOM KIPPUR BEGINS TO-DAY.

Jewish Day of Atonement, Most Widely Observed of Hebrew Celebrations.

At sunset this evening the Jewish people throughout the world will begin the celebration of Yom Kippur, or Day of Atonement, the most widely observed of all the many feasts and fasts in the Hebrew calendar. This fast day is considered the most important of all the Mosaic holy days. With its observance the penitential season which began with the New Year comes to an end, and the Jews then look forward with joyful anticipation to the celebration of Succoth, or the Feast of Tabernacles, the harvest festival of the ancient Irsaelites.

The Biblical injunction which is the authority for Yom Kippur is found in Leviticus, Chapter 23, Verse 26: "And the Lord spake unto Moses saying: On the tenth day of this seventh month is the Day of Atonement. It shall be an holy convocation and ye shall afflict your souls. And ye shall do no manner of work on that day, for it is a day of atonement, to make atonement for you before the Lord, your God. It shall be unto you a Sabbath of solemn rest, and ye shall afflict your souls: in the ninth day of the month at even, from even unto even, shall ye keep your Sabbath."

The Jews who observe the day strictly, in orthodox fashion, keep the day as a complete fast, abstaining entirely from all food and drink. From this strict observance of the day none is exempt except children of tender age, nursing mothers, and those in poor health. Before entering upon the fast a bountiful repast is partaken of. After this is disposed of all repair to the synagogue for the "Kol Nidre" service, which is the most beautiful and impressive service in the Hebrew synagogue ritual. The ultra orthodox remain in the synagogue all night engaged in prayer and reciting psalms appropriate to the occasion. The next day the services are continuous, beginning early in the morning and lasting until sunset, when the worshippers at the sound of the shofar are permitted to break their twenty-four-hour fast. A feature of the day's devotion is the memorial service in memory of those relatives who have passed away during the preceding year.

The reformed Jews join with the orthodox in the celebration of Yom Kippur, but as a rule they do not fast, nor are the services in the reform temples continuous on the day of the celebraton. All the Jewish places of worship will be open for service to-night and all day to-morrow, and will be thronged with devout worshippers joining in the observance of this "Sabbath of Sabbaths," as it is designated.

JOHN DICKINSON RETURNS.

Man Who Disappeared at Time of $1,000,000 Failure Back in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—John Dickinson, head of the defunct stock and grain brokerage house of John Dickinson & Co. of Chicago and New York, who mysteriously disappeared on the eve of the $1,000,000 failure of his firm on May 17, reappeared in Chicago yesterday to the surprise of his attorneys and the Chicago Title and Trust Company, receiver for the concern. It had been reported that the bankrupt broker had been recently in Paris, in Mexico, and in California. When the receiver was appointed by the Federal court about $35,000 and some furniture were seized. Dickinson was wanted in the court of Referee in Bankruptcy Sidney C. Eastman in Chicago in order that it might be learned what had become of the assets of the firm.

Unannounced Dickinson reached Chicago and hurried to the office of his attorney, George W. Plummer. At Referee Eastman's office Dickinson, questioned by Attorney Houlihan for the Chicago Title and Trust Company, said all the assets were turned over so far as he knew. He said he had been ill, and "it was impossible for him to tell what the assets of the firm were." The liabilities, he said, were about $200,000. "The books, I understand," he went on, "are in such a jumbled condition that it will take some time to find out just how we stand."

The bankruptcy hearing was set for Oct. 20, at which time Mr. Dickinson promised to appear, and without calling upon his attorney again or visiting friends on La Salle Street he left for New York.

INDICT 85 IN IOWA FOR RACING SWINDLE

Operated Through Mails — Victims in Eighteen States Said to Have Lost $500,000.

OPERATED IN JERSEY TOWN

Sheriff, Police Chief, and Prosecuting Attorney Got $75 a Week, Said Letter to Chief of Band.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa. Sept. 23.—James C. Maybray and eighty-four associates were indicted to-day by the United States Grand Jury for the Southern District of Iowa on a charge of conspiring to defraud through the use of the United States mails. With the exception of Maybray and three or four others, none of those indicted are in custody, and for that reason the names of the defendants were not made public.

It was stated that the list includes many persons known in criminal annals in all parts of the country, and that nearly every name is followed by from one to four aliases. Each of these alleged confederates, it is charged, had number, which is given as one of the aliases credited to the defendant.

Although specific amounts are not mentioned in the indictments, it is authoritatively stated that the amounts lost by the alleged victims of Maybray and others named will exceed half a million dollars. The sums lost run from $1,500 to $30,000, the latter sum having been placed on a fake horse race, according to the evidence at hand, by a Missouri banker.

Victims in eighteen States, the Territory of Alaska, and the Dominion of Canada are named in the indictment, indicating the wide range of territory over which Maybray and his associates are alleged to have plied their vocation.

As a basis of operation they used, according to the indictment, the cities of Council Bluffs, Davenport, and Burlington, Iowa; St. Louis, Little Rock, Seattle, Denver, and New Orleans, to which places it is alleged victims were taken by the numerous "steerers."

In setting out the specific instances in which violations of the postal laws are charged, the indictment includes copies of many sensational letters said to have been exchanged between Maybray and his associates, which refer to alleged "deals," and name various sums of money as having changed hands as a result of the operations of those mentioned in the indictment.

One of these letters is dated from a New York hotel, and invites "Friend John," who, it is alleged, is Maybray himself, to go to New York City, declaring "I have a town right across the river from New York in Jersey, a swell track, and absolute protection. The Sheriff and Prosecutor and police, they will be absolutely right on the job during working hours."

In a letter written a few days later the same man informs the person who received mail from Post Office box 4, which was Maybray's box, that the location referred to is only twenty minutes' ride from the heart of New York City, and that the "fixing" could be done for $75 a week, "which will cover every thing, that is, the Sheriff, the Chief, and the Presocuting Attorney."

The writer also says he has a friend "in good standing handling sales of large denominations, good appearance, and excellent standing."

Another letter cited is from Polk City, Iowa. It is signed F. R. Marts, and incloses $1,000 "to apply as forfeit money on our deal pending." A letter from Samuel Sutor of Cass Lake, Minn., says: "I have made my check on the bank up there for $5,000." It adds that the writer had arranged to have the check taken care of by the bank.

The indictment gives the names of eighty-five persons who are alleged to have been victims of Maybray and his associates, most of whom live in the Western States. Among those named in other localities are:

P. W. Whalen, Port Arthur, Canada; Edward Jones, Shamokin, Penn.; F. Ellison, Kamloops, Canada; James Servais, Port Arthur, Canada; James Webber, Shamokin, Penn.; S. McMairn, Toronto, Canada; J. W. Springborn, Cleveland, Ohio; C. Nelson Pratt, Toledo, Ohio, and C. A. Nelson, Alma, Mich.

It is expected that the trials will begin at Red Oak, Iowa, during the November term of court or at Des Moines in December. Sylvester R. Rush, special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States, at the instance of the Department of Justice, is taking part in the prosecution.

TWO DEAD IN "JOY" RIDE.

Four More Seriously Injured When Auto Jumps Bridge—Chauffeur in Jail.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 23.—Two women were killed, another fatally hurt, and three men and a woman seriously injured when an automobile containing eight persons jumped off a trestle at Fourth and Weler Streets, a short distance from the Union Station here, today. Only the chauffeur escaped unhurt.

The party had been out all night "joy riding" and visiting places of entertainment. At Fourth and Weller Streets a sharp turn is made in the trestle, but the machine went straight ahead and crashed through the wooden railing, landing on the Tide Flats twenty-five feet below, where the gasoline tank exploded and flames shot up thirty feet.

When the firemen arrived two women were dead, with all the clothing burned from their bodies. They had been killed instantly. Another woman, horribly burned, was hurried to the City Hospital. When water was turned on the blazing automobile a fourth woman, imprisoned under the overturned car, screamed: "I'm burning to death!" The firemen got her out by prying up the car. Three men were bruised and burned, and one had his leg broken.

The chauffeur, Henry Hizer, went over with the machine, but, finding himself unhurt, ran at full speed toward town, telling a man who tried to stop him that he was going for help. The police afterward arrested him. He told them the steering gear broke just as the machine was making the turn. He had been twice arrested for reckless driving.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 23.—A fire which started early this morning destroyed the plant of the Tampa-Havana Lumber Company and many thousand feet of lumber in its yards in the Government section. The Florida Citrus Exchange lost a large number of orange washing and sorting machines, which were being built by the company. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss to the lumber company will reach a total of $100,000, of which $55,000 is covered by insurance.

LATHAM FLIES IN BERLIN.

Military Organ Praises Wright—New Type of Machine at Lucerne.

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—Hubert Latham, the French aviator, made a successful trial flight of ten minutes in Berlin this morning. A distinguished party of German officers was present.

Later in the day Latham flew for half an hour over the Tempelhof parade ground and was cheered by an immense assemblage. He will fly every day until Sept. 28.

The Militär Wochenblatt, the organ of the Prussian army, publishes a sympathetic review of the successful flights made here by Orville Wright and the wonderful technical achievement of his aeroplane.

"It is as yet impossible to form an opinion regarding the usefulness of this machine in war," the Wochenblatt says, "but it is well to remember that so great a mind as Napoleon regarded Fulton's steamer as useless for war. Furthermore, when railroads were first developed it was impossible to foretell their importance for military uses."

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 23.—A new American aviator, Dane Hurlburt, has made several successful aeroplane flights here lately. His machine is different from existing aeroplanes inasmuch as it travels lengthwise through the air, and has two propellers, one in front and the other behind.

THEY'LL TONE UP THE STREET

Shopkeepers in 23d Street Unite to Drive Out Peddlers and Rowdies.

The storekeepers along the south side of East Twenty-third Street, between Broadway and Fourth Avenue, have formed an association to improve the tone of that part of the street. For some time they have been annoyed by the number of peddlers and rowdies accustomed to congregate thereabout, and have contemplated some step to put an end to it.

At a meeting held yesterday in Dorlon's restaurant, 6 East Twenty-third Street, which practically all the storekeepers concerned attended, an association called "The Twenty-third Street Retail Association" was formed, and a constitution, with a view to immediate incorporation, was adopted.

An Executive Committee of three, with M. H. Harris, optician, of 54 East Twenty-third Street, Chairman, and Louis Schmitt and Paul Braus as members, was chosen. The three are respectively President, Secretary, and Treasurer of the association.

As an Executive Committee they have power to do whatever they think best to raise the tone of the street, and as the first step toward that end they will deputize a special policeman to keep it clear of undesirable persons.

GET AFTER STOKES'S GUESTS.

Subpoenaed at Dinner in $500 Suit Against Hotel Man.

There was a lot of excitement in the dining room of the Ansonia Hotel, at Broadway and Seventy-third Street, on Wednesday evening, when four subpoena servers circulated among the tables and handed 50-cent pieces and neatly folded legal documents to thirty of the Ansonia's guests to appear Monday morning in the Municipal Court as witnesses in a suit against W. E. D. Stokes, head of the company which operates the Ansonia.

Frank V. Strauss & Co., publishers of theatrical programmes, are the complainants. They say that Mr. Stokes or some one connected with the Ansonia owes a balance of $500 on an advertising bill. On Wednesday the case came up in the Municipal Court, and Mr. Stokes declared on the witness stand that he was not responsible for the bill, and that he could not say who really was responsible. The hotel property, he said, is owned by the Onward Construction Company, of which he is Treasurer, but is not operated by that concern.

Malcolm Sunheimer, a lawyer, who appeared for Strauss & Co., asked for a postponement. He hastened to his office on Nassau Street and arranged for the serving of thirty subpoenas on the guests at the Ansonia. He said yesterday that this was done in order to learn, if possible, just who is responsible at the hotel.

Four clerks in Mr. Sunheimer's office went to the Ansonia about 7 o'clock in the evening. They made inquiries of the waiters and learned the names of many of the men and women in the dining room. Then they began to serve the subpoenas, which were made out in the John Doe and Jane Doe form.

STAGE STRUCK, ASKS DIVORCE.

Schafran Says Wife Named a Corespondent Without Reason.

Supreme Court Justice Brady reserved decision yesterday on the application of counsel for Mrs. Hattie Schafran, wife of Isidor Schafran of the cloak firm of Schafran & Co., 22 West Thirty-first Street, for alimony at the rate of $15,000 a year and a counsel fee of $5,000 pending trial of her divorce action.

John F. McIntyre, who appeared for the husband, said that Mrs. Schafran had become infected with a fever to go on the stage, and that to sever her matrimonial ties she had named as co-respondent, with apparently no reason, a woman named "Jane," who was one of her closest friends and a frequent guest at the Schafran home.

Counsel for Mrs. Schafran said that the defendant had also been guilty of misconduct in Paris, France. Mr. Schafran denies all of his wife's allegations.

Court Approves Physicians' League.

The incorporation of the Physicians' Legislative League of New York was approved by Supreme Court Justice Amend yesterday, its object being to promote a higher standard of professional ethics among its members and to recommend the enactment and enforcement of laws tending to elevate the practice of medicine. The incorporating physicians are Carl R. Keppler, Samuel A. Buchenholtz, William J. Jones, Jr., William R. Stone, Bernard McBride, and Louis M. Mooney.

JUDGES TO ARBITRATE THE BIG SUGAR SUIT

To Decide Finally Whether the Compromise Offered by American Co. Shall Be Accepted.

$30,000,000 SOUGHT AT FIRST

$750,000, the Segal Note, and Securities Were Offered Pennsylvania Co., but Bondholders Objected.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—After an extended discussion of the terms of settlement in the $30,000,000 suit brought in New York by the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company against the American Sugar Refining Company, Judges Wilson and Audenreid in the Common Pleas Court agreed to-day to act as arbitrators in the matter and determine finally whether the compromise offered by the American Sugar Refining Company should be accepted.

The suit was instituted against the American company by George H. Earle of this city, receiver for the Pennsylvania Sugar Refinery Company. Mr. Earle charged that the American Company, through a loan of $1,250,000 advanced to Adolph Segal, promoter of the Pennsylvania concern, sought to close the local plant in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and he accordingly sued to recover damages under that law.

When the case was on trial in New York John G. Johnson of Philadelphia, counsel for the American company, offered a settlement whereby his clients agreed to pay to the plaintiffs $750,000 and to surrender the Segal note for $1,250,000, together with all securities held for the loan. The settlement was agreed to subject to the approval of the Common Pleas Court of this city, which had appointed Mr. Earle receiver for the Pennsylvania concern.

Minority bondholders in the Pennsylvania company objected to the settlement on the ground that if the case were sent to trial a larger amount would be secured from the American Sugar Refining Company.

At the conclusion of the court proceedings here to-day it was agreed that each side to the controversy submit to the court before the first Saturday in October a statement of the necessary releases of claims against the American Sugar Refining Company and the terms upon which the releases can be obtained, and the court will then determine finally whether the terms of settlement can be accepted.

LITTLE CHECKS LAWFUL.

No Penalty Even if They Call for Less Than Dollar.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—There is no law which estops a man or woman from writing a check for less than a dollar, despite reports to that effect, according to the Treasury Department. A number of inquiries have reached the department regarding a statement that there was such a provision in the Penal Code about to go into effect.

CONVICT McCANN OF GRAFTING

Jury Finds Chicago Police Inspector Guilty—He Pleads Conspiracy.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Police Inspector Edward McCann, charged with "grafting," was found guilty by a jury which reported in Judge Barnes's court to-day. Sentence, however, was not pronounced, and will not be until after the hearing of arguments for a new trial. The law provides an indeterminate sentence in prison. State Attorney Wayman charged that "graft" aggregating many thousands of dollars had been collected from various resorts in return for "protection" by the Inspector in charge of the Desplaines Street district, and the chief witness against McCann was Louis Frank, a Russian immigrant, who, although unable to read or write, has accumulated a fortune of several hundred thousand dollars in the west side Tenderloin. He and his brother Julius have for years exercised a marked power in the west side politics.

Louis Frank testified that he collected the "protection" money. The first two collections, he stated on the witness stand, were paid to Detective Jeremiah Griffin, who, he said, acted as agent for McCann. Thereafter, he declared, he had given the money to McCann in person.

The rate for "protection" was said to be $40 a month. Several checks, each dated a month apart and calling for that sum, were exhibited in court.

McCann's defense was that he had suppressed and regulated vice in his district with so rigorous a hand that a conspiracy headed by Louis Frank was formed against him.

McCann came to this country from Scotland. He was first a miner, but twenty years ago joined the Chicago police force as a patrolman.

GIRL WIFE SEEKS FREEDOM.

Says She Was Compelled to Wed Diamond by His and Her Mother's Threats

An action will be begun to-day in the Supreme Court, Special Term, before Justice Aspinall, by Helen Diamond, for an annullment of her marriage to Philip Diamond, on Aug. 4, 1907, on the ground that she was only sixteen at the time and was coerced into marrying the defendant against her will. According to the statements of her lawyer she met Diamond at a party in Harlem. He was employed in a restaurant at the time and wore fine clothes and diamonds. Her mother, Mrs. Weil, with whom she was living, urged the girl to marry Diamond, but she at first refused. Then, it is alleged, Mrs. Weil threatened suicide if the daughter remained obdurate.

Diamond, who was then twenty-two years old, threatened the girl, the lawyer says. The plaintiff alleges that to save herself from injury she consented to marry him, and the ceremony was performed by Alderman Dotzler at the City Hall.

After the wedding the young couple went to board in Eldridge Street, but their married life was unhappy and the wife was continually going back to her mother. This went on, says the lawyer, until last May, when the girl-wife made a final appeal to her mother to allow her to return to her former home for good, as she refused to live with her husband any longer.

The lawyer says he has been unable to find the husband, but he is believed to be somewhere in this city.

Relatives Bernheimer's Chief Heirs.

By the will of Abraham Bernheimer, a retired merchant of this city, who died in Saratoga on Sept. 13, $1,000 each goes to the Hebrew Benevolent and Orphan Asylum, Mount Sinai Hospital, and the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews. More than $90,000 is distributed among twenty-four nephews and nieces. The home at 322 West Fifty-eighth Street goes to Mrs. Isabella Hart for life; if sold, at her request, $5,000 a year income is to be paid to her. The residue goes to the issue of the testator's brother, Simon Bernheimer.

ESTAB. OVER HALF A CENTURY

TWO-YEAR-OLDS IN CLOSE CONTESTS

Little King for the Holly and Spindle for a Purse Win in Head Finishes.

UPSET IN SELLING RACE

Choirmaster of Chesterbrook Runs Away from the 1-to-12 Favorite, The Peer, at Gravesend Track.

The two-year-olds, in two events, made the real horse racing at the Gravesend track yesterday. For the remainder of the programme the fields, with few runners in most of them, straggled home in long processions. Heads and noses divided the two-year-olds at the finishes, and though in both the Holly Stakes, the feature of the card, and the purse for maidens, the post favorites were beaten, the results were convincing and popular. The full field named for the Holly, over the short six-furlong course, went to the post to race over a rather dull track, the going in a great measure being responsible for Pretend being sent out as the favorite at a short price.

Ben Loyal, the last-chance outsider in the field of six, broke best, but was hardly in motion in front when Little King moved up and joined with him in the lead and in the first furlong drew clear in front. Ben Loyal fought after Little King, holding second place, while the lot behind were carried so fast that Pretend and Intrinsic, the two choices, were shuffled in and out in the hopeless pursuit. Little King was not headed after he took the lead, but Ben Loyal drove Glass on the leader to the whip in the last furlong, and was closing slowly when Little King got to the winning post first by a nose, Ben Loyal second, while two lengths away Pretend, closing fast in the run through the stretch, got up to snatch third place by a head from Huda's Sister.

In the selling mile and a furlong, for which only three horses ran, a tremendous upset was produced when Capt. E. B. Cassatt's colt Choirmaster of Chesterbrook beat the 12 to 1 on favorite The Peer. The four horses scratched out of the race left it seemingly at the mercy of The Peer, and the result looked such a certainty that The Peer was backed from 1 to 8 to 1 to 12 by bettors eager to gather in sure winnings. When the horse was at 1 to 8 an excited commissioner urged Pat Dunne, owner of The Peer, to bet on him and pick up an extra $100. Dunne laughed and answered, "Why, if a man had $800, what in the world would he want another $100 for?" The Peer ran unbacked by his owner, and broke his heart in a vain chase after Choirmaster of Chesterbrook, who, though regarded as only a forlorn chance, ran up to his one good race of the year, at Saratoga, when he won in deep mud.

King's Daughter, at odds on, won the mile and three-sixteenth handicap, hips in front of Arasee, which closed on the filly and straightened her out in the last furlong, after she made all the pace. Emperor William was never headed in the mile and a sixteenth condition race, but he was doing his best at the end to win by a half length from Practical. The summaries:

New England for Championships.

A great deal of interest has been added to the coming indoor championships at Madison Square Garden on Oct. 4 and 5 by the announcement that a strong team from the New England district will be on hand. At the annual meeting of the New England Association on Monday night last the Board of Managers of that association decided to appropriate $125 to help defray the expenses of some athletes to these championships.

The following athletes will probably be among those selected: E. E. Nelson, Nat Sherman, W. C. Prout, Frank P. [illegible], J. B. Ballard, H. A. Gidney, S. C. Lawrence, E. L. Farrell, W. W. Coe, Jr., Ellery Clark, E. C. Leavitt, J. W. Mayhew, W. [illegible], T. F. O'Hara, E. G. Ryder, and [illegible].

HONOR COMMODORE CHILDS.

Gravesend Bay Yachtsmen Celebrate Fayette's Victory.

Commodore W. H. Childs of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club was honored by his clubmates and a hundred or more members of other Gravesend Bay Yacht clubs last night at an informal celebration at the Bensonhurst Club in honor of the victory of the Joyette in the recent sonderklasse races with the German yachtsmen at Marblehead. Speeches were made by Commodore Childs, owner of the winning boat; W. W. Swan, the skipper; Butler Whiting, one of the crew, and Charles D. Mower, the designer. Others who spoke of the victory and the honor thereby conferred upon Gravesend Bay yachting were Commodore Towen of the Brooklyn Yacht Club and Rear Commodore Probst of the Atlantic Yacht Club.

Mr. Childs made the interesting statement that when the next race with the German sonder class boats is held, probably next year at Kiel, he will be prepared to enter his boat for the American team, or else he will build a new boat. The victory of the Joyette has aroused considerable interest in sonderklasse racing among the Gravesend Bay yachtsmen, and several members stated they would build boats of that class for next season's racing, and hold, if possible, a series of intercity sonderklasse regattas on the lower bay.

NEW COACHING RECORD.

Paul A. Sorg's Unicorn Team Covers Mile at Ogdensburg in 3:16½.

Special to The New York Times.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Paul A. Sorg's Unicorn team, Fatty Bates, Tom Mountain, and Brother Jack, to-day beat the world's four-in-hand record made last year, of 3:21 2-5, by covering the distance in 3:16½. The performance was all the more remarkable in view of the fact that the new record was made over a half-mile track. The event was held in connection with the Horse Show here, and was the feature of an interesting day's programme. The three horses which created the world's record were used by Mr. Sorg last year in a four-in-hand which established the figures which were smashed to-day. The popular New York exhibitor received a great ovation when the time was announced, and was overwhelmed with congratulations.

Mr. Sorg will enter the same trio of horses with another in the four-in-hand race from Arrowhead Inn to Madison Square Garden at the exhibition of the National Horse Show Association in November, and will drive against Morris E. Howlett, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, and J. Campbell Thompson.

NEW RECORD AT MINEOLA.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 23.—More than 20,000 persons to-day saw the track record smashed here for the three fastest heats paced. The event was the feature of the third day's light harness racing of the fair of the Agricultural Society of Queens-Nassau Counties, and furnished a fitting conclusion to an afternoon's exciting sport. The record-breaking performance was accomplished by Asa Wilkes in the 2:14 pacing class, when the son of Baron Wilkes-Artful Maid paced three consecutive heats in 2:12¾, 2:09½, and 2:10, respectively. Asa Wilkes not only broke the record for three heats, but came within a quarter of a second of the best time ever made on the track.

New York horses captured two of the three events on the card. California Cresceus, formerly owned by President James Butler of the Empire City Racing Association, won the 2:18 class trot in straight heats, each of which was inside 2:20. Peter, B., driven by Fred Small, gave California Cresceus a hard fight in the third heat, losing by a head.

Joseph F. Gibbons drove the New York Speedway crack, Claro to victory in the 2:19 pace. Claro made his first appearance in a race at White Plains last week, winning five out of six heats in which he started and securing a mark of 2:11½. Claro had matters all his own way and won in straight heats, the fastest being in 2:13½. The summaries:

Good Roads Meeting for St. Louis.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 23.—The second annual National Good Roads Convention, in session here, finished its programme to-day with a tour inspection of the improved roads about Cleveland. The tour was made in cars supplied by the Cleveland Automobile Club, and the trip was made under the direction of the association's Committee on Practical Demonstration. At the close of yesterday's session St. Louis was selected as the place of the next meeting.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN.

The imported English stallion Hawkswicke, owned by H. T. Oxnard, arrived from Mr. Oxnard's Blue Ridge Stud, in Virginia, yesterday, en route to France, where Mr. Oxnard will send him to be sold. Mr. Oxnard paid a big price for Hawkswicke, and his reason for exporting the horse is that he found he did not suit the Blue Ridge mares.

Frederick Johnson's fast mare Jeanne d'Arc, entered to sell for $500 in the first race at Gravesend yesterday, was bid up to $1,200 by J. I. Smith, trainer for J. L. McGinnis, and bought in by the owner for $1,205, her racing costing her owner about twice the value of the purse she won.

James R. Keene's Maskette, entered for the Oriental Handicap to be run to-morrow, worked yesterday in a style that made it seem that she is intended to start. She galloped a mile in 1:39, and was pulled up a mile and a furlong in 1:55. S. C. Hildreth's Fitz Herbert, talked of as her greatest rival, also worked, doing a mile in 1:41, and finishing out a mile and a furlong in 1:54 3-5.

The three-year-old Blackford, claimed out of a selling race by E. Hughes, and transferred to Dr. S. W. Street a few days ago, was returned to his owner, C. J. Quinn, yesterday under the orders of the Gravesend Stewards on the statement of the owner of the Lexington Stable, for which Hughes acted as agent, that Hughes was not authorized to make the claim. Blackford had been entered by Street in a handicap, but the entry was declared void.

The weights for the Brook Cup Steeplechase, at three miles, to be run at Belmont Park, Oct. 7, have been announced, with the top weights, Thistledale, 164; Sir Wooster, 160; Ballycastle, 156; Rampart, 152, and Pagan Bey, 150. The great two-year-old winner Salvidere, owned by Thomas Hitchcock, has been schooled to jump in his old age, and is one of the light weights, at 149.

Jockey Butwell entered the Stewards' stand after the finish of the third race yesterday and obtained permission to break his engagements for the day, as he said efforts to reduce his weight had made him too sick and weak to ride in the last three races. Butwell already had been announced as the rider of Etherial in the fourth race, and there was some criticism when Grand was substituted without notice.

In the announcement of the weights for the Oriental Handicap, one mile and a furlong, to be run at Gravesend to-morrow, the five top weights are of S. C. Hildreth's Stable: King James, 137; Fitz Herbert, 128; Firestone, 126; Moquette, 124, and Uncle, 124. The next weights are Olambala, Hilarious, and Maskette, 118 each, and Sir John Johnson, 118.

SPEED RECORDS MAY FALL AT BRIGHTON

BIG RACE STARTS TO-DAY

Nine of the Most Powerful and Speediest Racers to Line Up at 5 P. M. for Twenty-four-Hour Race.

Nine of the most powerful and fastest automobiles ever constructed in Europe and America will go to the starting line at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the international twenty-four-hour automobile track championship over the fast Brighton Beach Motordrome course. That this race will be the most stubbornly fought contest from start to finish of any yet held here is indicated by the elaborate preparations made by all the entrants and the comparative evenness in the betting.

All of the cars had their final try-outs on the course yesterday, and the track was unanimously declared to be faster and safer than ever before. From the practice speed shown by the Fiat, Palmer & Singer, Lozier, and Rainier cars it is on the cards for a general overturning of the record table if the elements be at all favorable. All of the cars in the race are to be assembled at 10 o'clock this morning at the headquarters of the Motor Racing Association, in the Astor Theatre Building, Broadway and Forty-fifth Street, while the drivers and team managers are given their final instructions by A. B. Cordner, Chairman of the Brighton Beach Committee of the Motor Racing Association. After a talk has been given on the conduct of the race the cars will be driven down Broadway and over the Williamsburg Bridge, and thence along Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, and the Ocean Parkway to the motordrome.

In the drawings yesterday for numbers and race positions, the American Roadster scored for No. 1. The order at the start, with revised list of drivers, will be as follows:

No. 1, American Roadster, (50 h. p.,) Hugh Hughes, G. Tolman, drivers.
No. 2, Palmer & Singer, (60 h. p.,) Ray Howard, Frank Lescault, drivers.
No. 3 Lozier, (50 h. p.,) H. Cobe, J. Seymour, drivers.
No. 4, Lozier, (50 h. p.,) Ralph Mulford, C. Patschke, drivers.
No. 5, Buick, (30 h. p.,) Louis Chevrolet, C. Basle, drivers.
No. 6, Buick, (30 h. p.,) Robert Burman, G. De Witt, drivers.
No. 7, Fiat, (45 h. p.,) Ralph De Palma, E. H. Parker, drivers.
No. 8, Rainier, (45-50 h. p.,) Louis Disbrow, H. Lund, drivers.
No. 9, Rainier, (45-50 h. p.,) Wally Owens, C. Bowen, drivers.

The Buick team was strengthened yesterday by the engagement of Charles Basle, who was the driver of the winning Renault in the last big race on the motordrome. With Louis Chevrolet as his alternate, and George De Witt pairing with Robert Burman, the Buick team becomes one of the strongest engaged in the contest. The American Roadster team was also strengthened by the addition of Hugh Hughes to its driving force.

Betting on the race was quite lively yesterday among the admirers of the respective contestants. The Italian Fiat and American Lozier cars continued to be equal favorites at 3 to 1, the powerful Palmer & Singer car taking a jump to 5 to 1 on the report of fast trial work at the beach by Ray Howard and Frank Lescault. The Rainier also was at 5 to 1, while the Buick, partly because of good practice work and partly because of the addition of Basle, moved up to 6 to 1. The American Roadster, which is regarded as a possible dark horse, stood at about 10 to 1. The feeling was general that with the improved track conditions the victor will be required to travel more than 1,200 miles to win the title.

In practice yesterday Ralph De Palma drove the Fiat a mile in 55 seconds, which is close to the record for this track. He also drove ten miles at a shade better than a mile a minute. The Palmer & Singer car reeled off mile after mile at a mile-a-minute clip, while both the Lozier "Sixes" did equally fast work. Basle, who was given his first trial at the wheel of the Buick, contented himself with getting thoroughly accustomed to both his car and the course. The Buick managers have worked out a system of miles per hour that they intend to follow throughout the twenty-four hours, and by which they expect to run over 1,200 miles in that time. This team also has its own signal service, so that its drivers will be constantly informed of their standing in the contest.

The block system of safety signals was satisfactorily tried out on the course last night, as was also the new lighting plant. The course will be practically as bright as day during the dark hours, and spectators will be kept constantly informed by huge bulletin boards of the progress of the race. The gates are to be thrown open at 3 o'clock this afternoon, by which time all of the contesting cars will be tuning up on the track so that there will be no lack of excitement up to the start of the race.

Accidents to Munsey Cars.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Three of the automobiles in the Frank A. Munsey reliability contest from Washington to Boston and return were disabled in the third day's run from Milford, Penn., to Albany, and failed to report here to-night. The Maryland car, driven by A. W. Behrens, was climbing a rough road below Albany when the steering gear became locked and the machine ran into a fence. Jesse L. Cassard, a member of the Technical Committee, was riding in the car as a passenger and was thrown out, but escaped injury. Repairs were made, and the machine is expected to continue on the tour to-morrow.

Car 37, driven by Nat Tuttle, and the Washington car, driven by W. D. Arrison, were delayed for several hours because of accidents. Both are to report early to-morrow.

The run to-morrow is from Albany to Boston, with a check at Springfield and Worcester. Six of the twenty-five contestants have perfect scores.

Amateurs' Cushion Carom Billiards.

Thirteen games in the three class tournaments for amateurs at three-cushion carom billiards, in Maurice Daly's Billiard Hall, Broadway and Forty-ninth Street, were played yesterday, with results that left Parham in the lead and practically winner for the Class A contest, Nolan leading in Class B, and Ticehurst, who has won all his games, leading in Class C. The results were as follows:

Class A—Parham, 30; Thompson, 26.
Class B—Roberts, 25; Tobias, 18; Roberts, 25; Obiatt, 24; Smith, 25; Roberts, 20.

Roy Wins Billiard Match.

In last night's game of the three-cushion handicap tournament now in progress at Doyle's Academy, Broadway and Forty-second Street, M. Roy defeated George North by a score of 25 to 23 in fifty-two innings. The highest run, 4, was made by Roy. To-night at 8 o'clock J. Mannahan will meet H. Norman.

Youngsters in Long Race.

Perhaps as a test to see what strain a youngster can stand, a one-mile event for boys under fourteen years of age has been scheduled for Hamilton Fish Park, between Stanton and East Houston Streets, on Sunday, Oct. 3. One boy of 10 years, S. Nuccio, is already entered, as well as several others whose age is not much greater.

YANKS CLIMB INTO FIFTH PLACE IN RACE

Hilltoppers Score a Double Triumph Over Chicago by Scores of 4 to 2 and 7 to 1.

Locals Bat Walsh and White Hard, and with Good Fielding Win Double-Header Handily.

Could the Yankees play when they've a chance for the pennant as they can when they haven't they might hold the championship years on end. They took both ends of a double-header from the White Sox on the Hilltop yesterday, thus achieving eight successive victories, thereby advancing to fifth place in the race. It was pretty good to win the four-game series from Cleveland. Blanking Chicago is a better performance. Unfortunately all these triumphs are barren, save as they demonstrate the improvement for which Manager Stallings has been working throughout the season. Also, they augur well for the standing of the team in next year's race. One thing is certain—Stallings has a crack corps of pitchers. Lake and Quinn alike were invincible in the duplex engagement, whereas the Hilltoppers found Walsh and White facile in the extreme. The second game, in fact, was a farce from the first, New York making a half-dozen runs in the opening inning. Good plays were plentiful, but through most of the afternoon the element of contest was small. The scores were 4 to 2 and 7 to 1.

Chicago was first to score. The Sox got a count in the initial chapter because Messenger walked, Altizer sacrificed, Messenger stole third, and after Cole strolled and was caught napping off first Dougherty drew a pass and worked a double steal with Messenger that carried the forward runner over the plate. But the spurt was too much for the visitors. With a man on second and two down Purtell sent one up for Gardner, retiring the side.

New York didn't get to the blackboard until the second round. Gardner doubled to right centre, and went to third on Knight's pretty one-bagger to left, being held there by brisk fielding. Jack advanced on Austin's out at first, Altizer holding Gardner on third. Then Gardner and Knight shot under the wire, as a result of Sweeney's stinging single to left. Those two tallies looked good enough. Anyhow, they had to be for the moment, as Lake skied to Cole and Sweeney was thrown out in an attempt at the far turn.

Along about the fourth inning the Yankees concluded their two runs wouldn't do, so they took two more. Knight it was this time who followed precedent by opening with a two-sacker—a good one to right centre. Austin rolled the ball toward third and beat it to first, taking second on Tannehill's wild throw that let Long Jack score. Sweeney sacrificed Jimmy to third, and the runner hurried home on a wild pitch. Lake got his bit, too, but Sullivan's hurl found him napping at first, and Hemphill's grounder was taken into safekeeping by Altizer without the least assistance.

That ended the run-getting so far as New York was concerned in that game, and one more was the best Chicago could do. That second Breezeville tally was gained in the ninth on Dougherty's central triple, and, after Purtell died uselessly at first, Parent's sacrifice fly to Engle. A third strike called on Tannehill ended the game. Walsh was put out in the eighth for protesting against the decision on his own strike-out.

Stallings's men lost no time in the second struggle. In the first inning they not only scored six times, but they did so with two men out—an old Hilltop specialty. Cree led off with a base on balls. Keeler, who had no idea how fruitful the round was to be, sacrificed neatly. Chase also died at first, but there was nothing sacrificial about his retirement, for he meant to land heavily. Birdie came in on Engle's single over second, and Cole furnished the hit. Clyde completed the circuit.

Then, with the bases clear, and two men down, the Toppers started all over again. Gardner got a free ride and Knight singled. The first sprinter crossed the line on Austin's two-bagger to left. Knight and Austin scored on Sweeney's long one-timer to centre. Sweeney recorded as a result of Quinn's double to the same field. Quinn went to third when Cree, up for the second, got a life on Tannehill's error. Keeler, having acquired the going-out habit, grounded to Purtell and expired at first.

It looked just for a few moments as if Chicago might make a contest of it, for Dougherty led with a one-bagger to right and went to second on Purtell's hit. But it took force hits by Parent and Tannehill to fetch Long Pat home, and that was the last of the scoring by the lakesiders, for, though Payne went to first on balls, Tannehill was forced at third. The remainder of the game practically was a procession.

Good catches and fine throws, particularly on the part of the locals, characterized both games, but both were too one-sided to be very enjoyable—except, perhaps, to the bluejackets from the fleet who were scattered among the spectators and to whom almost any sort of big League ball doubtless would have appealed. If a boy had a wishing cap—
If he wished for an outfit complete and fine—
We could make the wish come true.

Boys' suits—not only strong and serviceable—overalls can be that. But suits with a style and finish such as precious few custom tailors can get into boys' clothes.

Boys' shoes—starting with a sturdy school shoe that's great value at $2 and including boys' sizes in many of our most popular men's lasts.

Kearny Honors "Dots" Miller.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 23.—Just before the close of business late last night at a meeting of the Town Council of Kearny, N. J., Mayor L. M. Tr[illegible]k called attention to the fact that John "Dots" Miller, a young man of the town, had developed into one of the baseball "finds" of the season, and had "put Kearny on the map." He asked that some official recognition of the fact be taken that Miller has won fame as second baseman of the Pittsburg team of the National League, the prospective winners of the pennant. Councilmen James McAteer and Hugh Wilkie, the latter an old professional baseball player, seconded the suggestion, and the following resolution was adopted by unanimous vote:

"Whereas, During the past year John "Dots" Miller has attained National fame in his particular line of business, and,

Whereas, His fame having spread throughout the whole of the great United States, reflecting credit upon the town of Kearny, his home, be it

Resolved, by the Town Council of Kearny, That they extend their heartiest congratulations and felicitations upon his great success and triumphal termination of his efforts, as well as that of his associates."

Final Inter-City Baseball Game.

"Hal" Findlay will do the twirling for the St. Nicholas team in the final baseball game between the Interborough League champions and St. Anne's, amateur champions of Philadelphia, which will be played at Bronx Oval to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. In the first game, in which he met defeat, Findlay retired twelve of his opponents on strike outs in six innings, holding the Quaker lads down to five hits. In the second game, which he won, six singles were his opponents' portion and five strike outs were added to his record. Graham will do the catching for the home team, while Hendron and Gallagher will be in the points for the Philadelphians.

GIANTS CAPTURE TWO IN ST. LOUIS

PITCHERS WERE HIT HARD

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 23.—The Giants celebrated the first anniversary of "Merkle Day" by capturing both games of a double-header from the Cardinals. The first contest went the limit with the score 5 to 0, and the second was called at the end of the eighth inning with the score 12 to 5 in favor of the visitors.

It was the last appearance of the New York outfit this season, and they hit Raleigh practically whenever they pleased, while Wiltse held the Cardinals in check all through the contest. Seymour opened the proceedings with a single and tallied on a triple by Snodgrass, who scored on Murray's two-bagger. Doyle singled in the third, Seymour and Snodgrass following suit, Doyle registering. Seymour made his third hit in the fifth. Murray gathered in a run in the eighth by bunting safe, stealing second, and crossing the plate on Bridwell's single.

There was little to commend itself in the second meeting of the two teams. Five pitchers were used, and all were hit freely. The Cardinals led for two innings, but once the Giants got going it was simply a case of how many runs they would pile up. The score:

COY WILL NOT PLAY SOON.

Yale Captain Forbidden to Re-enter Football Until Near Nov. 1.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 23.—For the first time since Capt. Ted Coy of the Yale football eleven was removed to a New York Hospital for an operation an official announcement was to-night made by the University Football Association of the nature of his illness. He is declared to have been ruptured and an operation became necessary through the development this Summer of an old bruise. It was said to-night that Coy will be able to leave his bed to-morrow, but he has been forbidden to play before the Yale-Colgate game, Oct. 23. Coy will be able to return to Yale Field and see the eleven practice in about two weeks. The hot wave kept to-day's practice down to the lightest work.

"Pop" Corey returned to-day and was placed at quarter back on the second eleven. "Bus" Brown, tackle last year, also returned to-day. He was placed at right guard on the 'Varsity, Greenough not reporting this afternoon.

Fred Murphy, half back for two years, and baseball Captain last season, is ill with malaria in Meriden, and will be unable to report for a couple of weeks. Goebel is now the only veteran missing, aside from Capt. Coy and Andrus, who cannot reach here till Nov. 1.

Young Middies Show Class in Trials.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 23.—The first football line-up of the season at the Naval Academy took place this afternoon. The opposing elevens were composed of members of the large fourth class squad, which has been at work about ten days. Several of the youngsters made favorable impressions, and star work was done by Austin, half back of the Germantown Academy team last season. Austin made a run of sixty yards, and aroused enthusiasm by his great arm work and skill in evading tacklers. Others who did good work at half back were Hall, Miller, and Foutz. Rodes and Strong showed up well at full back, and Seiler and Cochran at quarter back. Vanderkleet and Holmes were promising candidates for end. These men will probably be assigned to the first squad, which begins work on Monday.

MR. BANNARD FOR MAYOR.

What sort of Mayor does this city want, what kind of Mayor does it deserve? Not once in a generation does any party, or union of parties, offer to its suffrages a candidate who more completely fills and meets its need and its desert than Mr. OTTO T. BANNARD, who was nominated by the Republican City Convention yesterday. His nomination is a most gratifying outcome of the Fusion movement, and is as unexpected as it is gratifying, since no such choice, no such high wisdom of counsel and action was looked for in that quarter from the moment when, a few days ago, internal dissension seemed to foreshadow failure. A Mayoralty nomination of this high quality is, indeed, so unusual in New York as to invite and justify superlatives of praise. If it is not an ideal nomination, we should like to know the reason why.

First of all, Mr. BANNARD brings to the discharge of his duties precisely that experience and that knowledge that in the present condition of municipal affairs the office calls for. He is an organizer, he is an administrator. The finances of the city are muddled, its credit is menaced. Mr. BANNARD is experienced, skilled, and successful in the management of large financial affairs. He is President of a great trust company, and he is a lawyer. The people of the city may confidently look to him to bring order and system out of the present chaos. The fiscal policy of the city could hardly be put under wiser guidance.

In the forces immediately under his control as Mayor Mr. BANNARD will enforce efficiency and discipline. He is not a man who can be fooled or trifled with. Rigid accountability will be established for all departments of the city government, whether they are immediately under his control or not. The Mayor has great powers. They will be exercised with firmness and with wisdom by Mr. BANNARD if he is elected Mayor. Weakness, incompetence, dereliction will be sharply called to account. These are not mere general prophecies; they are inferences warranted by Mr. BANNARD's business career.

Men are accustomed to inquire as to the "availability" of the nominee. There is something to be said upon that score. Mr. BANNARD has been a working member of the Republican organization in this county. He has used his voice and his influence for good candidates, for sound causes. This service has not only given him some qualifying knowledge of politics, it entitles him to the loyal support of every Republican voter. The Republicans of all the boroughs first nominated him, they are under every obligation to support him in good faith.

Men will ask in what way can interest in his candidacy be awakened among the voters who belong to what is called the plain people. We should say that that question might very effectively be answered by Mr. ROBERT W. DE FOREST. Mr. DE FOREST is known as a philanthropist. No man in the city better deserves the appellation. He is the President of the Charity Organization Society. In that society Mr. BANNARD has been an active and efficient worker for more than twenty-five years, not merely by allowing his name to be used and by appearing at the council table, but by giving of his time, his thought, and his means to promoting the beneficent endeavors of the society. He has labored to advance the welfare of the people of the crowded quarters by the opening of small parks, by the establishing of free baths and places of recreation, by the reform of tenement house abuses, and the increase of the number of school sittings. It is precisely among that class of the city's population to which Judge GAYNOR makes his most frantic appeals, and for which he poses as a champion, that Mr. BANNARD has done much, very much, to raise the standard of comfort and to make life better and happier.

But it is to the whole city, to its entire population rather than to any part or class, rich or poor, that the appeal should be made, and justifiably may be made, for the election of a candidate of his fitness and qualification. It is incredible that any property owner, any taxpayer, any voter of whatever calling or station who has had reason to complain of the defects of municipal administration, who distrusts Tammany and fears the consequences of its rule, should be so foolish and misguided as to neglect this opportunity to bring about precisely those conditions of wise, sound, and honest government that he professes to desire. Mr. BANNARD is not a man of experiment and groping, not a radical. He is as far as possible from being a crank. He is a man of balance and judicial quality, of sterling common sense, and when to all this ability and experience are added, we get a pretty large sum of qualification for the office.

The One Hundred will, of course, accept him. It would be imbecile to do anything else. All that is wise and saving and commendable in their programme can be accomplished by Mr. BANNARD, and there has been no moment from the beginning of their labors when they could have expected a better result.

Mr. BANNARD's name has often been mentioned for this nomination, and he has many times, at all times, said that he did not want the office, that he could not consent to the use of his name. Obviously, it would be in many ways a sacrifice for him to accept this nomination, but it is one of those sacrifices which a great community has a right to call upon men like him to make. The convention has called him to an honorable duty.

THE WEATHER AND THE CELEBRATION.

The unsettled weather and rains of this week warrant the hope that we shall have clear skies and dry pavements for the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. There may be more rain near at hand, but we are likely to be through with the "equinoctial" to-day at latest. This is a cheering reflection, because, though little has been said, everybody has been fearing that the equinoctial storm of legend would burst upon us when the decorations were all completed and the millions of sightseers were getting into line to see the parade. It is impossible for even the scientific weather sharps positively to predict fair weather for all next week, but the equinoctial storm is a myth, like that associating canine madness with the ascendency of the dog-star, and we have had rain enough to allay any reasonable fears. There is no harm in being hopeful.

Of course, those bigoted folks who believe in the equinoctial storm will not be comforted. They will continue to predict heavy rains every day until they come. If there is a tempest in mid-October they will call that the equinoctial storm and be satisfied. But it will not be the equinoctial storm any more than yesterday's warm weather was Indian Summer. People who have no prejudices, however, and are not slaves to tradition, may as well go ahead and make their preparations for a week of festivity reasonably secure in their expectancy of fair weather.

THE LATEST SUBWAY PROPOSAL.

Deferring to the Public Service Commission so far as possible, the Interborough Company has abandoned its own idea of the route which best combines its interests as a company with the interests of the public, and substitutes for its Lexington Avenue and Third Avenue route a single route for a four-track subway on Madison Avenue. Certain details in connection with elevated railway extensions in the Bronx remain unadjusted, but are by no means unadjustable. The Interborough is and has been ready to construct a west side line southward under Seventh Avenue from Times Square. It is clear that a responsible proposal to build an upper east side and lower west side extension to the present Subway system is so attractive that the Public Service Commission cannot afford in the public interest to be less openminded than the Interborough managers. They have been convinced against their interests in their opinion, but the Public Service Commission can be actuated only by mere pride of opinion in being obstinate.

There are now two excellent routes in a way of being bid upon by responsible parties. This ought to have an important bearing upon the political situation, which includes a movement to commit the city further to borrowing beyond the constitutional limitation, and to municipal construction and ownership, possibly with municipal operation in the background. From these misfortunes yesterday's proposal goes far to deliver us. But it ought to be borne in mind that these two good routes are alternatives. The bidder upon either route is not likely to bid on the other, and the acceptance of either route doubtless will defer if not prevent the construction of the other.

SECRETARY DICKINSON'S APPEAL.

Mr. TAFT's Secretary of War delivered yesterday a very earnest address at Nashville to his fellow-citizens of Tennessee, which in effect was an appeal to them to respond in good faith to the advances made by the President to the people of the South. These advances consist, first, in the recognition of the South in the Administration by the appointment of a Southern man to one of the most important offices in the Cabinet, and, second, in the policy of the President in stating that he will not appoint negroes to "offices in the South which bring them into unpleasant relations with the white people," to the injury of both races.

Secretary DICKINSON interprets this action of the President as practically a recognition of the fact that the white people must govern in the South. That may be putting his view a little bluntly, but we think it is putting it fairly. Starting with that assumption, he pleads with his people that their Government must be just to all, and particularly just to the negroes. Especially must legal and not lawless methods be used. He says:

> If the white people assert the right to govern, then the Government should be one of fairness and justice, a Government of law, and not of passion. The courts, and not mobs, should punish lawbreakers. Negroes should be protected in their property rights, settled with justly and governed by the constituted authorities. Those who established the Commonwealth of Tennessee, such men as JAMES ROBERTSON, JOHN SEVIER, and ANDREW JACKSON, would have spurned with indignation the very suggestion that in time of peace they did not have virtue and manhood enough to enforce the law through the courts. The cankering virus of mob rule, no matter against what evils directed, destroys all wholesome life in the body politic, and makes it a polluted wreck, swayed by passion and incapable of the ordinary administration of law.

This point Mr. DICKINSON elaborates and repeats with much emphasis and eloquence. It is, of course, extremely elementary, and ought not to require argument. It is not a matter that concerns the negroes only or even chiefly. The insidious injury wrought by the practice of lawlessness, whether it be violent in form, or whether it be simply cheating the weak, is really worse for those who resort to it than for their victims. When Mr. DICKINSON begs the white people of the South in their dealings with the negroes to use only lawful methods for equitable ends, he feels that it is for their own fundamental and enduring interest that he argues.

In one respect Mr. DICKINSON does not go so far as Mr. TAFT has gone. He does not avow any difference of opinion with the President, but he stops short of the stand the President has taken. Mr. TAFT has several times, and once quite recently, in connection with the negro disfranchising scheme of the Democrats in Maryland, declared that while the whites of the South had a perfect right to impose conditions of suffrage which the negroes as a class would in practice be unable to meet, these conditions must, in justice, and in conformity with the Constitution of the United States, be imposed upon blacks and whites alike. For any violation or evasion of this basic principle the President has no approval or toleration. On the contrary, he denounces either violation or evasion with prompt severity and unmistakable clearness. Doubtless Secretary DICKINSON agrees with the President, though he did not take the latest occasion to declare his agreement.

CLERMONT AND HALF MOON.

The people of Holland have presented to the people of New York their reproduction of HENRY HUDSON's Half Moon. An exact reproduction of ROBERT FULTON's Clermont has been made. Both should be objects of great popular interest and educational value long after the water parade to the head of navigation on the Hudson. When the Hudson-Fulton Celebration is over, what shall be done with these historic boats?

To open the discussion, THE TIMES suggests that they be placed in the lake in Central Park, there to serve as permanent floating museums. They are at the disposal of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, a body officially representing this State and city, and supported by public funds. The Clermont and the Half Moon will therefore be held in trust for the public amusement and edification. But where?

PROGRESS OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Three months' imprisonment at hard labor, with an extra month in case their fines are not paid, is the fitting punishment of two female outlaws who, ostensibly in the cause of woman suffrage, caused a riot at a political meeting in Birmingham, England. The English magistrates are waking up. The kind of martyrdom the militant suffragettes are seeking is not this. A few weeks' confinement in jail, with unusual comforts, no work, and the privilege of addressing crowds of sympathizers from the windows is a very different thing from imprisonment at hard labor without concessions. "We will sentence the next man who holds a political meeting to death," exclaimed one of the convicts. But there is no danger in that threat. After her three months of prison labor that malcontent will be satisfied with the obscurity of private life.

We have the highest authority, indeed, for stating that the women do not intend to obtain the ballot by bloodshed. Mrs. O. H. P. BELMONT, who, as everybody now knows, is a leader of oppressed womanhood toward the light, says there will be no bloodshed in this generation, or the next, anyhow. Few of us will survive the next generation, so none of us needs to worry. But Mrs. BELMONT, according to an article in Pearson's Magazine, declares the present woman suffrage movement hereabout to be a failure. A new force, she thinks, must be brought to bear against the men. The time will come "when women will withdraw from every activity in which they are now associated with men." There will be a general female strike. The women will refuse to marry, and "will have nothing to do with the men, socially, industrially—any way."

This sort of talk is not criminal. Nobody can be sentenced to three months' hard labor for saying such things. But this kind of advocacy of their cause must be a sore affliction to the comparatively few cultivated, intelligent, and otherwise sensible women who honestly believe that the bestowal of the ballot on their sex would serve to correct some of the evils which now afflict society.

In the latest installment of the diary of Secretary WELLES, in The Atlantic Monthly, there are many examples of the confusion that prevailed even in Cabinet circles as to the character of the various men prominent in the affairs of the day. Mr. CHASE was distrusted by nearly all the other members of the Cabinet as extremely ambitious. STANTON was deeply suspected of arbitrary aims by WELLES and SEWARD, while the former had little confidence in either of the others. But one of the most remarkable of contemporary judgments is the following comparison between Gen. SHERMAN and Gen. GRANT, written on the morrow of the capture of Charleston, Feb. 21, 1865:

> Gen. SHERMAN is proving himself a great General, and his movements from Chattanooga to the present demonstrate his ability as an officer. He has undoubtedly greater resources—a more prolific mind—than GRANT, and perhaps as much tenacity, if less cunning and selfishness.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Killing with a Lesson.

Whether it was quite necessary to shoot and kill the burglar whom a Bronx householder caught entering his bathroom window Wednesday night is a question of some interest, but, serious as is the taking of human life, the question is almost purely academic, since the use of the pistol was, in the circumstances, fully justified in law and morals.

The man had carefully prepared for his invasion, in carrying it out he had shown skill, persistence and the sort of courage which a few criminals possess, and it is fair to assume that if he had not been surprised in a moment of temporary helplessness, he would have used any amount of violence needful to effect his escape. Had Mr. ROFFE been content with merely driving the thief away, all he had to do probably was to keep his distance and raise an outcry. That is the course which the police and not a few other authorities advise in such cases, as avoiding a conflict on disadvantageous terms with a desperate man. Undoubtedly it is the safest course, judging the immediate consequences to be expected, but it is the safest for the burglar as well as for the householder, and, if always followed, would tend greatly to increase the popularity of burglary as a profession.

From the broader social standpoint, it is well that nocturnal prowlers should have to count on the fact that among honest citizens there is now and then one who, when confronted at midnight by a robber, instead of carefully balancing the perils of resistance against the cost of submission, yields to primordial instincts, fights for his own, and fights to kill. This may be unwise, since a man's life is worth more to him than his forks and spoons, but it is also wise and even noble in that it subordinates individual interests to those of society—and in the long run, after all, the interests of society are identical with those of the individual.

Everybody in the Bronx should—though probably not everybody in the Bronx will—sleep the more peacefully because of the summary termination of this burglar's existence. For some time, at least, it will receive the thoughtful consideration of other burglars, and they will hesitate to operate in a region where, as they now have good reason to believe, some of the residents are likely to resort to desperately effective measures in defending themselves and their property from midnight marauders.

Relic Hunting Carried to Extremes.

Sydney, the lively little metropolis of Cape Breton, is proud of its harbor, which keeps open all Winter; of its steel works, which give it something the air of a miniature Pittsburg, and even more of the fact that it is a favorite resort of arctic explorers when starting and returning from their expeditions. Commander PEARY has now made it famous all over the world, at least to the extent of getting its name in all of the world's newspapers, but, unfortunately for Sydney's reputation, equally wide diffusion has been given to the dreadful news that the property of this welcome visitor wasn't safe in Sydney harbor, and that when he received guests on the ship some of them showed their appreciation of his hospitality by stealing such easily portable articles as they could lay their hands on when nobody was looking.

As the town was full of strangers when the thing happened, it would not be fair to assume that all of these depredations were committed by its own residents, but, according to report, some of them were guilty and have confessed, so the case is bad enough for Sydney at best. It is only fair, however, to admit that the explorers might have had a like experience anywhere. For everywhere the craze for getting "souvenirs" of any notable event or person exists, and few of its victims can resist the temptation which an opportunity to satisfy their morbid longings creates.

They are not exactly thieves, and what they do is not exactly theft. They do the most abominable things, and not infrequently inflict irreparable losses, but by some queer twist of mind they are able to convince themselves that their acts are permissible, and, after a fashion, admirable. They will ruthlessly chip a fragment from a gravestone or a work of art, and they somehow find excuse in the circumstance that what they take is in itself usually of no value. When it has money worth, the palliating argument is more mysterious, but evidently none the less effective, for these vandals will often exhibit their loot with all the signs of sincere pride, and evidently think that their conduct will be viewed, if not with approval, at least without any harsh criticism.

The Sydney relic hunters appropriated records made by members of the expedition, and to take any charitable view of that is indeed difficult. It can be pardoned only on the plea of phenomenal stupidity and ignorance—and then on condition that the records be promptly returned to the owners. It is Sydney's first duty to see that this is done, at no matter what cost to the pride of those whose enthusiasm for the explorers took this detestable form.

The End Is Not Yet.

Those 300 apparently sane people who gathered near Boston yesterday in confident expectation that the world would come to an end at 10 A. M. had the fate which many another group with like exclusive information had suffered. Their appointed time came—and nothing happened.

It would be interesting to know if they were the more disappointed or relieved. It is not at all probable that anybody who is present when the world ends will enjoy the process, and it is hard to believe that anticipation of that event is pleasant. But it is also disagreeable to be exposed to ridicule as mistaken prophets.

In times not very remote, announcements that terrestrial affairs would terminate on a fixed date excited more apprehension than they do now. The Millerites more than once created something like widespread terror among the ignorant and credulous—and a bit of uneasiness among people with some claims to common sense. Now nothing like general excitement can be caused in this particular way, and the world-ending fanatics are rewarded only with smiles, pitying or derisive. Perhaps this is a mark of progress.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECHES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The President was expected to defend himself in his speech on the tariff, but instead he has defended the Payne bill.

Crediting the President with consistent thought, I would like to know what he meant when he said at the Yale dinner substantially that if the Republican Party did not fulfill its promises to the people it would be relegated to the minority opposition. Everybody thought he was speaking about the tariff, and it seems everybody was mistaken. I, however, believe that he was right when he said the Republican Party would be relegated to the minority. W. LUTHY.

New York, Sept. 21, 1909.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As to Mr. Taft's speech at Des Moines yesterday, is it possible that, like his predecessor, he is going to try to divert the attention of the dear people from the tariff question by assuring them of the need of further railroad legislation? It will be recalled how successfully this was done by Mr. Roosevelt. Can the people, after their experience of recent years, be made to believe that further railroad legislation will be better for them than further tariff revision? Can all of the people be fooled all the time?

New York, Sept. 21, 1909. RAILROADER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read Mr. Taft's Winona speech as reported in THE NEW YORK TIMES, and feel myself compelled to ask if it is possible that our President himself does not know the iniquities contained in the Payne bill.

He is quoted as saying, "In cotton there has been a change in the higher priced cottons and an increase. There has been no increase in the lower-priced cotton, and of the increases the high-priced cottons enter into the consumption of the country to the extent of $41,000,000." J. C. LARKIN.

PELLAGRA.

Moisture in Corn Believed to be a Chief Cause of Disease.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. Edward James Wood of Wilmington, N. C., in a paper published in the journal of the American Medical Association of July 24, 1909, says that the moisture in corn is one of the greatest sources of pellagra. The corn, besides being gathered green, is not always carefully handled, and is in consequence poorly protected from moisture. He was impressed by the fact that practically all the corn used by the people came from Ohio and Virginia, though in neither of these States had pellagra ever been reported. It would appear that the noxious agent must develop after the shipping of the corn. Many Southern observers attach importance to the heating of the corn which so often occurs in hot, moist climates before the cars are unloaded. The treatment of acute pellagra is of on avail; chronic cases may be benefited by proper food and general sanitary measures. LEONARD WEBER, M. D.

No Foreign Flags in Sight.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Coming up on the car this evening from Exchange Place to Twenty-third Street, a distance of over two and a half miles, the writer did not see even one foreign flag, except a couple of French Tri-colors outside a French glove shop, and a string of flags of all nations, flags about the size of table napkins, at the corner of Cedar Street, I think, and Broadway. What a splendid way to treat our guests, and how proud we ought to feel of ourselves!

The first thing an American looks for abroad at fetes and celebrations is the Stars and Stripes, and he is never disappointed. Even an international banking house of the importance of J. P. Morgan & Co. cannot find space for anything but Stars and Stripes.

Why Not Show Polar Dogs?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reading the fine poem in THE TIMES this morning on the polar sledge dog, I am reminded that the dogs which went through to the pole would make excellent museum material, and I wonder if any of our enterprising showmen have begun to make overtures for their shipment to this country. If they have not, isn't it about time they were getting a "mush" on? "Mush" is arctic dog language, and means to move along there—"giddap," as we would say. PATRON.

MR. TILDEN'S WILL.

Its Former Custodian Tells the Story of Its Making.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the editorial, "The Writing of Wills," which appeared in THE TIMES of Sunday, Sept. 19, and which seems to have been prompted by some remarks made by Daniel S. Remsen before the Bankers' Convention, recently held in Chicago, reference is made to the will of Samuel J. Tilden.

By reason of Mr. Tilden's prominence in the profession of the law, and in the affairs of State, as well as by reason of the amount of property involved, his will has attracted, and is likely to continue to attract, attention. It may, therefore, not be considered amiss to correct some errors which have been stated in connection with it.

The famous instrument, over which the memorable contest was made, is in the handwriting, and was in the custody of, the writer of this communication, (then Mr. Tilden's private secretary, and now an executor of his estate,) from before its completion until after the death of the testator. In all, Mr. Tilden made three wills. The first, made just before his departure for Europe in 1873, was drawn by James P. Sinnott, then an attorney in Mr. Tilden's office, and later a Justice of the Marine Court. The second was dictated by Mr. Tilden, with possibly some suggestions from Andrew H. Green, in whose handwriting the will is. The third, and last, will was taken in part from the last preceding will, with some changes and additions dictated by Mr. Tilden. Mr. Carter took no part whatever in the preparation of any of these wills. After the completion of the last will and before its execution, in April, 1884, Mr. Tilden invited Charles O'Conor, then living in retirement at Nantucket, to visit him in New York and confer upon the will. A few days after, Mr. O'Conor, accompanied by his secretary, came to the city, and, declining the proffered hospitality of the abode on Gramercy Park, took quarters at the Grand Hotel. During his sojourn several conferences were had, and a few changes in the will were made. After the will was finished, Mr. O'Conor said that while he possibly might, after further consideration of some of the provisions, think some changes advisable, the will as it then stood was absolutely valid in law. He said he thought the will a very wise one, and particularly approved the provisions for the female beneficiaries, inasmuch as they safeguarded them against any harmful male influence. To aid him in the further consideration of the will, I made a copy of it, which I took with me to hand him when I called on him at the hotel the evening before he left for his home. As we met in the parlor he complained of feeling ill, and after expressing his misgivings about his being able to give further attention to the matter, said I had better not leave the paper; but to tell Gov. Tilden that in case he wished to confer with any one else, he had better confer with Mr. Carter. The illness which had seized Mr. O'Conor was a fatal one, which terminated his life at Nantucket during the following month. Sometime later Mr. Carter had an interview with Mr. Tilden at the latter's home at Yonkers, and the copy of the will was given him. This he retained for a considerable length of time without making any report upon it; and, at the request of Mr. Tilden, I called one evening upon Mr. Carter, at his home on East Seventeenth Street, in relation to it. He was much engrossed in work, and said that he had been too much otherwise absorbed, and should continue so to be for some time to come, to give Mr. Tilden's matter any attention; and that he would prefer to return the paper, which he did. This is all Mr. Carter had to do with Mr. Tilden's will until after the latter's death, when the services of Mr. Carter's firm were engaged by Mr. Tilden's executors. For the reason that so long before his death as the time of the drawing of his will did Mr. Tilden fully realize the slender hold he had on life, I am disposed to believe that his failure to acquire the benefit of others' judgment, as to the validity of his will, is not attributable to his being "surprised by death," but to his confidence in his own judgment, fortified by that of one so eminent in his profession as Charles O'Conor, and afterward approved by Justice Lawrence in Special Term, Justice Daniels in General Term, and by three of the seven Judges of the Court of Appeals.

STORM KING AND BREAKNECK.

Two Famous Hudson River Landmarks Being Marred.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Probably few people realize the extent of the destruction of Hudson scenery except those of us who observe it while traveling up and down. Within the last year work has started upon the nose of Storm King, one of the most rugged and picturesque contours of the highlands, and already a big scar has been made. The City of New York is guilty, too, as the shafts for the water tunnel crossing have made quite an impression upon the famous Breakneck.

The highlands have so long been famous for their beauty that it is inconceivable that a great State like New York can calmly tolerate their destruction, yet whenever any bill reaches Albany to restrain the vandalism the move is anticipated and the bill lost.

In line with Gov. Hughes's policy of reform it would seem as though this question were of greater moment than some of the agitations against corporate power, which while possibly not giving full value at least are not destroying what should be sacred to all of us.

MISS PECK PRAISES PEARY.

Noted Mountain Climber Rejoices at His Success.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to congratulate you most heartily on having secured from our distinguished fellow-citizen, the greatest of all arctic explorers, Commander Robert E. Peary, the telegraphic account of his wonderful achievement in reaching the north pole.

All of us who have for many years followed the struggles which Mr. Peary has made toward this goal, at the same time contributing far more to our knowledge of that region than any other one person has ever done, are delighted beyond measure that, to use his own words, "the magnificent prize which he was straining out his life to reach" at last has fallen within his grasp.

Peary will receive a more than royal welcome in his own land, where the integrity of his character, his ability, courage, perseverance, and previous achievements are so well established that enthusiastic acclamation from all sides will be his well-earned portion. We are indeed proud of him. ANNIE S. PECK.

Alfalfa.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of Sept. 20, you say, under the heading, "Men Lacking, Not Land," that Connecticut soil will produce four tons of alfalfa to the acre, according to The Hartford Times, and you welcome this as good news. Much has been said of late about the great value of alfalfa, and I presume it is true, but what is somewhat puzzling to me is that this plant or grass, so well and so long known in Europe should be heralded seemingly as a new discovery. Yet the writer, in his boyhood days, has seen it growing in France everywhere—some seventy-five years ago, and how long before "memory runneth not." We are somewhat prone to take credit to ourselves for so-called discoveries; I hope alfalfa will not be classified in that category. The recommendations that appear from time to time in our newspapers for better and scientific farming are quite timely, and the rule-of-thumb farming is not worthy of a country as progressive as we claim to be. CHURCH AND SCIENTISTS.

Revival of the Story of Bull Against Halley's Comet.

I knew that as soon as Halley's comet would be mentioned again we should once more have the story of Pope Calixtus's bull against the comet. Of course, the story is quite absurd, and there is no such bull, and this has been pointed out over and over again, but that makes no difference. Every time there is a mention of Halley's comet some one retells with a gusto the story of the bull against the comet. Prof. John Draper, in his "Conflict of Religion and Science," told the story in great detail: "When Halley's comet came in 1456 so tremendous was its apparition that it was necessary for the Pope himself to interfere. He exorcised and expelled it from the skies. It shrank away into the abysses of space, terror stricken by the maledictions of Calixtus III., and did not venture back for seventy-five years! * * * By order of the Pope all the church bells in Europe were rung to scare it away; the faithful were commanded to add each day another prayer, and as their prayers had often in so marked manner been answered by eclipses and droughts and rains, so on this occasion it was declared that the victory over the comet had been vouchsafed to the Pope."

Prof. Andrew D. White went over this subject after Draper in his "Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom," and repeats the old story. Pastor, the historian of the Popes, shows the utter absurdity of it all. It is like the prohibition of surgery. According to Draper and White the Church hampered the progress of surgery by forbidding it to clerics. At the very time when this is supposed to be the case the great father of modern surgery, a cleric, was Chamberlain of the Popes and the body physician to three of them. The text book of surgery that he wrote is one of the greatest of contributions ever made to surgery. It was used for 300 years after his time, and we still have it; but educated (?) people still continue to believe in the Church's opposition to medicine and surgery at that time.

In my little book, "Catholic Churchmen in Science," I tell the story of this supposed Papal bull, which no one has ever found, in the life of Regiomontanus, the father of modern astronomy. Regiomontanus was a great friend of the Popes, was invited to Rome by the successor of Pope Calixtus, and was thought so much of that he was made the Bishop of Ratisbon. Another great student of astronomy at this time, St. Antoninus, Archbishop of Florence, also a great friend of the Popes of this time, has the best description of the significance of comets that was written until Tycho-Brahe's time, and he ridicules the idea of their presaging evil.

But, then, what's the use! Our Protestant friends will still continue to talk about "the bull against the comet." Nothing is more amusing than the self-complacent way in which we assume that the men of the past were absurdly foolish in their way of looking at things, that we in our time are the only ones in possession of real wisdom—save the mark! BECOMING A CITIZEN.

Indignant at Treatment Received at Hands of Officials.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"T. S. R.'s" letter in to-day's TIMES rekindles in me the fires of indignation which disturbed my usual calm on the occasion of my recent application for "first papers" at the Naturalization Bureau. It expresses but mildly the insolent and overbearing attitude of a public servant, whose authority is evidently as supreme as that of the most despotic ruler in the Old World, though almost within sight from the window of his office stands that emblem of the equality of all men, the Statue of Liberty, the pride of every true citizen of the United States.

It is bad enough to be "bullyragged" by a man who is palpably one's inferior in point of manners, intelligence, and social position, but still worse to know that there is no redress and to feel that at the first indication of resentment on one's own part, or at the slightest misunderstanding of a question asked by that dictator, one is liable to be escorted out of the august presence by a policeman and have nothing to show for those weary hours of waiting sometimes covering two or three days.

It is only right that the privilege of citizenship should be extended to only those who can prove themselves worthy, but the present methods are, as "T. S. R." states, degrading, and few self-respecting men will consent to go through the ordeal.

GEOFFREY E. COOKSON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of "T. S. R." in your issue of this morning will be heartily indorsed by every man who is compelled to receive his citizenship papers at the hands of those who now occupy posts which should be filled by decent clerks in the Bureau of Naturalization in this city.

More clerks of the present type would assuredly not lessen the abuses so bitterly complained of; what is needed is a thorough cleaning out of the present force and the filling of their places with good men.

At the time I had my "bullyragging" I brought charges against several of the clerks, and having, by competent witnesses, proved my case, had the satisfaction (sic) of hearing them severely reprimanded by the Judge.

NORTHFIELD SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Northfield Schools were founded thirty years ago to meet great need among poor young men and young women who sought to secure a good education. As it was the founder's firm belief that only those who were willing to help themselves should be helped, he decided that each student should be charged yearly for tuition and board. But to keep the opportunities within reach of the poor he made the fee $100 per year. As this amount covered only half the actual cost, he appealed to his friends to aid him in the work.

As a result of the recent financial conditions our donations decreased last year. Those who had increased their gifts in the panic year felt that immediate need was over, while those who had been obliged to stop giving were unable to resume their aid. Therefore we are at present in imperative need. We must raise $100,000 within ten months to clear the deficit and to meet the current expenses for this year.

Although many have suggested that we raise the cost of tuition in order to partially account for the increased cost, our experience has taught us that to do this would be to put the opportunity of attending the schools beyond the reach of most of those for whom the schools were founded. Over 1,500 applied for entrance this Fall, out of whom we carefully selected 300 students to fill the only vacancies. We appeal most earnestly to your readers, some of whom have generously assisted us before, not to allow so great a work to become crippled for lack of necessary funds. W. R. MOODY.

THE WORLD BEYOND.

The world beyond the sordid office whose god is gold
Has more of peace and joy for humans

The world beyond a city's limits—beyond a State—
Has more, much more, delight to offer than pens relate.

The world beyond that brick and mortar that man calls home
Has riches on all sides to proffer, if one but roam.

Beyond the realm of fact familiar, and rutted thought,
Are glowing scenes forever spreading, and
wonders wrought.

Beyond one's self and habitation, wide and afar,

MINEOLA HORSE SHOW DRAWS LARGE CROWD

KEEN CONTEST FOR RIBBONS

George Watson's Rifle Wins Feature Event—Ladew Biggest Winner in Pony Classes—Donnelly's Riding a Feature.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 23.—One of the largest crowds in its long and successful history turned out to-day for the opening day's session of the Horse Show, held in connection with the annual fair of the Agricultural Society of the Queens-Nassau Counties. Fully 25,000 persons were distributed in different parts of the grounds, and unusual interest was shown in the events on the programme.

Society back from mountain, seashore, and Europe was on hand in full force, and the boxes surrounding the turfed oval were filled with members of the smart set and their guests from New York and the Long Island social colony. It was one of the most representative gatherings ever seen at Mineola, and the Fall costumes played an important part in the exhibition.

The show itself proved up to the standard of former years, and, owing to the large number of new entries, was even more interesting to the spectators, so that instead of spending their time seeing and being seen by each other, the socially elect deigned to devote more than ordinary attention to the horses.

Owing to the fact that the exhibition is largely confined to the residents of Long Island, there was a marked absence of the dealers who materially contribute to the success of the Summer shows, but even under these conditions there was a satisfactory representation of the trade exhibits.

August Belmont, for the first time in many years, appeared as a general exhibitor. For some time past Mr. Belmont has appeared in the catalogue as an exhibitor of ponies, but to-day he showed a splendid chestnut gelding, Saracen, which captured a blue rosette in the heavyweight saddle class, and a red ribbon in the hunting class.

Clarence H. Mackay, who for the past few years has confined his entries to Mineola and Piping Rock, met with fair success. His stable is a small but select one, and he exhibited in only two classes. Mr. Mackay's tandem, Irish Lass and Land o'Burns, won the tandem class from a strong field, while Land o'Burns secured a second ribbon in the harness class.

The class in which Land o'Burns was shown was one of the most important of the day, and brought together an unusually strong representation of high-class harness horses. The premier award went to George Watson's bay gelding Rifle, which was almost perfect in conformation, showed splendid hock action and exhibited all the required style in the requisites of the harness class. George Watson, Jr., won applause for his clever handling of the winner.

Harvey I. Ladew, the owner of Elsinore Farms, was the most successful exhibitor of the day. He won the pony class with his bay gelding Defender, which appeared to advantage. The same pony also won the saddle class, beating Udo M. Fleishman's Roslyn and other good performers, while in the small pony class Mighty Atom, formerly Irvington Cocksparrow, was awarded the red rosette.

Hunters and jumpers occupied a prominent position on the programme. Dick Donnelly, whose riding at the last International Show at the London Olympia created a mild sensation, was busy in these classes, and it was due to his riding that several of the horses secured ribbons. Paul D. Cravath's Hero was the most successful in these classes, winning a first and a third.

The parking spaces surrounding the show ring were filled with vehicles of all descriptions, from the automobiles to four-in-hands, while the promenade was a scene of great activity. Among the prominent society folk present were:

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. A. Butler Duncan, Miss Margaret I. Whitney, Mrs. J. Burden, Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, Miss Vera Cravath, Mrs. M. Burrill, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., Mrs. Hamilton Hadden, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Kemp, H. C. Phipps, J. S. Phipps, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davis, Mrs. Steen, R. GOV. JOHNSON BURIED AT HIS BIRTHPLACE

"A PRINCE AND GREAT MAN"

Text of the Funeral Sermon—Children Strew Flowers—Business Suspended in St. Paul.

ST. PETER, Minn., Sept. 23.—The little town of St. Peter, the birthplace and final resting place of the late Gov. John A. Johnson, held a concourse of people today more than double its population.

From the small towns and surrounding counties as well as from the large cities of the State thousands gathered to pay a last tribute to Minnesota's favorite son.

Not only at St. Peter but throughout the entire State was the day of mourning observed. Between 3 and 3:05 o'clock every railroad and city railway train in the State stopped running and every commercial and manufacturing activity rested in silent tribute. All of the State schools were closed by proclamation.

The buildings in the town were draped in black and white crêpe, flags were half-mast, and pictures of the late Governor, wreathed in the National colors, were seen everywhere.

At stations all along the road from St. Paul the funeral train, which was preceded by several other specials, was viewed with the utmost deference. At Shakepee, Belleplain, and other stations the whole population of each town was at the station. School children, with flags pointed downward, lined the street on each side of the train, while small boys and gray-haired men stood with bared heads as the Governor's body was hurried toward its resting place.

A special train from Minneapolis, carrying the Mayor and city officials from that city, preceded the funeral train.

As the Governor's train pulled into the station at 1:45 P. M., a heavy rain began to fall, but the thousands of persons there stood with uncovered heads. The sun appeared again before the procession reached the Presbyterian Church. The body was escorted from the train to the church by Company K, Second Infantry, Minnesota National Guard, Capt. O. Quane commanding. The rest of the funeral party, in carriages, proceeded in the following order:

Honorary pallbearers, active pallbearers, funeral car, Governor's staff, State officers, Regents of the State University, committees, members of the House and State Senate, State appointees, Mayor Haynes and party of Minneapolis, Mayor Lawlor and party of St. Paul, and county officials.

The honorary pallbearers were ex-Governors L. F. Hubbard, John Lind, S. R. Van Sant, Knute Nelson, and Gov. Eberhart, Chief Justice Start, Gov. John Burk of North Dakota, and President Cyrus Northrup of the University of Minnesota.

The children from the St. Peter public schools, about 600 in number, and 300 students from the Gustavus Adolphus College, formed an avenue near the Court House, through which the cortège passed. The children were provided with flags and the students carried pennants, all draped in mourning.

As the funeral car passed along the streets, little girls dressed in white strewed bunches of flowers in its path. All the blossoms of the local flower gardens had been appropriated and wagonloads were scattered in this way.

The Rev. R. E. Clarke delivered the sermon, using the text: "Know ye not that a Prince and a great man has fallen this day?" In announcing his text the Rev. Mr. Clarke said that no more expressive couplet than a Prince and a great man could be used to characterize Gov. Johnson. He spoke of the great loss to the State and to the Nation in the death of Gov. Johnson, and closed with a glowing personal tribute to his character and achievements.

Brief services were held at Green Hill Cemetery, and the local company of National Guard fired a salute as the coffin was lowered into the grave. Gov. Johnson was buried beside his mother.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 23.—To the accompaniment of tolling bells the body of Gov. John A. Johnson was escorted from the rotunda of the State Capitol to-day with military pomp to the train which carried it to St. Peter, Minn., and its last resting place.

A volunteer band of 100 pieces sounded the funeral march, and ten companies of State militia and three batteries of artillery swung slowly into line ahead of the hearse. Then came the pallbearers, the members of the dead Governor's staff, the University Regents in carriages, State officers, present and former members of the State Legislature, State employes, delegations from other Minnesota cities, representative bodies of the Masons, the Elks, the Pythians, and other civic organizations, and, lastly, a large following of citizens.

While the procession was passing through the streets business was practically suspended.

A movement already has been started to furnish by popular subscription a statue of Gov. Johnson to be placed in the State capitol.

Another Zerola Injunction Suit.

The management of the Italian Grand Opera Company spent so much time trying to prevent the tenor, Zerola, from appearing at the Manhattan Opera House last night that they postponed their scheme for reorganization until another day. Yesterday Mr. Pinsuti decided, as the artistic director of the company, to sue for a personal injunction. The injunction sought by the management of the company will be granted or refused to-day, but Mr. Pinsuti's injunction will be brought before the court next week.

"If Mr. Zerola continues to sing at the Manhattan Opera House, there is no doubt," said Mrs. Appleton, "that the Italians will not go to hear him there. They will protest against the fact that this tenor was taken away from the Italian company."

Music Notes.

"Pagliacci" will be sung in concert form at the Manhattan Opera House next Sunday night by Miss Sylva and Messrs. Carasa, Laskin, Beck, and Venturini. The opera will be preceded by a concert in which Mmes. Miranda and Vicarino and Messrs. Lucas and Scott will take part.

The Italian Grand Opera Company will sing "La Boheme" to-night at the Academy of Music instead of "Tosca," which had been announced. The Saturday matinee has been abandoned on account of the naval parade.

FOR THE TABLE.

In these hot days the idea of a cool, ripe watermelon is tempting. There are those who say that a watermelon is at its best in a salad. The salad platter is covered with tender, fresh lettuce leaves, over which a thin layer off watercress and another of nuts is spread. The best part of a ripe watermelon is then cut into inch cubes or a little smaller. A dressing is made by beating the yolks of two eggs very light, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a teaspoonful of salt, and a dust of pepper. Cook until thick in a double boiler and set aside to cool. Just before serving, a cup of whipped cream is added with a tablespoonful of chopped olives.

Here is a French-Italian dish which those who have tried it say is excellent. Riz a l'Italiene it is called. The foundation is boiled rice, to which, as it lies in the hot saucepan, is added a large lump of butter. This is thoroughly stirred in with a seasoning of pepper and salt, and enough tomato pulp added to moisten the mixture well. It is finished with grated Parmesan, Gruyere, or other mild, dry cheese. The dish must be served very hot as soon as the cheese has dissolved, and long tendrils of the melted cheese will follow the grains of rice as the mixture is eaten.

Italian rice forms part of a French dish of chicken, or it is a good way of serving the last of a cold turkey. The meat is removed from the bones, and from these, and the scraps as good a broth as possible is made. A baking dish is lined with the rice, and in a hollow in the centre is placed the chicken meat which has been heated in the broth, which has been seasoned and slightly thickened to make a good sauce. Only enough of the sauce to moisten the chicken is used and the rest is served in a sauce-boat. Grated cheese is also served separately.

Fried cucumbers make a good dish for luncheon or dinner. They should be pared, cut into either long or round thick slices, dipped into beaten egg which has been seasoned with salt and pepper, rolled in bread crumbs, and fried a delicate brown.

A simple Moravian recipe for peppermints comes from Bethlehem, Penn. A gill of water is added to a pound of granulated sugar. This is allowed to come slowly to a boil, and when it begins to syrup is poured into a bowl. When beginning to cool, it is beaten with a wire eggbeater or spoon until it is thick and creamy. Three drops of oil of peppermint are then carefully beaten in, and the mixture is dropped on waxed paper or, in the absence of that, a smooth brown paper will do as well. It must be noticed that the oil of peppermint and not the essence should be used.

ZEROLA SINGS AT MANHATTAN.

Nervousness Mars New Tenor's Performance in "Aida."

Perhaps the injunction suits hovering over Mr. Zerola's head made that tenor feel like another Damocles, or, perhaps, he had a cold, in any case, he scarcely did himself justice at his first appearance at the Manhattan Opera House last night in "Aida." It was the rôle of Rhadames in which he had made his début at the Academy of Music, and it must be confessed that his voice sounded better on that occasion than it did last night.

This Verdi opera shows forth the tenor from almost its first bars, and it was to be expected that the "Celeste Aida" would find the elusive Zerola too nervous to sing it well, but so late in the opera as the finale of the second act the tenor strayed so far away from the pitch that everybody, including the conductor, floundered about for a moment until some of the original notes were rediscovered, and Mme. Grippon, who one night was herself responsible for a great deal of sharp singing, was the bright spirit who led her confrères back to the paths of tunefulness.

There is beauty in Mr. Zerola's voice, which at times was evident, and he sang with more discretion last night than he had at the Academy. In fact he seemed to be trying to avoid forcing his voice, and as a result often produced a rather small tone.

There were two other newcomers in the cast of "Aida" at the Manhattan Opera House—Mme. Grippon and Mme. d'Alvarez, who replaced Mmes. Baron and Soyer in the rôles of Aïda and Amneris. Mme. Grippon, as has been suggested, did much excellent singing, and hers was perhaps the most successful impersonation of the evening. Her costumes were inappropriate, but not more so than those of Mme. d'Alvarez. This young contralto has an excellent voice, which she has not altogether learned to control. Her Amneris is interesting, however, and will grow more so. The others in the cast have been heard in their parts before. The audience last evening was very large. The applause was moderate.

"THE YANKEE GIRL" SHOWN.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 23.—Lew Fields presented Miss Blanche Ring at the Savoy Theatre to-night in a new musical play, "The Yankee Girl," book by George V. Hobart and music by Silvio Hein. A feature was a march number by Sousa, "The Glory of the American Navy," sung by Miss Ring and chorus.

"The Yankee Girl" tells of the adventures of a daughter of an American millionaire whose father has bought a nitrate concession on an island off the coast of Venezuela. Her wits are pitted against those of the President of the republic to which the island belongs, and against those of the Japanese Ambassador. The love centres about the character which Miss Ring portrays and the American Consul to the fictitious Republic of Brilliantina.

The cast includes Harry Gilfoil, William Carleton, Frederick Paulding, Leon Kohimer, Halliday and Curley, Dorothy Jardin, Margaret Malcolm, Eva Francis, Vennie Bradcome, and Blanch Fields. The production was staged by Al. Holbrook.

CAPT. W. H. RICKETTS DEAD.

Crier of Appellate Division of Supreme Court for Many Years.

Capt. William H. Ricketts, court crier of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and widely known among lawyers and Justices as "Billy" Ricketts, died on Wednesday night in his apartments at the Hotel Woodstock. For forty-two years Mr. Ricketts had been associated with the Supreme Court, first as court officer, then as Captain of the court squad, and later as crier of the Appellate Division.

It was not long after Capt. Ricketts donned the blue uniform of the court officer that he attracted the notice of the Justices by reason of his dignified, yet gracious, manner, and by his skill in disposing of the crowds attending the trials. He was promoted rapidly. Capt. Ricketts was placed in charge of most of the important trials, both civil and criminal, in the Appellate Division for many years. He is said to have had no equal in handling his men, when occasion demanded, at many of the sensational criminal trials.

Few were better acquainted with New York than Capt. "Billy" Ricketts. A visiting Judge or Justice was sure of seeing most of the sights if he had Capt. Ricketts as his guide. In personal appearance he had the bearing of a soldier, tall and slender. He was fond of silk hats, and usually wore one when off duty, tilted slightly over to one side.

Capt. Ricketts entered the Union Army as a drummer boy and became a soldier and officer before the close of the war.

In his boyhood days Capt. Ricketts was an usher in Barnum's Museum at Ann Street and Broadway, and was later chief usher at Bryant's Minstrels, still later becoming a part owner of the show.

Capt. Ricketts was generous to a fault. He often helped young lawyers in a financial way. He was about 70 years old. He left a widow.

James P. Connell.

James P. Connell, Under Sheriff of Kings County for the last two years, and Republican leader of the Ninth Assembly District, died last night at his home, 340 Ninety-first Street, Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn. Mr. Connell was born in Fort Hamilton fifty-three years ago, and was educated in the public schools of Brooklyn. Early in life he entered Brooklyn politics. Six years ago he defeated ex-Congressman Harry A. Hanbury for the Republican leadership of the present Ninth Assembly District. Nine years ago he was appointed assistant cashier of the State Excise Department, Brooklyn. He held this position until two years ago, when he was appointed to the position of Under Sheriff. He was a member of the Brooklyn Lodge of Elks and a volunteer fireman. He left a widow.

Rev. Herman Philpot Dead.

The Rev. Herman Philpot, a noted missionary of the English Church, is dead at his home in Roselle Park, N. J., after an eventful life. He was 74 years old. Mr. Philpot carried to his death scars from the shackles he wore while a prisoner, with a number of other missionaries, in Abyssinia, being confined there for six years. For four years he was closely confined in chains in a dungeon. He was finally rescued in 1868 by an expedition sent out by the English Government under command of Lord Napier. Although he had lived here a number of years, Mr. Philpot retained his allegiance to the English flag. His wife, one daughter, and two sons survive him.

EXCITED COTTON MARKET

Current Speculation on That Exchange Affecting Stock Market—Banks Shipping Currency Freely.

Although the movement of prices in yesterday's stock market was not so sharply downward as on Wednesday, the trend was nevertheless in that direction, and at the end of the session by far the greater number of stocks dealt in displayed losses. The influences making for such a market were exactly those operative on the previous day, comprising disappointment in speculative circles over the outcome of earlier ventures and a more conservative policy on the part of lenders of money. With the exception of the upturns in the Mackay stocks, Consolidated Gas, American Sugar, and Third Avenue, the trading was practically featureless. Among matters of more or less interest coming to light during the day were the public testimony of the President of the United States Steel Corporation regarding the business prospects of the company, which he paints in the most glowing colors, and the statement of The Price Current, a recognized authority in the grain trade, to the effect that, in view of the liberal acreage planted and the favorable weather conditions during maturity, it is quite probable that the final figures of the Department of Agriculture for the corn crop may be considerably larger than the Sept. 1 indications. On the Cotton Exchange a violent speculation based upon the acknowledged shortness of this season's crop and the damage done to growing cotton in the Mississippi Valley by the Gulf storm went forward. Prices touched the highest levels attained since the Sully régime, and signs were not wanting that, under the leadership of the versatile gentleman who so successfully conducted a wheat speculation early in the Summer, many of the phases of the Sully speculation might be repeated. If this proves to be the case it can hardly fail to affect the security markets.

As a result of the course of the stock market through the week thus far the banks are quite likely to make a better showing in their Saturday statement than would otherwise have been the case. Interior demands have revived to a considerable extent, and yesterday direct shipments were made to the cotton country. The Bank of England made a favorable weekly exhibit under the circumstances, a fact also true of the Bank of France. There is as yet nothing to indicate an early duplication by these institutions of the move of the German Bank in raising its discount rate.

Curb trading was in somewhat better volume yesterday and prices moved irregularly, with a number of small gains and some substantial losses showing at the close. Chicago Subway was somewhat firmer, going as high as 9⅝. The close was at 9 after transactions of 6,100. In the mining list Butte Coalition, Braden Copper, Cumberland-Ely, Nevada Consolidated, Ray Central, and Ray Consolidated made fractional losses. Davis-Daly sold down ½ from the opening and closed 5-16 down at 5¾. Greene-Cananea, Kerr Lake, and Nipissing made small gains. American Writing Paper shares were again active, the preferred selling fractionally off.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Narrowness and a general lack of feature prevailed yesterday. Liverpool lost ¾ to ⅞d, while Berlin was ⅝c lower, and Budapest 1¼c down on predictions of continued heavy shipments from Russia and an increased acreage in Hungary. Minneapolis and Duluth were closed all day. Winter wheat receipts were still very light and demand was very small. Export rumors indicated 18 loads actually taken. Cash wheat in New York closed easy, $1.10½ for No. 2 red, in elevator, export basis; No. 2 red, free on board, afloat basis, was unquoted; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.08⅝, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.12⅞, free on board, afloat, all nominal.

CORN.—A decline yesterday in the face of frost reports was evidence that corn is now beyond the danger line in fact. Prospects for large Argentine shipments influenced the decline of ⅜d at Liverpool. Receipts at Chicago were again more than the estimate, with a large proportion of contract grade. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted at 78c, elevator, and 79c, delivered, both asked, and 65½c, free on board, afloat, Winter shipment.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Call of Cotton.

Traders who have met with a good many disappointments in their stock market operations for a fortnight or more, and who have become pretty well confused as to the immediate future of prices, are evincing a very natural interest in the current speculation in cotton. Yesterday the cotton tickers in brokerage offices competed successfully with the stock quotation tickers, and in not a few houses speculative accounts in stocks were closed out and new ones opened in cotton. Mr. Patten's announcement of his programme for the cotton producer appeals to the average speculator simply by reason of the fact that the similar disinterested campaign of the same operator for grain producers achieved its purpose. The average speculator, and it is this type which has been conspicuous in the stock market for some little time, desires simply to wager on something, and if the odds on stocks are not satisfactory and those on cotton are, he turns to cotton. In the present case any pronounced shifting of speculation in the cotton market would tend, of course, to reduce the volume of business on the Stock Exchange and at the same time, if the facts, as they develop, seemed to warrant materially higher prices for cotton, stock prices would be affected.

Copper Merger Reports.

Reports current last Spring that plans for a big copper combine were in the making have been revived in the financial district within the last day or two. Yesterday these reports received impetus from the positive assertions of their truth contained in a circular issued by a citizen of Boston who has devoted the last five years solely to the circular business. Those who have in charge the various properties named as participating in the combination say that present reports are no more true than they were when first started last Spring, which means, presumably, that the informal talks had about the matter at that time have not gone very much further. Perhaps it was the revival of these stories of a copper combination which started other reports of an agreement between leading copper producers looking to the restriction of output and reduction of accumulated supplies. As for this particular report, it is denied absolutely by those in position to know the truth.

Good Prospects for Inter-Met.

Interborough-Metropolitan shares closed fractionally up yesterday. Part of the Hudson-Fulton visitors' cash will go to swell the September receipts of the company, and if measured by the degree of discomfort the regulars have had to put up with from the crowds of strange standees, this month's receipts should compare well with the before Christmas season.

Cotton Exchange Seats Up.

Public interest in cotton, which has been growing steadily through the Summer toward proportions comparable to that during the Sully year has been reflected in the phenomenal increase in the price of seats on the Exchange within the last few months. After the sale of one seat yesterday at $19,500, a bid was made of $21,000. In January the price quoted was $10,500, and within a month seats have sold below $15,000. When seats were not easy to sell early in the Spring, at around $11,000, a stock broker who has for years held a seat on the Cotton Exchange bought a second membership chiefly to accommodate a friend. At yesterday's last bid price he had nearly doubled his money.

Big Board Changes Front on Closing.

Yesterday's decision of the Governing Committee to close the Stock Exchange on Saturday, after refusing the ptition to close presented at their regular meeting on Wednesday, excited some surprise in brokerage circles yesterday, where the office forces had reconciled themselves to a day of work. The fact that business has begun to slow down very noticeably, yesterday's transactions totaling about one-third less than an average day's business in recent weeks, had much weight in inducing the Governors to reconsider. Saturday being a religious holiday with a number of the brokers was also, no doubt, a factor.

Leather Directors Meet.

Stockholders of the Central and the United States Leather Companies will hold their special meetings in Jersey City to-day, despite the injunction prohibiting them from taking any action on the merger agreement. The Directors, who were also enjoined from submitting the agreement of merger to stockholders, met yesterday, but what was done at the meeting was not made public. At to-day's meeting the court's orders leave nothing to be done, but take an adjournment until after argument is heard on the injunction on Oct. 2.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Americans Dull and Easy on the London Exchange.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Money was in good supply on the market to-day, and the calls for $10,000,000 were easily satisfied. Discounts were firm.

The Stock Exchange transacted a fair amount of business in diamond shares and Kaffirs, chiefly for Paris account, and rubber shares for local account at improving prices. But foreigners and home rails were neglected and gilt-edged securities weakened on fears of an early rise in the discount rate of the Bank of England owing to the continued outflow of gold and the large increase of American finance bills, indicating a possible American demand for gold in the near future.

American securities ruled dull and generally lower during the early session, and at noon prices ranged from ¼ above to ⅜ below yesterday's New York closing. There were narrow movements in the afternoon, which were chiefly downward, following the receipt of the New York opening, and the market closed dull and easy after small business.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Developments in connection with the trading in Lehigh Valley shares, which has puzzled financial circles for ten days past, were of a sensational character to-day. The whole market became weak in the last hour and prices ran off to the lowest of the day. Cambria Steel dropped nearly a point and United Gas Improvement ⅝ of a point. Local traction shares were dull and unchanged.

COTTON RATES SOAR WITH HEAVY TRADING

HIGHEST SINCE SULLY DAYS

Prices Make a New Record for This Season Since the Civil War—Stock Traders Turn to Cotton.

A bullish Government report on cotton consumption, coupled with confirmation of the stories of heavy damage done by the hurricane of Tuesday and aggravated by the large increase of public interest in the market, made yesterday one of the most exciting on the Cotton Exchange since the days of the Sully corner. Prices went up from $1.50 to $2 a bale to the highest prices on record at this season since the days immediately after the civil war. The transactions were estimated at 1,500,000 bales, but exact figures were not obtainable because of the Cotton Exchange's decision, after the agitation against it two years ago, not to foot up total sales.

The announcement of James S. Patten that he had come on from Chicago to take a hand in the cotton market here on the bull side has helped to stimulate public interest in the market to a degree that has not been seen since the cotton famine scare of the season of 1903-4, and in many commission houses in Wall Street the cotton quotation boards have been more closely followed lately than the stock ticker.

Much of yesterday's buying came from stock houses, and heavy telegraphic orders from the West indicated the extent to which the Patten following is in the market.

Prices began to soar from the opening and at the noon hour every delivery on the list was up from 30 to 35 points. There was a wide difference of opinion as to the extent of the short interest, but old-timers in the pit insisted yesterday that some shorts still remain. Liquidation was chiefly from the South, and this, together with profit-taking, eased off the market from the midday bulge. At the highest the December and January options were forced up to 13.35 cents a pound. March and May and July went to 13.35 and 13.45. During the afternoon declines from the top amounted to 10 and 15 points.

Toward the close the upward movement began again under heavy buying, and the close showed a net gain for the day of from 36 to 41 points, or from $1.80 to $2.05 per bale.

The news from the storm-devastated area in the South led trade authorities to figure that 10 per cent. damage had been done in a section which was counted on to produce 3,000,000 bales. This reduction of 300,000 bales in the already short crop was one of the strong arguments behind the upward movement.

While yesterday's high level was the highest on record at this season, cotton sold in January during the Sully corner as high as 17.55 cents a pound for the July option. This high water mark was followed by the greatest collapse the Cotton Exchange has ever seen. The nearest approach to present prices in September occurred early in the Sully boom in 1903, when a squeeze of shorts put cotton for September delivery up to 13.20, while futures were selling around 10 and October sold at the same time at 9.62. During civil war days cotton sold as high as $1.90 a pound. At yesterday's high price for December of 13.35 per pound, this year's cotton crop even if it reaches the low total of 10,500,000 bales, which only the pessimists predict, would be worth $706,000,000, the largest value it has ever had.

BRIGHTER OUTLOOK FOR CORN

Crop Conditions More Favorable, Reports The Price Current.

Reports from the corn belt prepared by The Price Current show a substantial improvement in the outlook for corn, which this trade authority says should result in a more favorable report of conditions by the Department of Agriculture next month than was shown as of Sept. 1.

According to The Price Current the corn crop is maturing rapidly, and much of it is past danger from frost. Weather conditions so far this month have been highly favorable, and if damaging frosts do not occur before the end of the month, the indications in the principal corn-growing States are that harvest will be mostly over by that time.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Thursday.

Sales on the Consolidated Stock Exchange were 98,890 shares, with the list of issues traded in numbering 56. The tendency of the room operators early in the day was to reduce outstanding short lines, and their buying was reflected in relative firmness much of the time compared with prices on the New York Stock Exchange. The early afternoon witnessed a renewal of short selling by the floor traders, but the day ended with covering again in progress. Reading, Steel common, and Union Pacific, the three issues which have been the favorites of late, continued to lead in volume.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Strong on Storm Damage Alarms—Closes 41 to 43 Points Up.

Cotton was sensationally active and excited yesterday, with prices making new high records for the season. Popular estimates of the crop were being reduced as a result of storm damage reports, while the report of the Census Bureau indicating that under adverse general trade conditions the consumption of American mills last season was in excess of 5,000,000 bales tended to confirm expectations of record-breaking world's requirements.

No advices have yet been received from the very considerable part of the recent storm area. The effect should be shown in the next Government condition report due at noon Oct. 2.

The market opened steady at an advance of 2@6 points. The close was within 2 or 3 points of the top, which was 41 to 43 points up. Contract prices follow:

DENIES STEEL TRUST TALE.

Company Not to Open Plants in China, Judge Gary Says.

A revival of an old story of the United States Steel Corporation's intention of entering the steel business in China brought out a denial from Judge Elbert H. Gary yesterday, who said: "The story is utterly without the slightest foundation in fact."

When the idea of the Steel Corporation building plants in the Orient was first put forward about a year ago the story was adorned with specific details of where the corporation was to get its ore and coal and labor, and it was shown how, with a reduced tariff and cheap materials and workmen, it would be able not only to monopolize the Eastern and African market, but undersell its rivals in this country also.

IN NEW JERSEY.

Judge Farmer, in the First Criminal Court, Jersey City, yesterday, released from custody Lucy Elmer, the young woman who was with James Stickney, the alleged forger, who shot and killed himself on Tuesday night in the New Jersey Central Railroad Station when arrested. She at once started for Nashville, Tenn. In Richmond, Va., where Stickney put down a bogus check for $375 in the Jefferson Hotel, he was known as J. Elmer White.

Freeholder Richard Fallahee of Jersey City recently gave $1,000 bail for the appearance for trial in Bergen County of John Murray, 19 years old, of 217 Nineteenth Street, Jersey City, on an indictment for stealing from Erie Railroad cars. He was an old friend of Murray's father. Recently Murray's father told Fallahee that the young man was preparing to go West, and yesterday Fallahee surrendered John Murray to the Jersey City police and withdrew the bond. Murray will be taken to the Hackensack jail to-day. Murray, senior, said he could not see his good friend lose the money.

Frederick J. Wolters of 37 Milford Avenue, Newark, was severely injured and burned in an automobile explosion late on Wednesday night. Wolters was driving his machine along Park Place when he tried to make a turn. The wet and slippery pavement caused the machine to skid, and it ran onto the sidewalk. Wolters was thrown from the machine and landed heavily on the walk, and the gasoline tank blew up with a loud report. Some of the blazing oil spattered over him and badly burned him. He was attended by a physician and removed to his home.

The Essex County Grand Jury began an investigation in Newark yesterday for the purpose of ascertaining whether there are any irregularities that are violations of the law in several petitions filed with the City Clerk in connection with the primary election next Tuesday. Subpoenas were served yesterday upon the City Counsel James L. Nugent, Assistant City Attorney Charles M. Myers, and City Clerk James Connelly.

All of the teamsters of the Wilkinson, Gaddis & Co. wholesale grocers of Newark went on a strike yesterday because the firm refused to sign an agreement with the men on Monday. On the wagons sent out by the firm yesterday afternoon two men had charge of them fearing an attack from the strikers.

Vice Chancellor Howell in Newark yesterday made a decree in favor of Mrs. Minnie M. Dennebaum of 274 Broad Street, Newark, in her suit for a divorce against Christian Dennebaum. He left Newark several months ago for a "walk to the Philippines and back." Papers were served on him before he got out of town, but Dennebaum put in no defense. The Dennebaums have a daughter 14 years old. Mrs. Dennebaum declared that her husband did not properly support her and their child.

A suit to break the will of Mrs. Frances C. W. Hartley, widow of Marcellus Hartley of New York City, will come to its initial hearing to-day in the office of the Surrogate of Essex County in the Court House at Newark. The estate is said to be valued at more than a million dollars. The contestant is Mrs. G. W. Jenkins of Morristown, Mrs. Hartley's daughter.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wagner of 136 William Street, Belleville, was so badly burned at her home on Wednesday night that she died yesterday at St. Michael's Hospital, Newark. Mrs. Wagner's daughter Clara, 9 years old, was slightly burned, and Mr. Wagner was burned about his hands while trying to beat out the fire in his wife's clothing. A lamp on the mantlepiece in the girl's room exploded and the blazing oil fell upon a heap of blankets beneath the mantlepiece. Mr. and Mrs. Wagner grabbed a blanket and ran to the child's room. Mrs. Wagner was about to throw the blanket over the heap of burning material when the nap blazed up and the fire communicated with her nightdress.

Vice Chancellor Howell signed an order yesterday directing Joseph W. Plume, who was receiver of the Newark Savings Institution which failed in 1880, to pay over to Mrs. Annie Maybie of Montclair, as guardian of her sister, Miss Mary Carroll, about $200 which represented a balance due her in the settlement of the institution's affairs by the receiver.

Two-year-old Henry Gleeman, son of Mrs. Henry Gleeman, a widow of 162 Fifth Street, Elizabeth was drowned in a small barrel yesterday. He was playing with a toy hammer and threw it into the barrel. Then he went after it, climbing up a fence against which it rested. He tumbled head first into the barrel.

Two farmhands, while crossing the electric line of the West Jersey and Seashore Railway Company near Pitman yesterday were killed by coming in contact with the heavily-charged third rail. The identity of the men is not yet known.

Pleading guilty, but alleging self-defense for his excuse, George Hudah, miner, who killed Mike Csonyoval, at Newton on July 6, was convicted late Wednesday night by a jury here, and immediately sentenced to thirty years in State's prison by Judge James F. Minturn.

William W. Atkins, engineer at the Keystone Leather Works at Camden was fatally burned yesterday when a steam pipe in the engine room burst. Herbert Cook, an electrical engineer, sustained serious burns while dragging Atkins's unconscious form from the steam-filled room.

For senting an attack upon his niece, Mrs. Thomas Biddle, John McDaniel, 80 years old, was brutally beaten, it is charged, by Elwood Cassner, a farm hand, near Camden, yesterday, and died soon afterward. Cassner was arrested and is now in jail.

More Litigation in Torpy Estate.

The litigation over the estate of Bridget Torpy, once cook for Mrs. N. B. Taft of 46 West Twenty-fifth Street, who died in a house tenanted by negroes, leaving a will giving her $30,000 estate to James E. Johnson, a negro who took her place in the Taft family, assumed a new phase yesterday. Attorney General O'Malley served notice on counsel for the Torpy family of Galway, Ireland, that he had entered an appearance in the case. Margaret Bennet, a trained nurse, had already filed a separate will making her Miss Torpy's sole beneficiary.

HUGHES AT COOPERSTOWN.

Speaks for Direct Primaries at the Otsego County Fair.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Gov. Charles E. Hughes spoke at the Otsego County Fair to-day in characteristic vein for more than an hour on direct primaries, and returned to Albany to-night. He was introduced by Stephen C. Clark, the Republican candidate for the Assembly, recently nominated on the direct primaries issue.

"We have done a great deal to guard our election machinery from corruption," he said. "Many safeguards in recent years have been established for the protection of the ballot, and to secure honest elections. We realize, however, that we must get back of election day to primary day. We realize that as we guard the free expression of opinion on the general election day so we should guard the free expression of the voters of the party on primary day with regard to choice of party candidates for office.

"I am in favor of direct nomination of party candidates for public office, because the members of the party and the members of the party alone have the right to say who shall represent them. No one has the right to exercise that privilege at the expense of the free choice of the members of the party. Some of our friends, who are very active politically, get into a habit of thinking that they are the party. They may be a very important part of the party; they may be doing essential work for the party; they may be inspired at times by good motives and at times by bad motives; but, whatever they are doing, and however they may be inspired, they are not the party. They are only the representatives of the party, and the members of the party have the right to say what they want and compel respect to their declared wishes."

P. AND S. BEGINS A NEW YEAR.

Dr. Herter Talks on Imagination and Idealism in Medical Science.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University began its 101st year yesterday, with a total enrollment of 279 students, including eighty-five new members of the first-year class. The exercises were held in the main assembly room in the afternoon. President Nicholas Murray Butler delivered the address of welcome and Dr. Christian A. Herter, professor of pharmacology and therapeutics, spoke on "Imagination and Idealism in Medical Science."

Dr. Herter pointed out the part which imagination and idealism played in the advancement of medical discoveries in the lives of such men as Vesalius, William Harvey, John Hunter, Claude Bernard, Herman von Helmholz, and Louis Pasteur, all of whom, he said, had been characterized by highly imaginative faculties, refined aesthetic sensibilities, and readiness to make sacrifices for their life's work.

"I would emphasize the fact," said Dr. Herter, "that discoveries in medicine have come to be more and more dependent on the help of physics, chemistry, and general biology. Many of the greatest masters of medicine have not practiced medicine, but have made their discoveries while working in laboratories.

"Just here, in the co-operation of the laboratories and the clinics, lies the future opportunity of the earnest student possessed of a fair share of imagination and idealism. The demand for the well-trained physician who, long after graduation, still manages earnestly to pursue some branch of his studies and experimentation, as well as his more practical labor of money-getting and practice, has never been greater than now."

AFTER DESERTING HUSBANDS.

Movement Starts in Cincinnati for Federal Laws Punishing Them.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 23.—Stirred by the figures of wife desertions throughout the country, especially in large cities like Cincinnati, where 2,700 cases were reported in the past three months, the local Women's Christian Temperance Union to-day opened a campaign for the passage of Federal laws on the subject. Dr. Siewers, a Western advocate of woman suffrage, argued that the woman who deserts her baby does so because her husband has left her. Pursuit of deserting husbands with the same zeal exercised in army and navy desertions and severe punishment for those apprehended were embodied in resolutions that were unanimously passed by cheering members.

Appeals were addressed to all the women's clubs and societies in New York to enter into the movement and to confer in a body so that representatives could be sent to Congress to push a bill that is being framed by a committee. It was decided to try to enlist the efforts of clubs over the country.

Dr. Siewers also addressed a letter to President Taft setting forth arguments for a Federal law to punish deserting husbands.

WHEAT 3,400 YEARS OLD.

Mr. Hammer Has Some of the Grain Joseph Stored in Egypt.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 23.—Some of the wheat that Joseph stored during the seven years of famine in Egypt has been received by Valentine Hammer of Branford. It was found by officers of the Museum of Cairo in a storehouse in Dierel-Babri, and its identity was established by appropriate inscriptions.

About half the quantity found was brought to the Cairo Museum and placed on exhibition. The rest was sold, and Azez Khayal of New York City purchased a small amount of it. He sent a portion of his purchase to Mr. Hammer. The wheat was stored in the 19th dynasty, 1,500 years before Christ, or more than 3,400 years ago.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Duty Is Reduced on Halibut Fish Hooks—Other Decisions.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has sustained the Pacific Nut and Twine Company in a controversy with the Government regarding the rates of duty to accrue on halibut fish hooks. The hooks were made from round iron or steel wire, upon which duty was assessed at the rate of 40 per cent. ad valorem and 1¼ cents per pound.

The importers alleged that the wire from which the hooks are made is valued at not more than 4 cents per pound, and that the hooks are, therefore, dutiable only at the specific rate named in the first part of Paragraph 137, plus the 1¼ cents per pound prescribed in the second proviso of the same paragraph. In his decision for the board, General Appraiser Fischer says that the sample in evidence is a halibut hook, not smaller than No. 13 wire gauge. He states that the tribunal is satisfied from the testimony laid before the board that the hooks are manufactured from wire valued at not more than 4 cents a pound. The protest is accordingly sustained.

Unfavorable action has been taken by the board in a protest filed by the United States Flexible Metallic Tube Company. Objection was taken to the assessment of duty at the rate of 35 per cent. on articles returned by the Collector as iron tubes. Several claims are made for lower rates of duty, but all are overruled.

Absolute Auction Sale
Tuesday, October 5th.
12 o'Clock Noon, 14 Vesey St.

There is nothing of greater importance in connection with the value of real estate than that of transit facilities.

These lots are within nine minutes' walk of the Subway Station at 242d Street now, and with the proposed Subway Station (which will be at about 256th Street, on the property to be sold) you will be within forty minutes of City Hall (Manhattan), and in one of New York City's most beautiful, healthful and accessible sections, and, remember, along the line of Broadway and a 5 cent fare.

An idea of the future values in this section may be obtained by comparing values along Central Park now and what they were ten years ago, or even five years ago. Millions of dollars have been made in Real Estate fronting on Central Park. Then why not here, where we are selling lots fronting on Van Cortlandt Park, with far more natural beauty in every respect than Central Park, and also on Broadway and in the section which is at the present time the most active Real Estate field in or around New York City? Title Policies Free.

LONG ISLAND—FOR SALE OR TO LET.

Merrick Estates

ARE on MERRICK PENINSULA, a wedge-shaped body of diversified upland and high meadow whose southern shore is bathed by the waters of the Great South Bay.

ARE about 25 miles eastward from the City Hall of Greater New York; 4 miles southward from Westbury, the Long Island region pre-empted by millionaires; 6 miles southeastward from Hempstead, the first village founded by the English near New York, and 6 miles as the crow flies from Long Beach.

ARE in a climate unsurpassed in the North Temperate Zone. Their temperature is 12 degrees lower in summer than that of New York City, and correspondingly higher in winter. They are visited by south and southwest breezes and protected from harsh winds.

ARE now forty-eight minutes from Long Island City. When the Long Island-Pennsylvania Railroad improvements are completed, one year from now (1910), the time of travel will be cut down to 25 minutes from the new Pennsylvania Railroad Depot in Manhattan Borough.

ARE certain to increase in value each year. Possessing most of the advantages of New York City, are free from its burdensome taxation.

ARE REAL estates. A man who goes to the country with his family to escape the congestion of the city must have for occupancy at least a plot 100 feet square. No smaller area will be sold on MERRICK PENINSULA; none smaller will be permitted to be used for one house and its proper surroundings. Write for booklet.

TAFT SOUTH'S FRIEND, DECLARES DICKINSON

Has Gone Further Than Any Other Republican President to Meet Her Wishes.

SOUTH OWES AID, NOT VOTES

Should Vindicate President's Policy of Not Appointing Negroes by Protecting Negro from Mobs, Secretary Hints.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 23.—The presence of Secretary of War Dickinson as the speaker on topics affecting the interests of the North and the South attracted a great crowd to the State Fair Grounds here to-day.

Gen. Frederick D. Grant, who is also a guest at the fair, reviewed a uniformed regiment of Confederate soldiers in front of the grand stand, himself appearing in the full uniform of a General of the United States Army.

"President Taft," said Mr. Dickinson, "has gone further than any other Republican President to meet the wishes of the South in establishing a policy looking to the promotion of peace within her borders. In this he has not responded to any demand either of his party or the people of the North. A leader of thought, knowing the conditions, he patriotically and courageously does what he believes is best, trusting to results for his vindication.

"This vindication will depend mainly upon the wisdom, self-control, and conservatism manifested by the Southern people. It would be a calamity if his efforts should be nullified and his good-will alienated. If a man of his character, position, and patriotism fail, then it will be long before another will follow in his footsteps.

"No question of the South's giving him political support is involved. The South can co-operate with him in his great work of conciliation and promoting peace and harmony, and yet cast every one of its Electoral votes against him if he should become a candidate for re-election. I am confident that no thought of winning its votes has influenced his course toward the South, and that even if he expected to become a candidate to succeed himself he would, though confident that the South would vote against him, do exactly what he has done.

The judicial work of the President, Secretary Dickinson said, extending over Kentucky and Tennessee, gave him intimate knowledge of certain Southern conditions. But it should not be forgotten, he added, that, while he was sympathetic with the South and the unfortunate conditions peculiar to it, he was a Republican and a Northern man. For that reason, it should not be expected that he would accept in its entirety the Southern view. He had, however, appreciated the extent of the irritation that had come from appointing negroes to office in the South.

"He understands," Mr. Dickinson went on, "that this is a broad, deep-seated race question that cannot be ignored or argued out of existence, and that for the peace of both races it was the part of wisdom that such appointments should not be made, and he has publicly declared this to be his policy, and has carried it out. He holds with his distinguished predecessor, who declared in his famous speech made in New York before the Loyal Legion, that 'the purity of the races must be maintained.' While he is thus mitigating the difficulties of our situation, we should do our part to sustain him and make this burden of his office as easy to bear as the exigencies of the conditions will admit.

"If the white people assert the right to govern, then the Government should be one of fairness and justice, a government of law and not of passion. The courts, and not mobs, should punish lawbreakers. Negroes should be protected in their property rights, settled with justly, and governed by the constituted authorities. Those who established the Commonwealth of Tennessee, such men as James Robertson, John Sevier, and Andrew Jackson, would have spurned with indignation the very suggestion that in time of peace they did not have the virtue and manhood enough to enforce the law through the courts. The cankering virus of mob rule, no matter against what evils directed, destroys all wholesome life in the body politic, and makes it a polluted wreck, swayed by passion and incapable of the ordinary administration of law."

HELD FOR MURDER OF SIX.

Bloodhounds Lead a West Virginia Posse to Homes of Three Men.

BLUEFIELD, West Va., Sept. 23.—A party of armed citizens to-night have Simon Blankenship and his two sons under guard in their home, awaiting the arrival of the Sheriff of Buchanan County, Va. They were led to this house by bloodhounds put on the trail of the murderers of the old woman known as "Aunt Betty" Justis, her son-in-law, and daughter and three children, whose bodies were burned in their home at Hurley, Va., Tuesday night.

The bloodhounds were put on the trail early this morning. They led the posse from the burned house into and across a cornfield, over a mountain, and up a hollow to the home of Blankenship. The trail passed over a very rugged road at one place, on which there was a high cliff. One of the fleeing murderers, on letting himself over this, in some way cut his hand, leaving some blood on the trail.

When the suspected persons saw the hounds coming they were out in the field gathering corn. They immediately went to their homes, and heavily armed themselves. The posse tried to get the dogs to pass the house, but they refused.

The Commonwealth's attorney, who was leading the party, told the men in their homes that they were suspected of the crime, and would have to prove an alibi. They stoutly maintained their innocence, claiming that they had just recently heard of it. They saw it was useless to resist, and one of them, Simon Blankenship, was placed under arrest, and the other two were also under guard, the posse agreeing to await the Sheriff. The men will have a preliminary hearing to-morrow morning if the natives can be controlled by officers during the night.

HYPNOIDIZATION IS EASY.

Dr. Sidis Tells How to Induce It for Therapeutic Purposes.

Dr. Boris Sidis describes in The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal the procedure of hypnoidization for therapeutic purposes, and declares it to be quite simple. It is summarized in The New York Medical Journal:

"The patient is told to close his eyes and keep quiet. He is then asked to attend to some monotonous stimulus, such as the beats of a metronome, or listen to a continuous note produced by a tuning fork, or to smell some pleasant odor, or simply to submit himself to a gentle massage in which touch and pressure are of uniform intensity. This should be carried out in a dark and quiet room. Fatigue, physical and mental, especially emotional, is a favorable condition. A prolonged warm bath with relaxation is favorable.

"A predisposition to sleep is helpful. It is, therefore, best to make the first attempts at hypnoidization late at night when the patient is both tired and sleepy. Once the hypnoidal state is induced, we can either attempt to follow up the history and the development of the malady, or we may chiefly work for the therapeutic effect and treat the present symptoms."

$250,000 GRAFT FUND.

Charges That It Has Been Provided to Corrupt Pittsburg Councilmen.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 23.—Charges of a daring attempt to corrupt Pittsburg's councils by the offer of bribes to Councilmen and others in a position to influence municipal legislation will be aired on the floor of councils next Monday night if an effort is made to pass an ordinance in the interest of which, it is declared, a boodle fund has been provided. So at least declare the evening newspapers of Pittsburg.

The details of previous scandals, involving the Councilmen, revealed in court during the trials which resulted in the conviction of several of them, are no more surprising than the details of the methods which it is alleged are being used in this case.

The offer of a bribe to a man connected with the city government to secure his influence, the organization of a coterie of Councilmen to handle the boodle fund, meetings in a downtown hotel between these Councilmen, and a man who is alleged to be the representative of those who provided the fund, and warnings to several Councilmen from city officials, are some of the details of the alleged scheme. It is asserted that the corruption fund of $250,000 has already been partly distributed. Eight detectives were to-day placed at work on the case, and arrests are expected to-morrow.

LODGE FINDS OSCAR BOY.

Royal Arcanum Has Traced J. C. Havemeyer's Missing Secretary.

Through the efforts of the Royal Arcanum, of which he was a member, Oscar Boy, the missing secretary of John C. Havemeyer, has been found in Brown's Mills in the Pines, N. J. Mrs. Boy started for there from her home at 571 Van Cortlandt Park Avenue, early Wednesday evening, after having been present at the marriage of her daughter, Beatrice, to William M. Redney, the ceremony having been hastened, before news of the discovery of Mr. Boy reached the family, in order that Redney might conduct the search as a member of the family.

Mrs. Boy, when she left Yonkers, knew nothing of the reasons that had taken her husband away from home three weeks or a month ago, but the family said that it was supposed the man had suffered from a loss of memory and, wandering away, had perhaps been unable to recall his name or his place of residence.

Laughs Her Jaw Out of Joint.

ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 23.—Miss Blanche Giowski of 1 Nassau Place, Orange, laughed so heartily over a joke this morning that she dislocated her jaw and had to call on a physician to get it back in place. In spite of the pain it gave her, Miss Giowski started to yawn immediately after the joint had been replaced and for a second time it was out. Dr. Leon Harris, who attended her, decided the second time he had better bind the jaw in place, and he did so.

The Pilgrim Held Up All Day by Fog.

The Pilgrim, of the Providence Line, came to her pier at the foot of Warren Street, last night, having been held up in the Sound all night Wednesday by fog. She left Providence Wednesday night on time, but a dense fog enfolded her off Warwick Point, in Narragansett Bay. She anchored for a time and then put into New London, where she landed most of her passangers and sent them on to New York by rail.

Primaries Prisoner Out on Bail.

Edward J. Harvey of 332 East Thirteenth Street, who was held without bail on Wednesday, charged with complicity in the shooting of Antoni Poloboni, alias Fred Lucas, of 87 James Street, in a polling place at 546 Second Avenue, was released yesterday under $2,000 bail by Supreme Court Justice Amend. The wounded man is still in Bellevue Hospital.

HARDMAN HOUSE
Pianos and Player Pianos
New Instruments $200 to $2000

A Grand Piano In the space of an Upright.

DESPITE what may be termed the necessary popularity of the upright, the Grand Piano is, to many musicians, the only piano.

The Hardman Small Grand triumphantly solves the problem of space-economy.

It occupies the smallest space compatible with the production of grand-piano tonal effects, and is thus as suitable as the ordinary upright for rooms of moderate size.

In other respects it differs in no essential from the grand-piano of conventional proportions and possesses the universally recognized Hardman attributes of luscious tone, sympathetic touch and permanent stability.

"Hardman is my choice."—Luisa Tetrazzini, Soprano.
